A GULP, A BITE, A CHEW — AND SUDDENLY YOU'RE A WINNER

There is literally a variety of ways to throw yourself into the eating and drinking contests at the Marin-Sonoma Fair, as these appealing (and very full) youngsters demonstrate. And, if your enthusiasm — and your tummy — holds out, you may be the winner. Gregory Baarts, 3, of Corte Madera, (far left) looks as though he may be throwing in the towel in the milk drinking contest, but Lisa Ramponi, 4, of Petaluma, appears still eager in the watermelon contest. At far right, James Angel, 12, of Petaluma, shows what it takes to be big winner in the fair's pie eating contest, and Mike Twomey, 11, of Windsor, demonstrates the ability which captured first place in the watermelon eating category at right. The youngsters were among 17,304 persons who flocked to the fairgrounds yesterday. Since the fair began Wednesday, 29,776 persons have visited the exhibits and joined in the fun. The final day's activities tomorrow will include a junior horse show at 9 a.m., dairy cattle awards, a 4-H dog obedience show, a fair parade in downtown Petaluma beginning at 1 p.m., a chicken barbecue at 12:30 p.m. in the fair picnic area, a variety show at the Gardenway Theater at 7:30 p.m. and auto racing at the grandstand at 8 p.m.

TRIBUNAL REPORT HEARING

Breach Of Trust Is Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government's top prosecutor told the Supreme Court today the New York Times and the Washington Post "consciously and intentionally participated in a breach of trust" by publishing part of the Pentagon's secret Vietnam study.

U.S. Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold made the claim in his opening argument on the celebrated newspapers case, the first in which the Supreme Court has agreed to rule on judicial power to restrain the press from publishing news the executive branch deemed a threat to U.S. security.

After acknowledging newspapers rightly attach great importance to preservation of freedom of the press, Griswold said the court had to consider the "integrity of the presidency" and the need to have it "function effectively."

He claimed the U.S. Constitution did not forbid the government to stop the press from printing something, citing copyright and literary property laws as examples of deterrents to a totally unfettered press.

Justice Potter Stewart asked Griswold if publication of the material in the 47-volume Pentagon report would harm the national interest, whether or not it was classified "secret" and regardless of how the newspapers obtained it.

"Doesn't it depend on the claim that disclosure would result in immediate, grave threat to the security of the United States however the material was acquired," the justice inquired.

"Yes," replied Griswold, "but the fact that obviously it was acquired improperly is not irrelevant.

At the start of the extraordinary Saturday session, jammed with spectators, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied a government move to hold some of the arguments privately. He said the lawyers could submit papers "under seal" instead.

Griswold said attorneys for the Justice Department, the Times and the Post filed "closed briefs" and the government's case was fortified by "more detail" from the Departments of State and Defense.

Both newspapers were seeking the right to resume publication of articles based on the secret report, entitled "History of U.S. decision Making Policy in Vietnam," which traces American involvement in Southeast Asia from the end of World War II until May, 1968. The study was begun in 1967 on orders from then Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Government lawyers contended in previous lower court hearings the documents were stolen in violation of the Espionage

WARRANT FOR ARREST OF ELLSBERG ISSUED

Complaint Says Ex-Pentagon Aide Had Two Sets Of Secret Papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A warrant was issued Friday for the arrest of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg on charges of illegally possessing and failing to return documents from a top secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam War, the Justice Department announced early today.

Ellsberg, 40, is a former consultant to the Rand Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., which helped the Defense Department prepare the 47-volume study, and has been frequently cited as the possible source who leaked the study to The New York Times.

DR. DANIEL ELLSBERG
Promises to appear

Ellsberg's lawyer, Leonard D. Boudin, a visiting professor at the Harvard Law School, said in Cambridge that Ellsberg would appear in court when he is ordered. "I have taken the position that Dr. Ellsberg has violated no law, disobeyed no order of any court and of course will appear in response to any process," Boudin said.

A complaint filed with the warrant said Ellsberg possessed "separately bound sets of 47 and 18 volumes ... of Xerox copies of a study of 'United States Vietnam Relations for the period 1945-1967.'" All but one volume were classified top secret.

The arrest warrant and complaint were signed by U.S. magistrate Venetta S. Tassopulos in Los Angeles, where a federal grand jury is investigating the documents leak at the request of the Justice Department.

The department said the charges against Ellsberg carry a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on conviction.

Ellsberg, now a senior research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, dropped out of sightlast week, surfacing only to appear Wednesday night on a CBS television interview that had been taped at a "secret location."

Affidavits signed by Rand Corp. security officials Richard Best and Jan Butler said Ellsberg, who worked for Rand from 1967 until the fall of 1970, had access to the entire 47-volume Vietnam study and was given actual custody of 27 of the volumes "at various times between Oct. 23, 1969, and April 7, 1970."

Another affidavit filed with the warrant was signed by Ellsberg's former wife, Carol, who said she learned in October, 1969, that her husband had been making Xerox copies of documents, some of which bore a "top secret" stamp.

She said she warned him that "this was a criminal act and he could go to jail for it." His reply, she said, was that "he had done nothing illegal and there was no official secrets act in this country."

Mrs. Ellsberg said her husband told her he "was very concerned about the war in Vietnam and that he was going to be actively working against it and that there were things that had not been disclosed which should be known.

"He then said he would only give it to authorized people like Sens. (J. William) Fulbright and (former Sen. Charles E.) Goodell," she said.

Lynda R. Sinay, 28, a divorcee and friend of Ellsberg's in Los Angeles, told the grand jury there on Thursday that Ellsberg had used her Xerox machine in late 1969 to copy about 3,000 pages of documents she could not identify.

Another Ellsberg friend and former fellow Rand employe, Anthony J. Russo Jr., faces possible contempt of court action for refusing to testify before the grand jury, even though he has been granted immunity from prosecution.

Possible Tragedy In Air Is Avoided

LONDON (UPI)—A British European Airways (BEA) airliner and a Pan American cargo jet nearly collided in flight over Heathrow Airport Friday, a BEA spokesman said.

The pilot of the BEA Vanguard turboprop plane which carried 135 passengers reported the planes took evasive action by climbing steeply.

Marin City Boys' Club Into UBAC

The Marin City Boys' Club, after five years of trying, won admittance yesterday to the United Bay Area Crusade.

UBAC announced in San Francisco that the club, which serves 350 boys, will be eligible for funding in 1972. The amount of financial support will be fixed later.

The club, financed entirely by contributions, has been seeking UBAC funding since its formation in 1966. Its facilities include game and study rooms, a library, arts and crafts area, photo laboratory and an auto mechanics shop.

Manford (Manny) Chandler, club director, said today the club still must raise about $32,000 for operating costs this year. Contributions may be sent to the club at 640 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

The club was among three agencies — the other two are in San Francisco and on the Peninsula — promised UBAC financing in 1972.

Agnew To Launch A 10-Nation Tour Tomorrow; Korea First

EL TORO, Calif. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew Sunday begins a 10-nation diplomatic tour of Africa, Asia and Europe, his most ambitious international undertaking since assuming office.

Agnew will visit Korea, Singapore, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, Kenya, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Spain, Morocco, and Portugal.

The vice president's previous two ventures into foreign diplomacy were confined to Asia.

Agnew will be gone a month, returning to the United States July 28.

The mission, according to a spokesman, does not have an overall comprehensive goal but was planned on a country by country basis. Agnew's first destination —Seoul, Korea — may be the most important of the trip.

In a ceremonial role, Agnew is going to Korea as head of the U.S. delegation to the inauguration July 1 of President Chung Hee Park.

But Agnew plans to spend five days in Seoul and is expected to have several meetings with Park to discuss delicate matters.

On his last trip to Korea — last August —Agnew brought the formal news that the United States was scaling down its military commitment there.

On this trip, however, a main topic of conversation could be Korea's decision to withdraw its 48,000 battle-toughened troops from Vietnam.

Under the present South Korean plan, the first 15,000 troops are scheduled to leave this year, a timetable that has upset the South Vietnamese.

The Vietnamese would like to keep the Koreans in place in the Central Coastal Region through the South Vietnamese elections in October and the expected enemy post-monsoon offensive next spring.

The United States is involved because it provides the weapons, ammunition, combat pay and other support for the South Koreans in Vietnam.

In Seoul, government leaders hope to discover during Agnew's visit whether the United States is considering South Korea as a possible site for tactical nuclear arms storage.

South Korean leaders will stress that the reversion of Okinawa to Japan should not weaken American defense capability in Asia, and military leaders have suggested Cheju Island for the storage of nuclear arms when they are removed from Okinawa.

American military experts have so far indicated they feel Cheju is too close to the China mainland.

Heroin Haul In Mekong Delta Area

CAN THO, Vietnam (UPI)—A large quantity of heroin has been confiscated and about 20 U.S. servicemen have surrendered for medical treatment in connection with a narcotics crackdown in the Mekong Delta, military spokesman said Saturday.

The drive also turned up 182 soldiers absent without leave from their bases and resulted in the arrest of eight others for narcotics possession and six for marijuana possession, spokesmen said.

The spokesmen said Maj. Gen. John H. Cushman, who ordered the 16,000 American servicemen in the delta restricted to their bases Tuesday for an indefinite period as part of the crackdown, met Friday with Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of all U.S. forces in Vietnam, to discuss the success of the program.

Two "shakedown" inspections, one Tuesday morning and another Friday, along with narcotics voluntarily surrendered by the 200 seeking amnesty, have produced a total of 234

Judge Bars St. Louis War Report

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—A federal judge today issued a restraining order barring the St. Louis Post-Dispatch from further publication of secret Pentagon documents on the Indochina War.

David Lipman, assistant managing editor, said: "Our lawyers have informed us that a restraining order has been issued. Beyond that, we know nothing more."

Lipman said he did not know who the judge was who had issued the order. "It is strange that we don't know," he said.

The first edition of today's paper was halted minutes before it went to press, and the front page was replated with a bulletin in a three-column box that read, "The Post-Dispatch today was restrained by a United States District Court order from further publication of secret Pentagon documents setting out the history of the nation's involvement in the Vietnam War."

The story which the bulletin replaced would have said the newspaper planned to resume publication in Sunday's paper the documents it began printing in Friday's edition.

Instant Status As Sophomores To Be Offered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Freshmen entering San Francisco State College next fall will have a chance to become instant sophomores by taking a series of five tests.

President S.I. Hayakawa said the experimental program, which will be offered to 1,300 new students, could provide up to 30 hours of credit before students enter a classroom. All who apply will be given tests.

The exams, each worth six college credits, will determine the student's knowledge of English composition, social science-history, humanities, natural science and mathematics.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Quits The VFW

KENOSHA, Wis. (UPI)—Chuck Goranson, a Vietnam War veteran, formally resigned from the Veterans of Foreign Wars Friday, saying the VFW is "made up of far-right wing people and drunken old men with older ideas."

Goranson, a member of the so-called "Peace Post" from Madison, Wis., participated in peaceful protests against the veterans organization because the Madison chapter had been suspended by the national VFW for its antiwar activities.

A second day of protests was scheduled today.

Had 'Enough'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Three tiring Soviet cosmonauts achieved 300 Earth orbits in their Salyut space station today, two of them flashing game smiles from behind bushy black beards. One cosmonaut said, "We've had enough."

The cosmonauts, Georgy Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev, have spent 20 days in space —more than any other men.

They carried out complex experiments today intended to measure the activity of atomic particles in and around their 25-ton station. It was the latest in a series of 140 tests assigned to the cosmonauts during their record-setting flight.

Bank Bombed

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—An Oakland branch of the Bank of America suffered $2,000 damage in a pipe bomb explosion — the 46th attack on the bank's facilities in the past 17 months.

The bomb, made of gunpowder stuffed into a six-inch pipe, was placed in a brick flower box in front of the bank, police said. It exploded Thursday night, blowing out windows in the bank and a store next door.

A Long Rest

LONDON (UPI) — Conductor Leopold Stokowsky, hospitalized three days ago for medical tests, has canceled engagements with the London Symphony Orchestra and will take a long convalescent vacation in Europe, doctors said today.

A spokesman for Westminster Hospital said the 84-year-old musician plans to leave the hospital shortly and spend seven weeks on the continent. Doctors have advised a complete rest, he said.

Stokowsky entered the hospital Thursday after complaining he felt unwell.

Fiscal Session

THURMONT, Md. (UPI)—President Nixon met with his chief fiscal advisers Saturday morning starting a two-day discussion at Camp David of the economy, congressional action relating to it and the anticipated federal deficit for the current fiscal year.

Also under consideration was the federal budget which will be effective for the new fiscal year starting July 1. Central theme in the talks will be administration action in the fight against inflation.

Nixon arrived at Camp David Friday following a two-day midwest trip into Indiana and Illinois. He watched a television movie before retiring. Mrs. Nixon drove here from Washington this morning.

'Superb' Shape

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Composer Rudolph Friml, who entered a hospital for the first time at the age of 91, was out again today, and in "superb condition."

Friml won fame as the composer of such operettas as "Rose Marie" and "The Vagabond King."

Lightning Strikes

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Lightning struck the Apollo 15 lauunch tower again Friday, but the moonship escaped damage and newly installed fuses protected vulnerable ground equipment.

It was the fifth time in two weeks lightning hit the 446-foot umbilical tower next to the moon rocket.

Detailed testing showed that the first four strikes did not affect the delicate systems in the spacecraft and the lightning that hit the tower Friday was of relatively low strength.

Still In Hospital

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Juan V. Corona remained hospitalized today after doctors said they "can't rule out" a heart ailment as the cause of his chest pains.

The physicians decided Friday to keep Corona, 37, suspect in the slayings of 25 itinerant farm hands, in the hospital over the weekend because of "significant changes" in the tests of his heart.

Addict Threatens Touring Senator

NEW YORK (UPI)—Four U.S. senators visiting a Harlem "shooting gallery" where addicts were preparing to inject themselves with heroin fled quickly Friday when one addict threatened Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, with a knife.

Hughes said he did not see the knife, possibly because a television cameraman blocked his view, but said, "It was a dangerous place to be in."

Six male addicts were preparing to take heroin shots in a basement of the Harlem tenement visited by Hughes, Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., and Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and newsmen and television cameramen.

When camera crews turned on their lights, the surprised addicts screamed at them to leave.

"Get the ——out of here," yelled the addict with the knife. "You've got a lot of —— nerve. I'm gonna bust this knife right up your —."

The senators, members of the Senate Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics, had been taken to the addicts' gathering place by officials of a heroin detoxification agency across the street who wanted to show how widespread the drug problem was in the slums.

SEN. HAROLD HUGHES

"When it's so wide open that three or four United States senators can walk into a shooting gallery just across the street from a hospital where addicts are supposed to be recovering, when heroin can be bought on any street, then it's a national tragedy," Hughes said.

A few minutes earlier on their tour, a former heroin addict, Isaac Hayes, 16, showed Hughes five packs of heroin he said he had just bought. The drug agency had given him $10 to show the senators how easy it was to buy drugs in the area.

Later the youth pointed to a man in a maroon shirt standing at a corner as the person who sold the heroin.

The senators' trip also included a visit to a Methadone center, a walk through Harlem and meetings with leaders of anti-drug programs.

"I wish you all well and hope you can recover and get out of here and start to live reasonable lives," Hughes told a group of girls at the clinic.

Hughes, who admits to being a former alcoholic and has been mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential contender in 1972, said he was not shocked by the incident in the basement. "The ghettos are where the drug problem is the worst," he said.

Hughes also said testimony before the subcommittee in Washington had prepared the senators for what they saw.

Recess On Budget Work

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A two-house legislative conference committee seeking to write a compromise state budget has recessed for the weekend after barely beginning its work.

Three senators and three Assemblymen met for about two hours Friday behind closed doors. They reported no progress on reaching an early agreement.

Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the bipartisan panel, said negotiations would resume Monday morning.

The reports Collier referred to were summaries of differences between the Senate and Assembly versions of Gov. Ronald Reagan's 1971-72 state budget.

The legislature must agree on a compromise figure before midnight June 30, or the state enters the new fiscal year without authority to spend money.

Reagan has the last say, however, in expenditures with the power to veto sums he believes unnecessary. But the governor cannot increase state spending.

Airline Luggage Woes Being Eased

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) —Airline passengers complain more about lost and damaged baggage than anything else, and something is being done about it.

Twenty-one of the world's leading airlines flying the Boeing 747 now load passengers' baggage into protective containers that carry the luggage until it is unloaded at destination, says Goodyear Aerospace Corp., maker of such containers. As well as reducing complaints, the system also speeds up passenger baggage service, the company says.

CRLA Takes Top Agency To Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) —California's Legal Service Program for the Rural Poor, which incurred the wrath of Gov. Ronald Reagan for suing his administration, now is taking the federal antipoverty agency to court.

California Rural Legal Assistance Inc. (CRLA) filed suit Friday in U.S. District Court asking it to order director Frank R. Carlucci of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to disclose the findings of a special commission which investigated charges of improper activites against the legal services organization.

The charges were the basis last winter of Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million OEO grant to CRLA. At the time, Carlucci gave the program funds last through July and chose three state supreme court jurists to look into the charges. The OEO director got the commission report Friday, but said he would not disclose its findings until he decides whether to give CRLA funds for the rest of 1971.

The CRLA suit was filed to force Carlucci to release the commission report. It expressed confidence that the three judges had made recommendations favorable to CRLA, but its lawyer, William McCabe, told newsmen that would do the organization very little good if Carlucci decided to cut off the rest of the 1971 funds.

McCabe said CRLA hoped for a hearing on the suit Monday, because Carlucci probably would make his decision by July 1.

Although Reagan's veto was based on a series of specific charges against CRLA's operations, the governor reportedly has been irked for some time by the organization's successful challenges of his administration. A suit that forced the state to give up a planned multi-million dollar cutback in medical care for the poor is the most frequently cited example.

The commission appointed by Carlucci last March to investigate CRLA included former Chief Justices Robert B. Williamson of Maine and George R. Currie of Wisconsin an Justice Robert B. Lee of Colorado. Justice Thomas Tongue of Oregon was a member of the commission but resigned after the state declined to participate in public hearings on the charges.

JUST BELOW DMZ

Americans Join In Fighting Around Abandoned Fire Base

SAIGON (UPI) — American tanks and armored personnel carriers today joined South Vietnamese forces in the fighting around the abandoned Fire Base Fuller just below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), military sources said.

It was the first time U.S. ground forces had become involved in the weeklong struggle around the mountaintop outpost five miles south of the DMZ.

Fuller was overrun by 1,500 North Vietnamese troops Wednesday night and reoccupied by South Vietnamese troops less than 24 hours later. It was finally abandoned, its fortifications and bunkers destroyed by air strikes.

Mititary sources said the American armor, from the 1st Brigade of the 5th Division (Mechanized), took up blocking positions east of Fuller and were firing in direct support of the South Vietnamese.

U.S. B52 bombers meanwhile kept up heavy raids in support of Allied troops around Fuller, flying four missions in the 24 hours ending at noon (12 midnight EDT), th U.S. Command said. Since May 21, nearly 20 million pounds of bombs have been dropped by B52s over Quang Tri province, which includes Fuller.

The U.S. command also reported a North Vietnamese rocket attack that killed one GI at Camp Carroll, a joint U.S. South Vietnamese outpost, four miles southeast of Fuller.

Another American was killed and six were wounded when an armored personnel carrier hit a mine eight miles northwest of Fuller and the pilot of an American UH 1 Huey helicopter died when it was shot down east of An Khe, 240 miles northeast of Saigon on Friday.

South Vietnamese troops battled the Communists two miles east of Fuller, killing 12 North Vietnamese and capturing four weapons Friday afternoon, military spokesmen said.

The South Vietnamese command rushed 5,000 fresh troops into the battle for Fire Base Fuller, the western anchor of the thinly held line of fortifications along the Demilitarized Zone. A regiment of government Marines moved into Fire Base Sarge, eight miles south of Fuller.,

Official South Vietnamese figures issued today showed 13 government troops killed in the fighting at Fuller, which fell to the North Vietnamese Wednesday night and was recaptured by the South Vietnamese Thursday night. More than 100 South Vietnamese had first been reported killed.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said 120 North Vietnamese were killed in the fighting for Fuller and as many as 300 others were killed by air strikes and artillery barrages between June 19 and 24 in and around the mountaintop base.

Israeli Troops On Bank Of Canal Fire On Jets

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops on the occupied east bank of the Suez Canal opened fire today on two Egyptian fighter-bombers that buzzed their positions on the southern end of the waterway, a military spokesman in Tel Aviv reported.

The incident coincided with a warning by Egypt and Saudi Arabia that there is no chance for any enduring peace in the Middle East unless Israel withdraws from Arab territory seized in the 1967 war and "the Palestinian people regain their rights."

The Israeli spokesman said two Soviet-made Sukhoi 7 jet warplanes flew across the canal, which marks the Egyptian-Israeli 1967 war cease-fire line, in mid-morning. It was the sixth time since April 26 that the Israelis have reported firing on Egypt an planes apparently on reconnaissance missions over their front line defenses. None of the aircraft has been reported hit, however.

A complaint against what Israel considered as another violation of the Middle East ceasefire was fited with the U.N. Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) in Jerusalem, the spokesman said.

Egypt and Saudi Arabia called on Arab and other nations to support the Palestinian cause in the Middle East struggle and said Arab backing "is an important factor in the confrontation with the Israeli enemy."

Fairfax Approves Improvement Funds

The Fairfax City Council last night approved by a 4-1 vote a capital improvements budget of $113,000 for 1971-72 that includes funds for street improvements and city hall remodeling.

The budget is part of a total city spending program of $583,818 proposed by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe.

Most of the budget will be used for street improvements, including rebuilding the intersection at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Claus and Bank Streets and installing traffic signals at the location.

The councilmen spent considerable time discussing the practicality of the move, which will cost the city $40,000. According to Rowe, the intersection is poor and has caused significant traffic problems because of uneven intervals in the signals and improper funneling of cars onto Sir Francis Drake.

The council also allocated $35,000 for city hall remodeling; $6,500 for replacing the Bridge Court bridge; $1,500 for a new storage building; $500 for fire alarm undergrounding; $11,000 for park improvements and $8,500 for water line improvements.

Councilman Francis J. O'Connel opposed rebuilding the intersection and replacing Bridge Court bridge. He gave no reason for his opposition to the street improvement but did question whether the bridge is sufficiently traveled to merit replacing.

The council also approved budgets for the building department, $13,845; recreation department, $17,913; parks, $17,254; street, $98,237, and corporation yard, $33,720.

The council later went into closed session to instruct Crowe on city employee salary negotiations and announced it would meet again on the issue in open session at 8 p.m. Monday.

Four Hurt In Accidents; Three Crashes On 101

Three separate accidents on Highway 101 yesterday injured four persons, none seriously, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Joseana Cruz, 30, of Richmond, was treated for multiple injuries at Marin General Hospital after a wheel came off the pickup truck she was driving, causing it to overturn, spilling 2,100 pounds of fishing sinkers across the road.

Mrs. Cruz was driving south on the highway near the Sausalito offramp at 8:30 a.m. when the accident occurred.

Rudy Jungberg, 57, of 11 Blossom Drive, San Rafael, was to see his own doctor after his auto was hit from behind about 9:15 a.m. near the Tiburon Boulevard overcrossing by a car driven by Roy C. Klabunder, 61, of 285 Alameda Dela Roma, Novato, officers said. Klabunder also was to see his own doctor.

Mary E. Kelly, 43, of 60 Nova Lane, Novato was injured at 4 p.m. when her auto was hit from behind by two cars after she spun sideways trying to avoid a car that she said had cut in front of her. She was to see her own doctor for injuries suffered in the crash.

Uninjured were the drivers of the other two cars, Verda M. Westbrook, 52, of Santa Rosa, and Harry J. Bolton, 35, of 282 Orange Blossom Lane, San Rafael. The accident occurred north of the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard interchange.

Church Blaze Is Being Probed

Marin County firemen are investigating the cause of a blaze which swept through the day school annex of the Village Baptist Church in Los Ranchitos early today, gutting the building and causing $15,500 damage.

The fire began about 1:26 a.m. in the annex, at 7 Via Van Buren, and the structure was engulfed by flames by the time firemen arrived minutes later. Firemen could not say where the fire started, but had contained it by 1:48 a.m.

Damage to the school building was estimated at $14,000, while damage to contents was expected to total $1,500.

JIM KEAN
Takes second place

Picture Of Shoot-Out Is Winner

I-J Special Report

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — The dramatic picture of a kidnapper holding a pistol and a shotgun at the head of a judge during an ill-fated bid to escape won the Independent-Journal second place for news pictures in the 1971 Better Newspaper contest.

The I-J also won honorable mention in the contest's freedom of information category — a division in which the paper won first prizes in 1968 and 1970.

The results of the contest were announced today during the 86th annual convention of the National Newspaper Association.

Contest judges said I-J photographer Jim Kean, "was alert and did an excellent job of catching an event that made national news."

His prize — winning photograph was taken during the Hall of Justice shoot-out in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others were killed.

Kean has won three previous second place awards for photographs entered in the Better Newspaper Contest — in 1965, '68 and '70.

The first place award for photography went to the Village Voice, in New York City, for Fred W. McDarrah's photograph of a uniformed-man holding a knife-carrying woman at bay with a club.

Third place went to John Filo's Pulitzer prize winning picture of a teen-ager kneeling over the body of a student slain at Kent State University. Filo, then a student at the university, took the picture for the Tarentum, Pa., Valley Daily News.

First prize in the freedom of information category went to the Lapeer, Mich., County Press, which had been denied access to certain public records and took the fight to court.

DRUGS

vials of heroin containing between one and two grams per vial, and 60 pounds of marijuana mixed with tobacco, spokesmen said.

During the five days that American servicemen have been restricted to their bases, South Vietnamese police have conducted a series of raids on bars frequented by Americans in an effort to cut off the sources of supply of the narcotics, spokesmen said.

Hearing Set In Drug Case

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Michael Eugene Zelinski, 22, and Richard Carter Cravath, 32, both of San Anselmo.

Both are charged with possessing heroin, possessing it for sale, selling LSD and possessing drug paraphernalia. Zelinski pleaded innocent to the charges yesterday.

They were arrested Wednesday after police went to their residence in search or robbery suspects. The robbery suspects were not found, but the drugs allegedly were.

No Complaint In Drug Investigation

No complaint was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Mark Hampton Scott, 52, of San Rafael, arrested Wednesday on suspicion of selling heroin and possessing stolen property.

The district attorney's office said a complaint would not be filed pending chemical analysis of the suspected narcotics.

Guilty Plea To Burglary

Ross Sheffield Murphy, 20, of Ross, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to burglarizing a San Rafael residence May 9.

He was bound over to superior court to appear July 12 for setting of a sentencing date.

He was arrested May 15 after he attempted to sell 90 silver dollars to a local merchant, according to police.

Murphy's fingerprints matched prints taken at the home of Wilbur F. Mathewson of 47 Bret Harte Lane, from which a coin collection was taken in a burglary, police said.

Innocent Plea To Pot Charge

Daniel Martin Klopf, 19, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing marijuana.

Preliminary hearing was set for July 20.

Klopf was arrested Wednesday when Mill Valley police stopped him to see if the bicycle he was riding had been stolen. Police said they found a cigarette and plastic bag, both believed to contain marijuana, in his possession.

REPORT

Act before the newspapers obtained them.

Griswold was given one hour to argue the government's case.

Attorneys for the Post and the Times also were allowed an hour with the time divided equally for each of the papers, to say why, in the interests of a free press, they should be permitted to resume publication of articles based on the Pentagon study with no restrictions whatsoever.

The Supreme Court voted 5 to 4 on Friday to hear the case and partially restrained both newspapers pending the outcome of the litigation. It said the Times and the Post could go ahead with publication in today's editions of material that was not designated in a "special appendix" of documents that the government wanted suppressed.

Both the Times and The Post decided Friday to refrain from further publication of their articles until the Supreme Court handed down its decision.

The opening arguments began in the Supreme Court at 11 a.m., right on schedule. More than five hours earlier, people began lining up on the white marble steps outside to gain admission to the hearing. By the time the proceedings got under way, every seat in the chamber was filled.

The nine justices gave no indication, as usual, when they would issue their decision. But court observers said it was possible an opinion might come Monday, the day the court had planned to adjourn its current term.

Friday, four of the justices voted to lift promptly all restraints against the Times and Post without waiting to hear arguments in the Supreme Court. They were Justices William O. Douglas, Hugo L. Black, Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr.

Douglas was polled by phone at his Goose Prairie, Wash., vacation home. He arranged to fly back to Washington Friday night.

In lower court hearings, attorneys for the Times and Post and other newspapers that have published stories from the documents have argued publication was justified by the public's right to know and the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech.

The Times started its series of articles June 13 and published three in a series of five before being blocked by the courts. The Post started its series June 18 and published two before coming under court order.

Other major newspapers across the country have since printed material from the Pentagon study.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Friday former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told President Johnson in late 1966 that the pacification program in Vietnam was a "disappointment" and had "if anything gone backward." The newspaper printed the full text of a memorandum from McNamara to Johnson dated Oct. 14, 1966, and said it came from a portion of the Pentagon history.

The Los Angeles Times printed excerpts from the study in today's edition saying Johnson sent 3,500 Marines to Vietnam in 1965 to protect an Air Force base at Da Nang without realizing this would be the first step to a land war in Southeast Asia. The Times said the report called it a "majo decision . . . without much planning."

The Chicago Sun-Times, quoting secret government documents, said today the Central Intelligence Agency told the Nixon administration in 1969 it could immediately withdraw from Vietnam and "all of Southeast Asia would remain just as it is for at least another generation."

Concert Tonight

Marian Marsh and David Wade will sing a concert of classical and popular music at 8 p.m. today at St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael. James Groves will accompany them on the organ. The concert will benefit the church's organ fund.

Margaret I. Crotts Dies At 82

Margaret I. Crotts of San Rafael, long-time Marin County resident, died today at her home after a sudden illness. She was 82.

A native of Sebastopol, she had lived in Marin 40 years, residing at 9 J Street. Her late husband, Louis U. Crotts, was a well digger.

Mrs. Crotts is survived by a son, George S. Crotts, and a daughter, Kathryn M. Crotts, both of San Rafael; a brother, Joseph F. Rose of Hayward, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday in St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, 1022 E Street, San Rafael.

MRS. COLE

Funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, for Grady E. Cole, a long-time Marinite.

Mrs. Cole, widow of Victor L. Cole, a public accountant in San Rafael and a long-time San Anselmo School District trustee, died unexpectedly Thursday in Humboldt County while on a visit.

She recently had moved into a Marin retirement home after 50 years' residence at 67 Yolanda Drive, San Anselmo. Mrs. Cole was a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.

She was a volunteer worker at Marin General Hospital, a member of San Rafael Chapter 215, Order of the Eastern Star; Islam Temple 25, Daughters of the Nile; San Rafael Improvement Club and of the Unity-in-Marin Church of San Rafael.

Survivors are two sons, Howard of Denny, Trinity County; William of Palos Verdes Estates, Los Angeles County; a brother, Julius Edling of San Carlos, and seven grandchildren.

Entombment will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery. Memorial contributions are preferred by the family to Shriners Hospital, San Francisco, or the Marin General Hospital Memorial Fund.

CROTTS — In San Rafael, June 26, 1971, Margaret Ida Crotts, mother of George S. Crotts and Miss Kathryn M. Crotts; sister of Joseph F. Rose. Grandmother of four and great-grandmother of six. A native of California, aged 82 years.

Friends are invited to attend the funeral Monday, June 28, 1971 at 9:15 a.m. from Keaton's Mortuary, 1022 E Street, San Rafael, thence to St. Raphael's Church where a Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated for the repose of her soul at 9:30 a.m. Interment Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Keaton Chapel. (6/26)

Injuries Minor In Accident

Ellen Schoenlank, 45, of 37 Marina Boulevard, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital today for possible fractured ribs and a cut thumb following an accident on North San Pedro Road, near San Rafael.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Mrs. Schoenlank was injured at 12:15 a.m. when the car in which she was riding was hit by a vehicle driven by Jeffrey Duncan, 17, of 4 Via Montibello, San Rafael.

Duncan lost control of his car, went off the road just south of Main Drive, slid 69 feet in the dirt and bounced back onto the road, hitting the Schoenlank vehicle, officers said.

Her husband, Robert Schoenland, 47, was driving the car.

Stricter Law Enforcement Being Sought

The Marin City Council, dissatisifed with police protection in the community, has asked Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and the county board of supervisors for stricter law enforcement.

Councilman C. J. Williams reported the group Thursday agreed to appoint a committee to look into complaints that deputies at the Marin City substation are frequently out to their office when needed and take up to an hour to respond to calls.

The council also set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday at Manzanita Center to confer with the Marin City Tenants Union, which has been inactive for the past month.

Williams said the council wants to help revive the union.

No Gas War In North Bay

Despite reports of a gas war in San Francisco that has sent prices from eight to 10 cents below normal, prices in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties have not fluctuated significantly.

Spokesmen for major companies serving Marin refused to discuss the San Francisco gas war or North Bay prices, but a drive-around check by the Independent-Journal showed no major price changes.

The low-priced gasoline in San Francisco reportedly was caused by heavy competition among gasoline marketers and service stations, plus a current oversupply of gasoline.

Corps Steps Aside On Ross Common

The Army Corps of Engineers has declared it cannot help solve flooding problems on the Ross Town Common.

Col. Charles R. Roberts, district engineer for the corps, has written to Neil R. Brixon, chairman of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone Advisory board, outlining the Army's decision.

"Congress has established generally that the federal government should undertake only that which local levels of government cannot do as readily or as well from the standpoint of the national interest," Roberts wrote.

He said studies showed Ross Common's flood problems resulted from inadequate local drainage facilities rather than anything that would link it to the Corte Madera creek flood control project underway.

Roberts said the Army's creek work in the area would leave the Commons with nothing more to handle than runoff from about 20 acres surrounding the Common, and hence would make the solution purely a local responsibility. Enlarged culverts, particularly along Murphy Creek, should handle the need, he indicated.

Marin Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. reacted yesterday by branding the news "indeed a disappointment" and asking clarification of the Army's reasons.

Arrigoni argued that the colonel's letter "does not satisfactorily explain your conclusion" that the Ross Common should be handled by local agencies alone. He pointed out that one of the reasons for the Army work on Tamalpais Creek was to prevent its overflow from flooding low areas behind embankments of the creek project.

He asked whether the same problem does not exist with the Ross Common and low-lying areas of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Arrigoni said zone studies indicated correction of the Commons and Sir Francis Drake problems may cost $300,000.

"The town of Ross, in asking for outside assistance" when it joined Zone 9, "obviously realized that the scope of the problem was beyond the local resources," Arrigoni wrote. "This is precisely the philosophy under which the corps of engineers gets involved in flood control projects in the first place."

The supervisor suggested that the flood control work in the Common and on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard would be less costly if the Army redesigned its Corte Madera Creek Project so peak runoff would not crest higher than the lower reaches of the Common.

Farewells For Officers At Hamilton Base

The Novato Chamber of Commerce and the City of Novato had a farewell gathering yesterday at Nave's restaurant for Col. Lee A. Sarter Jr., base commander, and Lt. Col. Everett C. Brown, director of information, who will be leaving Hamilton Air Force Base.

Brown will leave next Friday for the 14th Aerospace Force, Colorado Springs, Colo., and Colonel Sarter will depart Aug. 2 for Ent Air Force Base, Colo.

Also honored was CWO 4 Vern Proctor, director of the base band, which was disbanded in an economy move.

The Marin Military Affairs Committee honored Sarter and Brown at a dinner at the officer's club at the base Thursday night. About 75 civilians and 38 officers attended, including Gen. Seth McKee, commander of the North American Air Defense Command.

Employee Robbed In Parking Lot

An employee of a San Rafael department store has been robbed of $304 by an armed man who accosted her in a bank parking lot, then escaped on a motorcycle.

San Rafael police said Patricia Ann Fountain, who works at the Disco store on Francisco Boulevard, had left the Bank of America with the money, en route to the store, when approached by the thief Thursday.

"Give me the money or I'll shoot the xxxx out of you," the bandit told Miss Fountain as she entered her car in the parking lot at the Montecito Shopping Center, where the bank branch is located.

The thief took the loot, which was in a canvas bank bag, and escaped on a motorcycle. He was wearing a brown jacket and dungarees.

Trial Cost Is Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill requiring the state to pay an estimated $850,000 in costs for the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee trial in Marin County has been approved by an Assembly committee.

The measure by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was sent to the Ways and Means Committee Thursday on a voice vote by the local government committee.

The trial will cost about $850,000, Bagley estimated.

Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7, 1970, shootout in which a judge and three others were killed.

Miss Davis is accused of buying the guns which were used. Magee is charged with taking part in the kidnaping of Judge Harold J. Haley and of killing Haley with a shotgun.

Plan To Dredge Sausalito Canal Still A Very Much Alive Issue

The long-standing plan to dredge the Sausalito Canal through Richardson Bay to the Mill Valley Boat Harbor is still very much alive, County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost said yesterday.

He explained that decisions by the county and the City of Mill Valley not to budget for the work in fiscal 1971-72 resulted from new studies of the project by the Army Corps of Engineers, which will perform the dredging.

Mill Valley councilmen Thursday night eliminated $16,785 that had been recommended for its share of the project in the coming fiscal year. The proposed county budget reviewed by the board of supervisors this week and last lacked any funds for the dredging, according to County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

Frost reported the county already has obtained all rights-of-way needed, as well as a permit from the Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission.

The public works director reported that Col. Charles R. Roberts, district engineer for the Corps, told him earlier this month that his office expected to complete its federally required "environmental impact study" and a "detailed project report" during July. Roberts said he "hoped" to complete plans and specifications for the actual dredging "sometime late this year," Frost said.

The project report must compare costs of removing the dredging spoils to Alcatraz, Seal Rock or seaward of the Farralon Islands, Roberts told Frost. The army also must "determine the requirements of local cooperation" on costs of the overall project.

The board of supervisors formally voted 4-0 last year to ask the Army to dredge the canal. At that time, the cost was estimated at $1,169,000, with Richardson Bay property owners assessed for $660,000 and the county paying $35,000.

The federal contibution at the time was estimated at $474,000 and could have gone no higher than $500,000, regardless of how much local sources had to provide, Frost said.

Costs have risen since then, partly because of BCDC requirements that the spoils be carried away from Richardson Bay rather than placed on the shoreline. But Frost said the $500,000 ceiling on federal matching funds has been lifted. The Army engineers now can match local contributions to any limit needed, he explained.

The canal is designed to extend two-and-one-half miles from the Mill Valley boat harbor to the Army engineers' turning basis in Sausalito. The dredging will remove an estimated 700,000 cubic yards of bay mud to create a channel varying rom 100 to 150 feet wide and eight feet deep at low tide.

Owners of some 200 parcels of land in the 860-acre assessment area will be billed for the local share of the project other than funds contibuted by the county and Mill Valley.

Tenure Denied, Man Cries 'Foul'

BERKELEY (UPI) —A criminology professor arrested during the May 15 People's Park anniversary riot charged Thursday that the University of California denied him tenure "for irrelevant, political reasons."

Anthony Platt, 29, an assistant professor, said his promotion to associate professor had seemed assured until his arrest on charges of obstructing university policemen.

The charges were dropped Monday by Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court Judge Lewis Sherman.

INTERNATIONAL BALLET dancer Cathy Prescott is performing with the Stuttgart Ballet in San Francisco through tomorrow. BAY AREA VISIT

Marinite Dancing With Stuttgart

By PAT BALMES

Marin welcomed home its own international ballet dancer this week as Cathy Prescott, formerly of Kent Woodlands, performs with the Stuttgart Ballet at the Opera House in San Francisco through tomorrow.

The 19-year-old San Domenico graduate performed with Marin Civic Ballet for three years. Last September Cathy traveled to Germany with San Mateo ballet teacher Richard Gibson to audition before his friend John Cranko, director of the Stuttgart Ballet. Accepted as a regular member, Cathy is featured soloist in "Salade," which is not on the San Francisco program.

She has danced with the ballet in Israel, Germany and New York, where she began the current four-month tour of the United States.

"I WAS homesick at first in Stuttgart and found the city boring after San Francisco. I can understand German, but can't speak it yet. I have a flat there and I can drive," says the young dancer. But she enjoys the Stuttgart dance company and will return next year.

"My whole life now is professional ballet, revolving around classes, rehersals and performances. The professional dancers are older, and that changes things from dancing in a regional school where you concentrate on your own technique and you also have school and your family," says Cathy who adds that in professional theater she uses her technique for the production, forgetting about herself.

Her day begins at 10 a.m. with a class taught in English and German. Then she rehearses until 1 p.m. There are two-hour classes in the afternoon and rehearsal again from 5 to 8 p.m. or else a performance. For a performance Cathy arrives at the theater at 6 p.m. to makeup and then works out at the warm-up bar.

"I am glad our company uses a warm-up bar because it prevents injuries from strains during a performance," says Cathy.

IN STUTTGART she has three performances a week; on tour she has eight. This week in San Francisco, she will have danced nine times.

After the performances, parties are frequently planned for the touring troop by local ballet lovers and professionals. But their director, before accepting invitations, has to ask,

"Will there be food there? The dancers will be starving after the performance!"

Everybody in the company, performers from all over the world, "is crazy about San Francisco," Cathy says. She and her friends are enjoying the restaurants. There are many Americans in the company and no more will be accepted now "because the Stuttgart Ballet is supported by the German government and is supposed to be a German state ballet," according to Cathy.

AMONG THOSE who went backstage to greet the young dancer this week were her mother, Mrs. John Prescott, formerly of Kent Woodlands, who now lives with her husband in Montana, and Cathy's former ballet teacher Mrs. Leona Norman of San Rafael, director of Marin Civic Ballet.

Mrs. Norman says that Cathy did not start as young as most children do, "but her talent was such that she learned faster than most." During the five years she taught Cathy it was evident she had the perfect body, coordination, intelligence and talent a dancer needs, the teacher said.

Cathy's tour will end in Washington, D.C. on Aug. 9. She says,

"That night I'll be in Montana to spend two weeks with my parents." The remaining month of her vacation will be spent studying ballet under Madame Marika Bessabrasova in Monte Carlo.

Stanford Chapel Is Setting For Wedding

Stanford Memorial Chapel at Stanford University was the setting for the wedding of Carol Marilyn Patterson of Menlo Park to Kenneth G. Hankermeyer on June 19.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Austin of San Anselmo.

Carol chose her sister, Mrs. James Shotwell of San Jose, as her only attendant. Leonard Johnson of Sunnyvale was the best man.

The guests were seated by Joseph Cayot and Jan Cayot, both of Mountain View.

A reception followed at the Mitchell Park Center in Menlo Park. The couple will return to live in Palo Alto after their wedding trip to Lake Tahoe.

Carol is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and Stanford University and is a teacher at Jordan Junior High School in Palo Alto. She also attended the University of Mexico.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hankermeyer. He is a graduate of Fremont High School in Oakland and the University of California and is employed as an engineer with Ampex in Redwood City.

She is employed with Greyhound Lines in San Francisco for the summer.

Michael is the son of Mr. and

Mrs. Earl L. McKnight of Petaluma and he is the brother of Danny McKnight of Hayward, Gerald McKnight of Geyserville and Lonnie McKnight of Petaluma.

He was graduated from Petaluma High School and is employed with Analy Auto Parts in Sebastopol.

An Aug. 14 wedding is planned at the United Methodist Church in Petaluma.

MARRIED IN ARIZONA

Novato Couple Will Celebrate Golden Anniversary Tomorrow

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow are Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Welch of Novato, who were married in Phoenix, Ariz., on June 29, 1921.

Their son and daughter and their families, Capt. (ret.) Cooper F. Welch of Sunnyvale and Mrs. Hugo Scotto will honor them at a party Sunday afternoon at the Scotto home in Terra Linda.

Lola Powell and Cooper Welch met on June 29, 1920, and were married on that date one year later. Mr. Welch was a real estate broker in Phoenix for 25 years before his retirement. He served three years in the Army during World War I, 15 months of that time in France. Prior to becoming a real estate broker Mr. Welch operated a supermarket in Phoenix.

DURING THEIR years in Phoenix Mr. and Mrs. Welch were active in the Order of Eastern Star. Mrs. Welch was a charter member of the friendship chapter and they served as past worthy matron and worthy patron. They now attend the Mill Valley Chapter, of which their daughter is a member.

Mrs. Welch was also active in civic affairs and was among a group that visited Washington, D. C., while Harry S Truman was president to convince the government that they needed a new veterans' hospital in Phoenix, where a number of young men were sent following World War II. She proudly displayed a picture of the delegation with President Truman. A new hospital was finally built in Phoenix.

Mrs. Welch was born in Texas and Mr. Welch in Mississippi. Mrs. Welch moved to Phoenix with her family when a child of 8.

The youngest in the family, Mrs. Welch said her father left her family when she was five-years-old. "It was a nightmare," she said, "and I couldn't understand it."

PERSERVANCE IS the key to a happy marriage, the couple agreed. Mrs. Welch said one has to take the good times with the bad times in a marriage. She said she was horrified at the way some young couples live together today without being married.

The Welchs moved to Novato in April 1967. "We wanted to get away from the dust storms in Phoenix and live nearer our children," Mrs. Welch said, as the couple relaxed in their comfortable mobile in Novato. "I wouldn't live in a house again," she said.

Since moving to Novato the Welchs have become active in the Novato Senior Citizens and attend the Novato United Methodist Church. They transferred their membership to the Novato Church from the Central Methodist Church in Phoenix where they were members for 45 years. Mr. Welch is also a member of a luncheon club for retired men, Sons in Retirement, Inc.

Among the 150 guests invited to the party tomorrow are the Welch's six grandchildren. Timothy Welch is 15 and Stacy Lee Welch is 12. Mrs. Scotto's children are Pamela Sutherland, 14, Vicki Sutherland, 8 and Peter (Chip) Sutherland, 6 years old.

THEIR GOLDEN wedding anniversary will be cause for celebration tomorrow for Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Welch, who live in their mobile home in Novato. The couple, who have lived in Marin since 1967, were married in Phoenix on June 29, 1921.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Couple Married In Elizabethan Setting

By MOLLY MARIN

Rev. Terry Lee Henry, formerly a Sausaltio street minister, Mill Valley resident and San Francisco Theological Seminary student, wed Kathy Lee Bryant on June 15 at the First Christian Church in Albany, Ore.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Bryant of Albany. Reverend Bryant is pastor of the church where the combination Elizabethan-modern wedding was held.

Attending the wedding from Marin were Elizabeth W. Vreeland of Mill Valley and Mr. and Mrs. Howard rice of San Anselmo, and the bridegroom's mother came from Michigan to attend the wedding.

The newlyweds are living near Los Angeles, where Reverend Henry is temporarily serving as minister of a Prebyterian church.

LEAVING TUESDAY for Hawaii where they will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary are Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hartley of Novato.

VISITING IN the Bay Area are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Burasato of San Miguel de Allende, Mexico. The couple are staying with Carmen Burasato's mother, Mrs. Mamacita Reyes, at the home of Mrs. J.S. Porter in Ross, and will be the guests of Mr. Burasato's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burasato, in San Francisco before returning to Mexico next month.

Mrs. Reyes gave a party for her daughter and son-in-law on their 24 wedding anniveryary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Noah in Lucas Valley.

A SURPRISE party was given for Richard Colombo of San Rafael by his sons and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Colombo and Richard Colombo Sunday at the John Colombo home in San Rafael. Mr. Colombo is retiring from 25 years' work with Tacchi Brothers garage. Friends and relatives were on hand for the garden party.

Mr. Colombo and his wife, Lena, enjoy gardening and he plans to do some hunting and fishing with his sons.

Special Camp For Fibrosis Patients To Be At Fairfax

Cystic fibrosis patients will attend a special summer camp to be held at the Girl Scout camp in Fairfax Aug. 25 to 29. The camp is sponsored by the Children's Hospital Medical Center of Oakland cystic fibrosis clinic staff and is funded by private donations.

Some 70 patients will be able to participate in fishing, swimming, crafts, baseball and volleyball, with the assistance of a staff of medical personnel, nurses from Merritt, Providence and University of San Francisco hospitals and high school students.

Children attending must be 7 years old or over. Any cystic fibrosis patient is eligible, according to the medical center. Enrollment is made through the Children's Hospital Medical Center C.F. center in Oakland.

Women Will Be Third Of Force

By 1975, 30 million women will comprise more than one-third of the nation's total work force, according to a U.S. Department of Labor forecast.

Two-thirds of the families will have annual incomes over $10,000, and 30 per cent of the family heads will be under 35 years old.

Highly mobile, the average woman will eat out more, and at home she will rely more on convenience foods and appliances. In meal planning she will be more knowledgeable about foods, more diet and more quality conscious.

Use Swim Safety If Water Unknown

If you swim in sites which are unfamiliar to you, the California Medical Association says you may run risks that would not threaten you on your favorite beach.

Before diving in a new place, test the water for depth and for hidden logs or rocks. If you get caught in a strong current, don't try to fight it. Swim along with it, and, cutting diagonally across the current, head for the shore.

Don't forget the safeguards which you observe while swimming at home, the association reminds. Don't swim in water that is too cold, and don't swim immediately after a meal.

LOTS

Choice, country club lots. Magnificent homesites that spread their oak-studded tapestries along golf course frontages or over a panoramic view. Sites (one quarter to an acre or more) are priced from $8,500 to $17,500. Both price financing will be a pleasant surprise.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Questions With Poetry From 'Frightened Earth Resident'

DEAR READERS:

This essay-poem came to me over a year ago. I've wanted to print it but I wondered whether an advice column is quite the place for such probing thoughts.

Nevertheless, it's nagged me until I've given in.

Perhaps you'll like it too — though you may not agree with the writer.

DEAR HELEN:

In the course of everyday living

One seldom stops to contemplate why he or she exists,

Or why man as a whole exists.

It is said that we must propagate the species,

And so we do, and all to often at that.

Has man made this planet a better place to live for himself and other living things?

Only man takes his own life. own life.

Only man can rationalize, putting thought into action.

Only man kills for pleasure.

All our lives we work towards achieving what we want,

But once we get it we know not what to do with it,

And we want more.

We have visible and invisible means of eliminating those who do not conform

To our particular branch of society.

Can we, as supposedly intelligent creatures,

Live out our lives without knowing why?

If we can do this,

Then why do we flatter ourselves by thinking ourselves superior to the worker ants?

We drink and smoke and use drugs.

We seem to find all means of suicidal outlets,

Labeling most of them as pleasures of life.

Most of what our government does for other countries

Is done solely to keep face.

We allow mass media to infect our minds and fill them with trivial nonsense,

And all the bad influences in life,

Until we can no longer cut through the fantasies we live in.

We see what we want to see,

And no more.

We ruin the lives of our young.

Because we cannot look back to our youth,

Or perhaps because we can remember it all too well

And unknowingly inflict pain similar to our own.

In return, youth rebels.

They try to grow up,

But the parents keep them children.

They try to be children,

But the parents make them old.

Day by day it becomes all the more difficult to function in such a world,

For we are all right,

For we are all wrong,

And I sit and wonder, "Where are we going?"

And shivering, I think "I don't really want to know!"

Celebration At Site Of Memories

No more appropriate place could have been selected than Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club for the golden wedding celebration tomorrow afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Forest Seitz of Greenbrae for the club is closely associated with their family history.

The Seitzes were actually married on July 5, 1921, at the Mill Valley home of Marie Seitz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Weissich, but the reception is being hosted tomorrow by Dr. and Mrs. Ghery D. Pettit of Pullman, Wash., who will celebrate their 23rd wedding anniversary at the same time, and Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Fitzhenry of Kentfield.

MRS. PETTIT and Mrs. Fitzhenry are daughters of the Seitzes. The wedding receptions of both daughters were held at the Outdoor Art Club, and all but one member of the wedding parties of the Seitzes and Pettits will attend the party tomorrow.

Among them will be Marie Seitz's twin sister, Carolyne, Mrs. James B. Phelps of Mill Valley, who was matron of honor.

The Outdoor Art Club holds many memories for them, for their mother was one of the early members of the club, and both are 50-year members, Mrs. Seitz having served as president in 1943 and her sister as vice president.

Others of the Seitzes' wedding party present tomorrow will be Mr. Seitz's brother, Reuben W. Seitz of Yountville, who was best man, and Mmes. Katharine Burbeck Johnson and Dorathea Wood of San Anselmo, Otto Weissich of Mill Valley and Gertrude Gerdau of San Francisco.

THE SAN Francisco-born family of the twin sisters same to Mill Valley from San Francisco in 1911 and the girls were graduated from Tamalpais High School.

After their marriage the Seitzes lived in Mill Valley until they moved to Greenbrae in 1558.

Marie Seitz served two years as president of the Marin Society for Crippled Children and was active in the early days of the Marin Music Chest. In World War II she worked as a Gray Lady and was in the first class of Pink Ladies at Marin General Hospital.

Mr. Seitz, who was born in Sierra County in Forest, which is now a ghost town. The family lived in San Francisco for seven years before moving to Ross in 1908 and to their own home in San Rafael in 1909. He was graduated from San Rafael High School and lived in San Rafael until he was married.

He is a retired vice president of the Pacific National Fire Insurance Company, now the Transamerica Corporation.

He was a member of the Mill Valley school board from 1931 to 1934, a trustee of the College of Marin from 1946 to 1955 and chairman of the Mill Valley district of Boy Scouts of America from 1940 to 1948. He is also a past commander of the Mill Valley American Legion Post 284 and of the Marin County Council of the American Legion.

TODAY HE is active mainly in the Sons in Retirement organization. Since he retired, he and his wife have traveled extensively in Europe, the Orient and Mexico.

Their major common interests are their children and the grandchildren—John Robert Jr., Colleen Anne, Patrick Francis and Michael Thomas Fitzhenry and Ghery St. John and Paul Robert Pettit. And they enjoy playing bridge, but prefer to play in separate clubs, however.

"Give and take," both agreed, is the major secret of maintaining a happy marriage for 50 years.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM D. HOLT
To live in Sacramento

William Dale Holt Takes Gail Offenbach As Bride

Gail Donna Offenbach became the bride of William Dale Holt Saturday in a ceremony at Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Offenbach of Larkspur.

Attending their sister were Mrs. Linda Maraccini of Sonora and Janet Offenbach, and the bridegoom's brother, Capt. Robert Holt of Georgia, was best man.

A reception in the church hall followed the ceremony, and the couple are on a wedding trip in the Bay Area and Bodie State Historical Park.

Gail is a graduate of Redwood High School and Sonoma State College, where she received a teaching credential.

A graduate of Sierra College, the bridegroom will attend Sacramento State College. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale G. Holt of Sacramento.

The couple will live in Sacramento.

NUPTIALS IN ROSS

Dee Williams exchanged vows with Art Stackhouse in a ceremony Saturday at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, where the reception was also held. The couple will live in Berkeley after a Lake Tahoe wedding trip. She is the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Williams of San Rafael and Art's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Stackhouse of Oyster Bay, N.Y., formerly of Terra Linda.

Rodef Sholom Is Scene Of Marriage For Couple

Nancy Jeanne Frank and Russell Jerome Scharlin were married on June 19 in an evening ceremony at Congregation Rodef Sholom in San Rafael.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Z. Frank of Greenbrae, Nancy chose her sister, Carol Frank, as her maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Helene and Mindy Tinkler of San Rafael and Katie Louie of San Francisco.

Charles Field of Rodeo was best man for the bridegroom. The ushers were Ron Tanovitz of Oakland, Mark Steinberg of Rodeo and Ted Hall of San Francisco.

A reception followed at the temple. The couple will live in Davis after their wedding trip to Carmel.

Nancy was graduated from Redwood High School and attended the University of California at Davis. She plans to enter U.C. at Berkeley in the fall.

The bride is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Irving Holbert of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scharlin of Rodeo are Russell's parents. He was graduated from John Swett High School and the University of California at Davis with a civil engineering degree. He is in the mastes degree program and is a research assistant at Davis. Mrs. Dennis Fischer of Rodeo is his sister.

Emergency Tub

In an emergency the kitchen sink can double as a bathtub for an infant. For sanitary reasons, the sink should be thoroughly scrubbed and then flushed with hot suds before and after baby's bath.

Engagement Announced For Couple

Mrs. Hugh M. Brown of Mill Valley and Ernest F. Gaudreau of Tarrytown, N.Y., announce the engagement of their daughter Pamela Jane Gaudreau to Dennis James Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shea of Spring Valley, N.Y.

Pamela was graduated from Tamalpais High School and Smith College in Northampton, Mass., where she was elected to Sigma Zi, the national honor society for scientific research. She has just completed her first year at the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor. The future bride is the sister of Sandra Gaudreau of Santa Cruz and William and Lesley Brown of Mill Valley.

Dennis is a staff executive with General Motors assembly division in Detroit, Mich.

An Aug. 21 wedding planned in Tarrytown.

Husband-Wife Should Discuss Financial State

Life insurance is owned by approximately four-fifths of the adult population and yet very few husbands discuss life insurance proceeds with their wives, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

There are four widows for every widowers in the country, and every year many new widows find that they are completely ignorant of their husband's financial affairs.

The institute advises husbands and wives, who have delayed the discussion of what the wife should do in case of the husband's death, to bring up the subject.

Instructions to assist the wife in meeting financial problems should include a list of insurance policies and all other assets, including cash, securities and personal possessions.

Confusion Between Double, Single Knit

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

Please tell us the difference between a single knit and a double knit. I wasn't aware there was a difference except by the weight of the knit.

MRS. A.V.

DEAR MRS. A.V.,

Double knits are made with a double set of needles, giving double thickness to the fabric. It is difficult to distinguish the right from the wrong side, unless the fabric is textured or patterned. Double knits are heavier in weight than single knits, and they drape softly, yet tailor beautifully. The most popular fibers are wool, plyester and wool-synthetic blends.

Single knits are made with a single set of needles and sometimes with only one yarn. The fabric has a definite right and wrong side. Single knits are usually lightweight with good stretch and recovery. They are made in a broad range of fibers, wool, cotton, synthetic blends.

Best known single knits are jersey, a soft, drapey, supple knit in a plain stitch, either wool or synthetic. Matte jersey has a brushed surface. Tricot is a very lightweight, run resistant knit made on a warp knitting machine which interlocks each loop above, below and sideways. This is sued for lingerie as well as outerwear and is usually made from acetate, triacetate or nylon. Cicre is a nylon tricot with a shiny, wet looking finish.

MRS. MARIE Sanders, Louisville, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"I've found a little trick that has worked perfectly for me and should help others who have trouble threading the sewing machine needle. I cut two 5 inch squares of fabric, one in white and the other black. Stitch them together back to back. When threading your machine with a dark thread, hold the white side of your square behind the needle. When using a light colored thread, hold the black side of your square behind the needle. It certainly will make threading your machine needle a snap instead of a chore.

DEAR EUNICE,

In August I am going to be a bridesmaid, and I will be making my own dress. It is to be made of taffeta with a chiffon overlay. Should I sew all the seams together or make the two skirts separate and attach at the waist only?

LOUISE D.

DEAR LOUISE,

The type of construction depends entirely on the style of the dress you are making. If the skirt is almost straight, or has a slight A-line, the two layers of fabric could be treated as one, the darts would be made together, as well as the seams, hem, etc.

Many times when chiffon is used, it is used for a flowing, soft, full skirted effect. If this would be the case, it is better to use the taffeta in an A-line, underskirt. Then construct the chiffon separately, usually with a very small hem, either hand rolled or turned up with a narrow strip of horsehair braid for more shaping at the hem. This type of pattern would require the two layers of fabric to be applied together at the waistline only.

DANCE

Troupe's Personnel Improves

By MARIE RAMEAU

A balmy summer evening in the woods was the setting for the Margot Jones Dance Company's concert last night, under the auspices of the Marin Shakespeare Festival. This troup joined with the Rec Russel Dance Company at Forest Meadows Theater on Dominican College campus in San Rafael, and performs there again tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

The dancers in Miss Jones's company showed much improvement since I last saw them in October at the College of Marin. Still, although the performance standards have risen, the content level of the repertoire has noticeably declined, judging from last night's program.

FREE STYLE

The companies both performed in free style, combinng elements of ballet, modern, jazz and primitive forms. But this tended to become monotonous. Excepting Miss Jones and Mr. Russel, both fine performers, the troups boast of no outstanding personalities, and the dancers are not particularly strong.

A few themes on the one-sided program were: "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child," "Girl Talk," and "Bus Stop." "Tribal Movements" to Santana's "Jingo" was the richest in movement of the entire evening's fare.

"How Free Is Free?" evolved out of a facetious sermonette delivered by Erroll Strider to his own percussion effects. Here the train of thought was soon lost in a maze of directionless pantomime by Miss Jones, Shelley Adams and Debbie Grahm. It could have posed a powerful, searching subject; unfortunately it did not.

"BUS STOP"

After an interminable intermission, Mr. Russel's group presented "Bus Stop," which again had little to nothing to do with its point of departure - a placard centered on stage bearing the words "Bus Stop."

Another offering, "Dream of Moloch," approached a more sophisticated production level. For once, the dancers were not invariably clad in leotards and footless tights. Also, the choreography was more highly developed and illuminated by a colorful light show synchronized with the music. The sum, however, was less original than it promised to be, too much like numerous scenes from Tennessee Williams plays.

Most of the music - jazz, rock, folk and soul - was prerecorded, with the remainder live by the Wood Nymph Fantasy Band. A competent group of rock and folk musicians, their featured vocalist is Harriet Carter, whose voice reminded me of Judy Collins. But their interludes were too many and too long.

KEY PROBLEMS

Obviously the most immediate problems the Jones Company must grapple with are its loosely woven themes, repetitious repertoire and lack of theatricality. Although an outdoor setting usually presents a pleasant prospect to an audience, this type of environment demands intense theatricality on the part of the performing company.

Missing this vital ingredient, the absence of such trapping as props and a "real" theater becomes all the more conspicuous and — in this instance — the dance experience. The company is filled with talent, but this needs to be challenged from within.

Bridge Suicide Barrier Backed

Construction of an eight-foot-high railing on the Golden Gate Bridge to prevent suicides was endorsed unanimously yesterday by bridge district directors.

The board authorized a $20,000 contract with Anshen and Allen, San Francisco architectural firm, for a preliminary design for the barrier. The district's consulting engineers, Ammann and Whitney of New York, were asked to propose engineering and aerodynamic tests needed for the preliminary design and cost estimates.

The architects estimated its cost at $750,000.

The proposal previously was endorsed by the committee of the whole. The barrier will have thin vertical tension rods topped with an angled rail too difficult to grasp long enough to climb over.

The existing railing is 42 inches high, and more than 400 persons have gone over it to their deaths since the span opened in 1937.

Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

CLOSED — Met behind closed doors for 55 minutes in an inconclusive discussion of negotiations for an option on property at the Hutchinson Quarry in Larkspur for a ferry terminal. Expenditures on the purchase would not be reimbursable from federal grants if made before the grants were approved.

FLOAT — Received a report from Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring that the ferry float at the San Francisco Ferry Building will be completed early next week, and approved $5,000 in dredging so both sides of the float can be used with Harbor Carriers. A used float bought for district use at the San Francisco terminal instead will be shifted to Sausalito, replacing one leased for $9,000 a year.

FERRY — Received an estimate from Luehring that patronage on the Sausalito ferry will total 990,000 next fiscal year, a report that the district earned $3,171 from the ferry concession in May, and extended for two years a lease with the ferry concessionaire, John Cosmos.

RESIGN — Accepted the resignation of Harlan L. Soeten of Mill Valley as chief of ferryboat operations.

PLANNING — Approved agreements with the Metropolitan Transportation Commission and the County of Marin for joint work on a $1.1 million plan for rapid transit, the district's share to total $136,334 after a two-thirds federal grant.

TOWERS — Voted to buy 12 fixtures to test lighting of the bridge towers.

RETIRE — Congratulated Maintenance Supt. R. E. Mullins of Corte Madera upon his retirement next week after 34 years with the district.

APPROACH — Agreed to appeal to the California Highway Commission to finance a $10 million widening of the San Francisco approach to the bridge entirely from state funds. The commission, to meet on July 22 in Oakland, asked the district and San Francisco to share the cost with the state, but both have balked.

SAUSALITO — Extended the lease on the North Sausalito parking lot for one year for $4,000.

AUTOMATIC — Received a report from District Engineer Robert E. Shields that automatic vehicle identification devices will be installed on 20 Greyhound buses to be leased by the district. The district is developing a system to allow vehicles to drive through toll gates without stopping, with the devices triggering a computer to bill drivers by mail.

VEHICLES — Approved hiring Paul Sill as a transit schedule analyst at $12,000 a year, Robert Warren as a project engineer at $17,500 a year, and an additional clerk-typist at $7,056 a year.

RENT — Dropped proposed cancellation of the Round House Restaurant lease because three months unpaid rent had been paid.

TRAINING — Appropriated $4,320 so engineer Shields could attend a transportation course in Pittsburgh during his vacation.

BUSES — Approved color and fabric designs by Walter Landor and Associates for the district's fleet of 132 buses. Alternating groups of cool and warm colors, in four schemes, will give the buses "a little more custom character," Landor said.

FERRIES — Asked Landor to review interior colors for the district's proposed new ferries after viewing with dismay colors offered by a subcontractor to the district's naval architect.

FAIR — Changed the second July meeting from the 30th to the 23rd in Santa Rosa so directors can attend horse races at the Sonoma County Fair.

BONDS — Announced the Bank of America will host a luncheon for district directors on July 1 in the Bohemian Club in San Francisco to mark retirement of the $35 million in bonds that financed construction of the bridge.

GRANTS — Received a report from Richard J. Smart, special counsel expediting federal grants, that federal funding of up to $6.1 million for the district's bus system was expected in early July. Federal action on the $12 million grant sought for the ferry system was expected in the first quarter of the new fiscal year, he said.

COLORS — Received report that all district vehicles will be painted white because of studies indicating fewer accidents with vehicles painted white.

BART — Postponed a tour of Bay Area Rapid Transit District facilities because the BART train broke down and because of too little time.

Open Space, Park Plan To Be Aired

The Marin County Planning and Park and Recreation commissions will meet in joint session Monday to consider the relationship of the present parks and recreation master plan to the open space master plan now being prepared by the planning department.

The two panels also will discuss Tomales Bay, federal preparation of the Point Reyes National Seashore plan, and local recreation area needs and policies.

The planning commission's regular meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in its hearing chamber in the County Administration Building at the Civic Center.

The park and recreation commission is scheduled to join the planning commission at 9:15 a.m.

Other items on the planning commission's all-day agenda will be:

WEST MARIN — Resumption of discussion on whether to scrap the existing west Marin master plan. The proposal, to be discussed at 10:45 a.m., was continued to Monday at the commission's June 14 meeting.

AGRICULTURAL ZONES — Planning Director Werner Von Gundell will report at 9 a.m. on the board of supervisors action last Tuesday rejecting the commission's split-vote recommendation that the A-2 lot size minimum be raised from 7,500 to 20,000 square feet. The supervisors favored revision to a two-acre minimum. At 11:15 a.m., current planning chief Harvey E. Bragdon will discuss proposals to provide a variety of densities and agricultural, recreational and other uses in the zone.

INDIAN VALLEY — Progress on planning Indian Valley west of Novato for large lot minimums will be reported at 11:45 a.m.

APARTMENTS — The commission will hear a request to rezone 12.6 acres southeast of North San Pedro and Granlee roads from A-2 to multiple planned residential district RMP-8, allowing eight units per acre. The applicants have applied for 84 units on the hill side site.

NURSERY SCHOOL — Harold Nichelini will seek an extension of his permit to conduct a school on Las Gallinas Avenue, Terra Linda, across from Bernard Hoffman School.

Trio Pleads To Burglary Counts

Sandra A. Moore, 18, of San Pablo, and Carolyn Jean Hankins, 23, and Sadie Evelyn Gamble, 35, both of Richmond, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to one misdemeanor and five felony counts of burglary.

A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 3.

The women were arrested June 10 in Novato after they allegedly shortchanged clerks at several businesses.

Panel On Housing Is Being Urged

The Fairfax Planning Commission has passed a resolution urging the city council to form a citizen's committee to develop a city housing plan.

Commission chairman E. Ross Parkerson said the so-called housing element to the city general plan is needed to keep the city eligible for state housing funds.

Also at its meeting Thursday night, the commission asked the city council to abate a drainage pipe at 300 Olema Road. Parkerson said the pipe is inadequate to carry the natural flow of water and has caused flooding on Olema Road.

The commission approved zoning permits for Gloria E. Knight to operate a fabric shop formerly occupied by the Marin County Library branch at 47 Broadway, and for Patrick Fitzgerald and Edwin J. Christiansen for a bike shop, 705 Center Boulevard.

The commission adjourned to a July 8 special meeting to consider final plans by Gentry Development Co. for a 68-unit apartment on 6.8 acres on Olema Road.

Columbian Sailing Ship Due Monday

The Gloria, a three-masted Columbian sailing ship, is scheduled to sail under the Golden Gate Bridge at 9 a.m. Monday.

The Gloria is on a naval cadet training cruise, according to officers of the Twelfth Naval District. The crew will hold an open house on the vessel at San Francisco's Pier 33 from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Task Force Outlines Safety Rules For Bay

A special task force of public officials and maritime experts has made a series of recommendations aimed at preventing disasters such as the January oil spill in San Francisco Bay.

Among the recommendations are that VHF radiotelephones be installed on the bridges of all deep draft vessels and that harbor advisory radar previously established as a pilot project by the Coast Guard be further developed.

The special committee was sponsored by the Association of Bay Area Governments and the Marine Exchange of the San Francisco Bay Region, both of which have endorsed the report.

The oil spill occurred when two Standard Oil Co. tankers collided under the Golden Gate Bridge. Harbor advisory radar spotted both ships on its radar but was only in touch with one captain.

The task force, called the Regional Committee on Navigation and Environment, noted in its report that a new Marine Traffic Center on Yerba Buena Island is scheduled to go into operation about October 1971 and will have "increased capability and sophistication."

The report also recommended that participation in such harbor safety and advisory services be mandatory, not voluntary as at present.

June Shows Aerospace Jobs Down

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The number of aerospace jobs in California fell by another 3,000 last month with more reductions "anticipated," the state Department of Finance has reported.

In a review of economic development in the state issued Thursday, the department said the economy showed "signs of recovery" in April and May with a 60,000-job increase last month. An improvement in non-aerospace manufacturing was a major factor in the increase, it said.

But "further gradual reductions" in the current total of 435,00 aerospace jobs are expected by the department, especially in electrical equipment and aircraft components.

New Patrol Leader Due In August

Capt. William S. Bloomer, 45, will succeed Capt. Daniel W. Lyons as commander of the Marin-Golden Gate area of the California Highway Patrol on Aug. 2, the CHP announced.

Lyons, 50, who has commanded the area since May 1969, will take command of the CHP's South Los Angeles station. Bloomer will come to Marin from Sacramento, where he has been commander of the CHP Academy since January 1969.

Captain Bloomer, who was born and reared in San Bernardino, was a member of the San Bernardino Police Department for three and a half years before he joined the highway patrol in 1951.

As a traffic officer he was assigned to Barstow and San Bernardino, and as a sergeant he worked for a year in Vallejo before he returned to San Bernardino.

Promoted to lieutenant in 1966, he worked in the San Francisco area about a year before being transferred to Sacramento. His assignment to the academy came with his promotion to captain.

Bloomer and his wife, Helen, have two daughters, Berenice, 14, and Kristine, 13. He is a member of the Elks.

POSTCARDS GO AIR MAIL

Helium-filled balloons went up, up and away in San Rafael yesterday, carrying postcards with each child's name and address as part of Operation Blastoff at Hartzell School playground. The program, which takes a chance on the wind and air current to see how far the balloons will travel, is sponsored each year by the park and recreation department at 12 playgrounds. Last year, one balloon traveled as far as Alberta, Canada. Postcards are attached in the hope that whoever finds the balloon will mail the card back to San Rafael.

Information Round On Sewage Disposal System: Soul-Searcher

An informational meeting on a proposed $8.1 million sewage disposal system for Stinson Beach and Bolinas turned into a soul-searching session last night as many of the 100 persons who attended questioned whether the system was desirable — or necessary.

Chief objections voiced by the audience — mostly Stinson Beach residents — centered around a planned ocean outfall which would send the treated wastes into the Pacific.

And biologist Peter Warshall, of the Future Studies Center in Bolinas, seemed to express the views of many attending when he said the Stinson Beach erties are completely underwater during winter rains and said it was "pretty obvious that septic tanks and leeching fields were not likely to work in lots under water."

Robert Tartual, who owns property in both Bolinas and Stinson, disputed Dougherty's contentions. "I have gone to the environmental health people at the county and regional levels and as far as they are concerned, Stinson Beach doesn't have a sewage problem," he said. "What this whole thing seems to be is (a proposal) to spend about $8 million to replace a septic tank that works just right." He drew loud cheers and applause from the group.

Warshall, who protested that sending wastes and chlorine into the ocean could endanger marine life in the area of the outfall, particularly on Duxbury reef, said the Future Studies Center has considered many alternate plans to the system.

"We are about two weeks away from bringing in a portable treatment unit which will take care of downtown Bolinas — a plant that meets the requirements the state has put out," Warshall said.

Another man noted there has been no contested election in the water district since it was formed in 1962 and Ronald Wagner asked if people in Stinson "really have any voice in what is happening?"

Dougherty said that while the district has already spent $125,000 for engineering costs for the joint treatment plant (which will be located in Bolinas) and the Stinson collection system, that did not mean the district was irrevocably commited to the project.

Establishment of an assessment district to finance the system will be discussed at a meeting of the county board of supervisors July 6. Dougherty and members of the Future Studies Center urged those with objections to voice them at that meeting.

County Water District, sponsor of the meeting, had not explored less expensive — but equally effective — alternatives to the giant disposal system.

Others noted that while Bolinas is under a cease and desist order from the state because of the raw sewage it dumps into the Bolinas Lagoon, there is no such order against Stinson Beach. Why then, the residents asked, must we be assessed with a $3.4 million cost (Stinson's share of project expense) to correct a situation for which we are not responsible?

Hugh Dougherty, president of the water district, discussed even the most strenuous protests in polite fashion. He said that Stinson Beach did indeed have waste disposal problems, caused in part by small, steep lots and a high ground water level which tends to render septic tanks ineffectual.

In addition, Dougherty pointed out that many Stinson prop-

Lawsuits On Phone Tax Filed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The second and third lawsuits challenging the legality of the 10 per cent telephone "war tax" have been filed in U.S. District Court.

Like the first actions filed earlier this week, these suits, signed by over 1,000 Northern California phone subscribers, charge that the federal tax is invalid because it was raised to its present rate to support an undeclared war.

So far the protestors have withheld over $2,000 in tax money and deposited it into trust funds pending the outcome of litigation, according to Alan Barnett of Mill Valley, spokesman for the Northern California War Tax Protest Committee.

Among the trustees of the deposited tax money are Roger Kent, former chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee: Carleton Goodlett, publisher of the Sun Reporter in San Francisco; Urban Whitaker, chairman of the department of international relations at San Francisco State College, and Zaide Kietley, president of the San Francisco Chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Hit-And-Run Information Being Sought

Witnesses to a hit-and-run accident Tuesday at 9:10 p.m. at Fifth and Lincoln avenues are requested to get in touch with the traffic division of the San Rafael Police Department.

Police are looking for the driver of a black and yellow car which struck a auto driven by Ruth Makinson, 50, of 1548 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo. Police said Mrs. Makinson suffered a broken shoulder and collarbone in the accident.

Scott Nelson, police investigator, said two women with first names of Lois and Phyllis are reported to have witnessed the accident, but any other witnesses also are asked to call the traffic division.

Death Row Is Next For Sandoval

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Jaime E. Sandoval, 39, was formally sentenced to San Quentin's gas chamber yesterday for the slaying of two benefactors who took him in after release from prison.

Superior Court Judge Robert J. Drewes ordered the ex-convict, a former San Rafael male nurse, transferred to state prison within 10 days. Earlier this month the jury which convicted Sandoval sentenced him to death. It was the first death penalty rendered in the city in 10 years.

The formal sentencing followed two days of arguments by defense attorneys for a new trial and reduction of the death sentence.

Sandoval was convicted of killing Edelmiro Hertas, 63, and Carmen Acenzio, 36, last year and dumping their bodies over Devil's Slide dust south of Pacifica. They had taken him into their home after he served a term for child molest.

Authorities said Sandoval shot the couple after they decided to evict him from their home.

$65 Fine For Demonstration Project Protest

Richard Jarvis Woods of San Francisco was fined $65 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court after he pleaded no contest to misdemeanor charges stemming from a 1969 demonstration against the Tamalpais Creek Flood Control Project.

He earlier had been charged with trespassing and failing to disperse.

Woods was among 36 persons whose cases have been pending the outcome of an appeal by a Kentfield woman who acted as a test case for the group. Her conviction was upheld in April.

A total of 38 persons were arrested in April 1969 when they protested paving of a 400-foot stretch of creek.

Seventeen defendants who have yet to plead are expected to enter no contest pleas and be sentenced during the next few weeks.

OAKLAND (UPI) —Vida Blue's amazing victory pace continues to snowball. And so does one very important statistic—innings pitched.

Blue shutout Kansas City Friday night 7-0 on five hits and extended his 1971 total of innings pitched to a phenomenal 157 1-3. With the season not even halfway completed, Blue already has hurled more innings this year than in any full season during his professional career.,

The most innings Blue had thrown previously was 152 for Burlington of the Midwest League in 1968. Yet he believes his body is sound enough to stand up to the workmanlike pace he is setting.

"As long as I keep myself in good shape, there should be no problem," Blue said. "My arm feels fine and three or four days rest should still be good enough for me."

Vida pitched his 16th victory of the season against Kansas City to move the A's 10 games ahead of the second place Royals in the American League West. A crowd of 33,888 looked on.

He struck out 12 batters to stretch his season total to 157, best in the major leagues. He also tops the majors in complete games with 16, in shutouts with six and in earned run average with a mark of 1.37.

The slim lefty, now 16-2, said he felt no added pressure by the presence of his mother, brother and four sisters sitting in the private box of A's owner Charles O. Finley. It was the first time they had ever seen Blue pitch in a professional baseball game.

"I didn't even know they were coming. They were up there until the ninth inning," Blue said. "I try not to get excited about anything. Our whole family is that way."

Finley had the entire Blue family flown to Oakland from Mansfield, La., to view the weekend series with the Royals. They were to be in the stands again today when Vida receives a 1971 baby blue Cadillac from the A's owner.

Blue, who celebrates his 22nd birthday on Monday, did not allow a Royal runner beyond second base while record his sixth victory in a row.

The A's sewed up the game early by scoring twice without a hit in the second inning and scoring two more times in the third on RBI singles by Sal Bando and Rick Monday.

Mike Epstein belted his 10th homer of the year in the fifth with the bases empty for a 5-0 lead and Bando added a two-run single for the final runs in the seventh against Kansas City starter and loser Mike Hedlung (6-4).

"Felt kind of good beating Kansas City after they knocked me out of the box last month," said Blue, who took no decision in that game on May 14. "Even though I really wanted to beat them, my most satisfying victory still is the time I beat Baltimore 1-0 (on Arpil 26)."

Blue has only three more starts before appearing in the all-star game July 13, so it is not possible for him to win 20 games prior to the mid-season break.

"If I don't win 20 until August 9th, it still doesn't matter to me," Blue said. "I'm not trying to break any records. I'm just pitching."

Jim Hunter (10-5) was to face Bruce Dal Canton (7-2) of the Royals in today's rematch.

Smith In Win Over Emerson

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Fourth-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., recovered his touch after losing the first set to defeat two-time champion Roy Emerson of Australia, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3, 9-7, today and advance to the quarterfinals of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships.

However, Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., was eliminated by underdog Onny Parun of New Zealand, 9-8, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

With the victory, Smith, third choice of the bookies to take the title, joined fellow American Tom Gorman of Seattle in the round of eight and assured the U.S. of three players among the quarterfinalists.

Emerson, the titlist here in 1964 and 1965, showed flashes of his old form in the first set, but the next two were disastrous for him. Not until the fourth set did the Australian regain his control, but by that time it was too late to halt the 6-foot-4 Smith.

Four Australians made it to the quarterfinals. First-seeded Rod Laver and second-seeded John Newcombe both made it on Thursday along with Gorman, who thwarted the hopes of another Aussie by turning back Ross Case, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4. Gorman's next opponent is Laver, who lost to the American last week in the Queen's Club tournament.

Colin Dibley of Australia beat Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3 to become the other player in the quarterfinals.

In the women's singles, Nancy Gunter, Richey's sister, joined Billie Jean King as the only Americans in the quarterfinals Mrs. Gunter scored an easy 6-3, 6-2 victory over Saiga Yansone of Russia.

First seeded Margaret Court of Australia and Mrs. King, who have each won the title here three times and met each other in final matches twice, advanced to the quarterfinals on Friday along with Francoise Durr of France and Kerry Melmille of Australia.

Britain's Winnie Shaw defeated Lesleq Bowrey of Australia, 1-6, 9-7, 6-3, early on Friday to get to the quarterfinals, too.

Astrodome Jinx Spells Disaster For Giants

HOUSTON (UPI) —The San Francisco Giants, recently recovered from the "June swoon," may be confronting another perennial jinx: the Houston Astrodome.

The Giants, coming back from the doldrums earlier this month with seven straight wins, fell to the Astros 5-4 in the ninth inning Friday, and thereby losing 19 of their last 23 games played in the indoor stadium.

San Francisco appeared to have shaken its Astrodome fever, carrying a 4-3 edge into the bottom of the ninth on the hitting strength of Hal Lanier, Chris Speier, and Bobby Bonds. Lanier, hitting only .193, went three for four and scored three runs as he started all three Giant rallies. Spier and Bonds each got a pair of hits and two RBI's.

But a pair of errors by Willie Mays, subbing for the injured Willie McCovey at first base, allowed two unearned Houston runs in the seventh and eighth innings, and the Astros poured it on the ninth. Starter and loser Gaylord Perry, after being touched for an infield single by Denis Menke, fumbled Doug Rader's bunt, then hit Rader in the back near first base when he finally recovered the ball. The ball bounced into right field and the runners went to second and third.

Perry then intentionally walked John Edward, loading the bases, and then unleashed a wild pitch to Jack Haitt, allowing Menke to score the tying run, Hiatt lined a 32 pitch over the head of Bonds in center, driving in the winning run.

Tonight, Ron Bryant (6-3) will square off against Larry Dierker (6-3) trying to break the Astrodome hex.

Mays Now Leads N.L. Balloting

NEW YORK (UPI)--Willie Mays is still the greatest to baseball fans across the country.

Mays, the second leading home run hitter in baseball history who is having one of his best seasons ever at the age of 40 with the San Francisco Giants, has accumulated more votes than any other player in the National League in balloting for berths on the 1971 All-Star team.

Mays has received 540,390 votes while catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds is second with 572,952, in a poll of beseball fans.

Mays is assured of a starting position in the outfield when the National League takes on the American League in Detroit's Tiger Stadium Juty 13. Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves and Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates are leading in the race for the other two outfield spots.

The Giants' Willie McCovey, who was recently put on the disabled list with a damaged knee, continues to lead Orlando Cepeda of the Braves in battle for first base, while the Chicago Cubs' Glenn Beckert is ahead in the voting for the second base position.

Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets has a slim lead over Don Kessinger of the Cubs for the shortstop berth while the St. Louis Cardinals' Joe Torre, the leading hitter in the National League, is far ahead in the race for third base.

Pitchers and reserves for the squad will be chosen by Sparky Anderson, manager of the defending National League champion Reds.

Champ Favored In Title Bout

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI)— Disputed world junior welterweight champion Bruno Arcari enjoyed nearly a two pound weight advantage Saturday over challenger Enrique Jana of Argentina when they weighed in for the first world title fight in Sicilian history.

The Italian champion weighed 139 1-2 pounds while Jana tipped the scales at 137 3-4 pounds.

The two men meet tonight in a scheduled 15 round bout for the World Boxing Council (WBC) version of the junior welterwight crown.

1 Stroke Lead For Mitchell

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Bobby Mitchell, looking for his first PGA tour win, led the way into today's third round of the ninth annual Cleveland Open Golf tournament at the par 71 Beechmont Country Club course after posting a 12-under-par 66-64—130 for the fist 36 holes.

His score was one shot off the low mark for 35 holes this year on the tour. It was set earlier at the Phoenix Open by Paul Harney, Gene Littler and Miller Barber at 129.

Mitchell, 28, of Janville, Va., took the lead Friday afternoon following the second round, edging Dan Sikes by one stroke. Sikes rallied on the back nine to come up with a 67, four-under-par, to hold onto second place at 131, 11-under-par.

The 1970 U.S. Open champion, Tony Jacklin, shot a sizzling eight-under-par 63 Friday, the best round of the day, to reach the half-way mark with a 132 and hold onto third place in the tourney. He birdied eight holes, five of them on the front nine.

Mitchell, who turned pro 13 years ago at the age of 15, was eyeing the $30,000 first place money.

"I haven't had a bogey since the 17th hole of the final round of the U. S. Open last week," Mitchell said. "This is one of the prettiest and well conditioned courses we've played on this year.

"I hope it continues to help my play.".

Sikes, who shot an 11-under-par 67 Friday had a two-stroke lead going into the second round, but lost it when he missed six putts under eight feet and bogeyed the fourth and seventh holes.

"I had a two-stroke lead on the field, shot a 67 Friday, and lost my lead," Sikes said with amazement. "If anybody beats Mitchell we'll have to declare no contest.

"But I'll tell you that I'm very happy, especially the way I stood at the 11th tee which I bogeyed. Believe me, I would have been happy with anything under par since I hadn't done any good since the first hole Friday."

Young Bobby Cole, of Johannesburg, South Africa, Australian Bruce Crampton and Gene Littler of LaJolla, Calif., all moved into contention for the remaining 36 holes posting eight-under-par 134's for the tournament.

FINAL DAY

Huge 220 Field For AAU Track

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — They'll have to go some today in the windup of the National AAU Track and Field Championships to top Rod Milburn's world record 13-second performance in the 120 high hurdles.

There are 12 finals on today's program, starting with the 220 dash which will start in the morning with seven trial heats and windup in the afternoon with the finals.

The eventual winner will be an iron man of sorts since it will take four heats to decide the title because of a record field of 49 entries. In between the first 220 heat and the wrapup race there will be finals in the 440 hurdles, 440 dash, 880, mile, two mile walk, 3,000 meter steeplechase, six mile, pole vault, javelin, triple jump and shot put.

It will take quite a performance by the more than 500 athletes competing for those titles to beat Milburn's effort on the opening program Friday.

Milburn set his world record in a semifinal heat of the 120 and there was some speculation as to what exactly was his record-setting time.

The timing judges, using hand stopwatches, caught Milburn in 13 flat but the Bulova Phototimer, an electronic device which measures the time and flashes a picture of the finish as well, said his time was 12.94, which rounded out comes to 12.9.

The judges studied the picture but decided to stand with their 13.0 flat call.

Tom Moore, veteran starter and director of the California Relays at Modesto, said they should have given Milburn a 12.9.

"Ordinarily, the photo time is slower than the hand watches, Moore said, "which makes Milburn's performence even more incredible. Personally, I think he should have been given a 12.9"

In any event, Milburn, who completed a sweep of the year's major 120 hurdles titles when he won the final in a wind-aided 13.1, finally has collared the record he has been after for a long time.

His time clipped two tenths of a second off the existing mark shared by Willie Davenport, the 1968 Olympic Gold Medalist, Lee Calhoun, Earl McCullouch, Erv Hall, and Tom Hill of the United States and Martin Lauer of West Germany.

Milburn, a physical education major at Southern University who will start his junior year in the fall, said he wasn't aware he was on a record-setting course until they flashed the time.

"I was running only fast enough to qualify for the final," he said, "and in no way did I imagine I was doing that (setting a record), but it's a good feeling."

Delano Meriwether, a 27-year-old doctor at the Baltimore Cancer Clinic who started running only a year ago, almost matched Milburn's performance when he won the 100-yard dash in 9 seconds flat.

However, he won't get credit for a world's record because of excessive wind (6.48, well over the allowable limit of 4.473).

"Athletes have good days and bad days as well," said the modest Meriwether. "I guess this was a good one for me. I remember passing Milburn on the infield before his race and he told me he was ready."

Meriwether practices about three times a week after work at the clinic and said his trip to Eugene for the Nationals has created quite a strain on the home front,

"We are in the process of moving from Baltimore to Boston," he explained, "and my wife is having to do all the packing. You know how a wife reacts when you go galloping off across the country."

Meriwether, who will be starting a new job at the Harvard Medical Unit working on blood diseases, said he is undecided about competing next week in the U.S.-Russian meet at Berkeley, Calif.

The first and second place finishers in the Nationals win automatic berths to that meet as well as on the Pan American Games team.

"I'd like to run against the Russians if I can," Meriwether said.

Milburn, Tom Volmer, Reynaldo Brown, Arnie Robinson and Steve Prefontaine, who also won AAU titles Friday, indicated they'll compete against the Russians.

My Kind Of Players, Brannick Would Say

How Eddie Brannick woul have loved to be traveling with the 1971 Giants! "My kind of ball players," he would have said. Unquestionably he is saying that now in his Palm Beach home in Florida to which he retired this spring after 65 years active duty with the Giants.

Brannick will be 79 July 22 but his association with the ball club that won his heart as a 13-year-old office boy in 1905 hasn't ended. Brannick now is Secretary Emeritus of the Giants, a title bestowed on him by the club's board of directors upon his retirement.

"My kind of ball players," Brannick would have said over and over again. Brannick's kind of ball players always were fellows who clobbered second division teams and broke even or edged the top-rated clubs. "That's the way pennants are won," he would say. "It's a simple formula."

Even with the National League now divided into two divisions, it isn't difficult to identify the second division outfits under Brannick's formula. Certainly, the San Diego Padres would qualify. And this season the Giants have walloped the Padres 8-1 in nine games with three more about to get under way Monday.

But the Padres aren't the only club the Giants have manhandled this year. They are 8-1 against the Cubs who used to be a second division outfit when Brannick was traveling secretary of the Giants. But no longer.

Brannick would be particularly pleased with the way this 1971 team of Giants reacts to defeat. There never are any smiles or wisecracks on the team plane or bus after losses.

"My kind of ball players," he would have said. "Mr. McGraw couldn't tolerate smiling losers—it was best not to be around him when the team lost."

How Brannick would have loved to watch Chris Speier, 20-year-old rookie shortstop of the team, making pretty double play pirouettes across the second base bag. Brannick would have kept Speier supplied with an unending stream of silk ties.

To receive a gift of one of Brannick's ties was a top accolade. He never bought a cheap one in his life. He always went first class. His favorite tie story revolved around the 1947 season.

"Early in 1947," he would reminisce, "Johnny Mize hit an inspirational homer in the Polo Grounds. It gave the whole team a lift because it was a tight ball game. I announced that every ball player who hit a homer would get the best silk tie I could find. That was the year the Giants broke the National League home run record—221—and they almost broke me."

Football On T.V. Tonight

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Ablanace between running and passing from the East will attempt to offset one of the most explosive West air shows ever assembled during the 11th annual Coaches All-America football game here tonight.

Kickoff for the game before 42,000-plus fans packed into Texas Tech's Jones Stadium will be 8:30 p.m. (EDT). It will be televised nationally (by ABC).

The weatherman has promised partly cloudy skies, temperatures near 90 and no rain at kickoff. Each team has won five games since the contest began in 1961.

The West aerials will be hurled by Stanford' Jim Plunkett, 1970 Heisman Trophy winner, and Southern Methodist's Chuck Hixson. Rounding out the starting backfield will be tailback Joe Orduna of Nebraska, fullback Bo Cornell of Washington and flanker Ernie Jennings of the Air Force.

The East, a 34-27 victor last year under Louisiana State Coach Charley McClendon, will be looking for its second straight victory. The West won the 1969 battle 14-10 in the final game played in Atlanta before the classic was moved to Lubbock.

Receivers include Bob Moore of Stanford, J. D. Hill of Arizona State and Chuck Ducus of Arkansas.

The East offense will be headed by quarterbacks Scott Hunte of Alabama, Buddy Lee of LSU and Rex Kern of Ohio State. Kern will start at strong defensive safety.

USC Is Favored In Pac-8 Football

SEATTLE (UPI) —Southern Cal will supplant Stanford as 1971 football champion of the Pacific-8 Conference, according to a poll of sports information directors in the conference.

NICE TRY — Donna Caponi blasted plenty of sand but no ball out of a trap near the 17th green yesterday during the second round of the U.S. Women's Open at Erie, Pa. Donna was one-over-par after 36 holes. JoAnne Carner led with a one-under 143. (UPI Telephoto)

Five Time Amateur Champ Leads U.S. Open At Midpoint

ERIE, Pa. (UPI)—JoAnne Carner carried a two-stroke lead into today's third round of the U. S. Women's Open Golf Championship with a warning she may finally be able to live up to a boast she made when she was an amateur,

"I said the top 10 amateurs could beat the pros," Mrs. Carner recalled wistfully. "Then I came on the tour and started shooting 80's."

Mrs. Carner, a five-time U. S. Women's Amateur champion, shot into the 36-hole lead Friday, adding a one-over-par 73 to her first-round 70 for a one-under-par total of 143.

Playing early, her edge held up as most of the late starters faded in a heavy wind, including defending champion Donna Caponi, who bogeyed five of the last 10 holes and is in second place with 145.

"If I don't three-putt, I should win this tournament," said Mrs. Carner, a 32-year-old strawberry blonde who travels in a silver trailer with her husband. "This is always my downfall —I start three-putting and down I go."

In Friday's round, as she did Thursday, Mrs. Carner spent most of the time in the rough, hitting just six fairways for the second straight day. But she one-putted seven times, saving herself repeatedly with excellent chipping.

Besides the lead, the performance earned JoAnne another free night from the kitchen chores.

"Don (her husband) said if I shoot 73 or better he'll cook dinner," Mrs. Carner said. "That's why I was working so hard out there. Last night, he made liver and onions —which is difficult to make. He's an excellent cook, in fact he taught me how to cook."

Going into today's third round, Lesley Holbert was all alone in third place at 146, former champions Mary Mills and Murle Lindstrom Breer were at 147, four-time winner Mickey Wright and Jane Blalock at 148, amateur Jane Bastanchury had 149 and Kathy Whitworth 150.

Mrs. Carner said the wind Friday was "unbelievable."

"The wind just kept swirling around all day," she said. "Sometimes, you didn't know how to hit a shot because you were never sure what the wind would do."

Miss Caponi, trying for a record third straight Open title, started in mid-afternoon with two straight bogeys but then birdied four of the next six holes and appeared headed for a big lead.

She ran into trouble at No. 9, driving into the rough and coming out short for a bogey, then fell apart on the back nine with successive bogeys at Nos. 13, 14 and 15 and another at 17.

On the 13th hole, Miss Caponi drove into trees; at 14, she three putted; at 15, she wasted a shot in the rough near the green and, at 17, she took two shots to get out of a sand trap.

"We are used to playing rounds of three hours and 45 minutes, but I was out there five hours today," Miss Caponi said.

"That's a long time, and I had too much time to think. We waited a lot, and waiting gives me too much time to thing . . . I changed my mind too many times about what I was about to do."

The cut for the final two rounds came at 159, leaving 45 pros among the 54 players in the running for the $5,00 first prize. Among the casualties were Judy Rankin, the No. 9 money winner on the LPGA tour, two-time junior champion Hollis Stacy, and former tennis star Althea Gibson Darben.

Sunday's final round will be nationally televised (ABC) beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Million Dollar Deal Made For Canonero II

NEW YORK (UPI)—Canonero II, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was sold to Robert J. Kleberg Jr. Friday for a sum estimated at over $1 million.

W. J. "Buddy" Hirsch, who will train the horse for Kleberg, said he believed some paper still had to be signed before the transaction becomes official, but that Kleberg told him all negotiations had been completed and agreed upon.

Kleberg, owner of the King Ranch, made the purchase from Pedro Baptista of Caracas.

Canonero II, a Kentucky-bred bay colt, returned to Kentucky from Venezuela as a rank outsider in the Derby and won going away. He also captured the Preakness in impressive fashion and went into the Belmont Stakes as an odds-on favorite to complete the Triple Crown sweep.

However, a foot infection and a skin rash prior to the race apparently troubled him and he finished fourth. He is still bothered now by an infected hock.

Hirsch said he plans to race Canonero again "if and when he is able. But I expect it will be quite a while before he gets back to the races. I don't think it will be before the Santa Anita meeting next January or February."

Pop Warner Grid Signups On Tap For Novatans

Novato and San Marin Pop Warner football teams will hold signups Monday and Tuesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. at Western Title Co., 945 Front Street, Novato.

This year there will be four teams in Novato — Novato Yellow Jackets and San Marin Colts for boys aged 10 through 12 and weight between 70 and 105 pounds; and Novato Junior Hornets and San Marin Junior Mustangs for boys 12 through 14, between 90 and 125 pounds.

Boys who will be entering the ninth grade in September are not eligible for Pop Warner football.

Signup fee is $20, and a parent must accompany each boy and provide proof of birthdate. Practice is scheduled to begin Aug. 7.

Coaches will be Bob Douglass, Junior Hornets; Tex Miller, Junior Mustangs; Al Globe, Colts, and Gene Ferrari, Yellow Jackets.

S.F. Yacht Club Okays Challenge

The San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere has received and accepted a conditional challenge from the St. Francis Yacht Club to race for the S.F. Perpetual Challenge Trophy, San Francisco Y.C. officials announced yesterday.

The challenge races will be on a boat-for-boat basis with 30-foot bird boats. The challenger is Falcon, owned by Jim Jessie, and the race has been scheduled for Saturday, July 10.

The San Francisco Perpetual Challenge Trophy dates back to 1895 when El Sueno of Encinal Y.C. beat Queen of the San Francisco Y.C. This year's will be the race's 64th renewal.

Stargell Cracks 27th Home Run

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

It might be a terrifying thought to National League pitchers but—what if Willie Stargell was healthy?

Stargell, batting at an incredible pace this season, ripped his 27th home run and drove in four runs Friday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates clubbed the Philadelphia Phils 14-4. Stargell, playing with a badly damaged left knee, leads the majors in homers and has driven in 76 runs in 63 games. His closest competitor in the RBI department is Atlanta's Henry Aaron, with only 56.

Jackie Hernandez and Richie Hebner each hit two homers for the Pirates but it was Stargell's bat which helped the Pirates jump off to an 11-2 lead after only three innings.

The Pirate outfielder, who's hitting at a .319 clip, had three extra base hits in the first three innings and drove in four runs in a game for the third time this week.

Stargell, who had a pair of knee operations a few years back, is hoping he can finish out the season. "The left one hurts a lot," he said. "It feels much like it did the last time I had to have surgery and I feel certain the cartilage damage will require another knee operation at the end of the season."

Elsewhere in the National League, New York swept Montreal 4-1 and 4-2, Atlanta stunned Cincinnati twice 8-6 and 10-3, Houston edged San Francisco 5-4, Chicago blasted St. Louis 12-0 and San Diego shocked Los Angeles 5-4.

Stargell's double highlighted a three-run first and Hernandez' first homer triggered a four-run second. Hernandez also homered in the four-run third to help Steve Blass coast to his ninth victory against three losses.

Jerry Grote lashed three doubles in the opening game victory and Bud Harrelson drove in three runs in the second game as New York swept the Expos. Nolan Ryan struck out 10 batters in the opener to record his seventh victory and Danny Frisella pitched 4 1-3 innings of two-hit relief in the second game to gain his fourth victory in five decisions.

Ralph Garr's eighth-inning double brought home the winning run in the opener and the Braves erupted for 10 runs in the first two innings of the second game to romp past Cincinnati.

Darrell Evans drove in three runs in the first game as the Braves sent winless Jim Merritt to his 10th loss of the season. Rookie Earl Williams had four RBIs in the second game, three on a home run.

Rookie pitcher Bill Bonham collected two hits during a 10run seventh inning and held St. Louis to four hits in five innings as the Cubs mauled the Cardinals. Chicago had 20 hits in the game and oddly, only one, Jim Hickman's double, was for extra bases.

Dave Campbell's bases loaded single in the ninth inning drove in two runs and lifted San Diego past the Dodgers. Bob Barton's single, a double by pinch-hitter Larry Stahl and an intentional walk filled the bases to set the stage for Campbell's game-winning hit.

Blue's Family Sees Him Pitch

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Vida Blue's family finally got a look at baseball's hottest commodity Friday night, and now they know first-hand what all the commotion is about.

Blue's mother, brother and four sisters were flown to Oakland from Mansfield, La., by the Athletics' owner, Charles O. Finley, Friday night and watched 21-year-old Vida blank the Kansas City Royals, 7-0, on five hits for his 16th victory of the season.

Blue, who will be 22 years old next Monday, struck out 12 and recorded his sixth shutout of the season while boosting his record to 16-2. No runner got beyond second against Blue, who turned in his 16th complete game and reduced his earned run average to 1.37.

The game marked the first time that Blue's family had ever seen him pitch in any professional game. They sat in Finley's private box and received an ovation when introduced to the crowd of 33,888 fans.

In other American League games, Baltimore beat Boston 7-3, New York whipped Washington 12-2, Milwaukee beat Minnesota 3-1, Chicago blanked California 2-0 and Detroit defeated Cleveland 6-1.

Mike Epstein's 10th homer of the year and a two-run single by Sal Bando were the big hits for Oakland, which stretched its lead in the AL West to 10 games over the Royals.

Paul Blair's two-run triple snapped a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning and paved the way for Baltimore's victory. Boog Powell and Frank Robinson homered for Baltimore while Rico Petrocelli and Reggie Smith connected for Boston. The victory was the Orioles' ninth in their last 11 games.

Felipe Alou drove in four runs with a triple and a single and Ron Blomberg, just recalled from the minors, hit a two-run homer as the Yankees tagged young Pete Broberg with his first major league loss. Ron Swoboda, acquired earlier in the day from Montreal, delivered a run-scoring single in his first game as a Yankee and Jake Gibbs chipped in with a two-run homer.

A two-run homer by Tommy Harper and a solo homer by Johnny Briggs sparked Milwaukee's victory. Harper's homer came in the eighth inning and helped Skip Lockwood to his fourth victory against six losses.

Run-scoring singles by Carlos May and Tom Egan in the first inning provided the White Sox with the necessary runs to defeat California. Tommy John allowed six hits in eight innings of work to gain credit for his fifth victory of the year.

Funeral Set For Washington; San Diego Seeks Another Team

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Kenny Washington, who became the first black player in the National Football League in 1946.

Washington, 52, died at UCLA Medical Center Thursday night. He was admitted to the hospital last month for a heart and respiratory condition, and polyarteritis, an inflammation of the arteries of the body.

He played with the Los Angeles Rams after an outstanding career at UCLA. He retired from pro football in 1948.

Course Toughened; Scores Rise

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —Ben Crenshaw of Texas is a believer now.

After the second round of the NCAA golf tournament at the Tucson National Golf Club, the hot-shooting longhorn freshman said there was no way to toughen up the course to stop the assault by the college shooters. But, tourney officials found ways to do it—high pin placements and lengthening the tees. The result was only one score under 70 in Friday's third round.

John Mills of Houston retained the lead for the third straight day at 65-69-71—205, a tourney record 11-under par and three strokes ahead of Crenshaw and Eddie Pearce of Wake Forest. Crenshaw had an even par 72 for the third round while Pearce came in at 70.

Mike Killian, helping Florida to the team lead, was in fourth place at 211, Lanny Watkins, Wake Forest, Tom Watson, Stanford, and Dave Glenz, Oregon, were deadlocked at 212 as the tourney entered its final day today.

New Mexico State's Bruce McKenzie had Friday's best score, a 69, but trailed the leaders at 214.

Florida, the 1968 champion and only team to break Houston's domination on the team title in seven years, had a 853 total for a one stroke advantage over the Cougars. Back at 860 was Wake Forest, the favorites. Texas was next at 868.

Wayne Ziegler Bowls Hot 704 At Greenbrae

The younger generation had it over the over 30 set this past week of league bowling in Marin County. At least at Greenbrae Lanes.

Wayne Ziegler, 18, rolled games of 232, 235, 237 for a very consistent 704 series and Dave Mendelsohn, 17, had games of 235, 216 and 247 for a 698 to highlight the scores for the past week.

Paul Panholzer edged out Milt Schwartz by a pin, 871 to 870 at Nave Lanes in Ignacio for high four-game score of the week.

The week's honor roll:

Football

NEW YORK (UPI)—Free safety W.K. Hicks and lineman Roger Finnie have signed with the New York Jets for the 1971 National Football League season, it was announced Saturday by head coach and general manager Weeb Ewbank.

Hicks, entering his eighth pro season and second with the Jets, intercepted eight passes last year, the most by a Jet since 1964. Hicks was obtained from the Houston Oilers for a fifth-round college draft choice in January 1970. He ranks fifth among active American Football Conference players with 35 career interceptions.

Finnie, the regular offensive right tackle at the start of last season, suffered a dislocated ankle that forced him out of the team's last 11 games.

Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI)—Outfielder Ron Swoboda returned to New York on Friday—as a member of the Yankees.

The one-time New York Met was traded to the Yankees by Montreal in return for utility outfielder Ron Woods and a small amount of cash.

Swoboda hit .253 in 39 games for the Montreal Expos this season with no homers and six runs batted in.

Woods was assigned to Winnipeg in the International League by Montreal. He had a .250 average with the Yankees, being used mainly as pinchhitter.

Boxing

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Muhammad Ali, who meets Jimmy Ellis July 26 for the heavyweight fight, said he would have to lose about ten pounds before that bout.

Ali said he weighed 217 Friday night when he went a total of seven rounds here against three opponents in an exhibition. In an exhibition match, boxers are not required to weigh in.

Ali said he would weight in at 208 or 210 when he meets Ellis in the Astrodome.

Basketball

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—San Diexgo is looking for an American Basketball Association team to replace the National Basketball Association Rockets, who have been moved to Houston, it was disclosed Friday.

Marvin Kratter, former owner of the Boston Celtics of the NBA, told a news conference that he and a group of local residents hoped to purchase an ABA club in addition to the Western Hockey League San Diego Gulls.

Youngsters Gain In State Golf

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Four youngsters advanced to the semi-finals of the State Amateur Golf Tournament Friday as the older generation, including former champs Ernie Pieper and Verne Callison, lost out in double round play on the Pebble Beach Course.

Pieper, a 59-year-old two time tourney champ from San Jose who played in the 1929 Amateur, went down six and five before hot-shooting 23-year-old Doug Nelson of San Francisco, while Callison, 51, Sacramento also a two-time champ, was defeated by 18-year-old Aly Trompas of San Diego, two and one.

Other semifinalists were Sandy Galbraith, 25, San Carlos, the winner one up over Dick Runkle of Los Angeles, and Bruce Robertson, 18, of San Diego, who downed Artie McNickle three and two.

The wins set up the youngest group of semifinalists in the tourney. The best golf of the day was played by Nelson of the San Francisco Olympic Club, who was only one over par for his two matches.

The four triumphed over a field of 16 that was pared to eight for the quarter finals.

Vince's Tourney A Success

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Former Green Bay Packer Jim Taylor led the winning foursome at the first annual Vince Lombardi Memorial golf classic Friday which raised $20,000 for cancer research.

The best ball 18-hole tournament, studded with sports and entertainment celebrities, drew an estimated 4,500 spectators to the North Hills Country Club and even the weather cooperated to make the day a success.

Mrs. Marie Lombardi said her late husband, who led the Green Bay Packers through the 1960s as head coach and general manager and who died of cancer in Washington last fall, "would have loved it.' Their son, Vincent Lombardi, Jr., said the tournament benefit was "appropriate" because of his father's love of golf.

Three foursomes led by Taylor, former Packer lineman Bob Skoronski and Mayo Smith, manager of the 1968 world champion Detroit Tigers, tied for first place with scores of 15 under par.

STARR GOLFER — Green Bay Packer quarterback Bart Starr was one of many celebrities who played in the Vince Lombardi Memorial Golf Classic yesterday at Menomonee Fall, Wis. Starr broke out in a grin after sinking a chip shot to make a par four. (UPI Telephoto)

Today is Saturday, June 26, the 177th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Jupiter and Mercury.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

American author Pearl Buck was born June 26, 1892.

On this day in history:

In 1900 Dr. Walter Reed led a medical team in a campaign to wipe out yellow fever in the Panama Canal Zone.

In 1917 the first troops of the American Expeditionary Force reached France in World War I.

In 1944 the third largest French port, Cherbourg was liberated from the Nazis by the Allies.

In 1948 the U.S. began the "Berlin Airlift" to by-pass a Soviet road and rail blockade of the German capital.

A thought for today: Anatole France said, "We have medicines to make women speak; we have none to make them keep silence."

Postal Service Open House Set

An open house to observe "Postal Service Day" will be held next Thursday at the Corte Madera Post Office at 7 Pixley Avenue.

Employees will answer questions about the operation of the post office to visitors between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. according to Gerald R. Knock, officer in charge.

Groups wishing to tour the post office may make arrangements with the post office, Knock said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

There's Nothing Heroic To Bidding Game On A Finesse

As an experienced player, you often bid a game that depends on a finesse. You take the finesse and hold your breath. If it succeeds, you are a hero; if it fails, your partner curls his lip. Sometimes, however, you stumble over a finesse that has nothing to do with your contract. There's nothing heroic about trying that kind of finesse, whether it wins or loses.

LEADS ACE

West opened the ace of clubs since the bidding had made it clear that neither declarer nor dummy had a club stopper (since neither had been willing to bid notrump). East signaled encouragement with the eight of clubs, and West continued with the queen of clubs, winning the second trick.

West then shifted to the eight of hearts, and it was up to South to take the rest of the tricks. South looked suspiciously at West and then at East, but neither of them turned pale. Finally, South tried a finesse with dummy's queen of hearts.

East defeated the contract with the king of hearts. The defenders were well pleased with themselves even though South later guessed the location of the queen of spades and thus held his loss to 100 points.

SHOULD REFUSE

South should refuse the heart finesse by playing dummy's ace of hearts at the third trick. The contract will stand or fall on the play of the spades, and the heart finesse is needless and pointless.

After drawing two rounds of trumps, South should cash the king of spades and then lead the jack of spades for a finesse. If this succeeds (as it does), the contract is assured regardless of which opponent has the king of hearts. If the spade finesse fails, the contract is defeated again regardless of the king of hearts. Taking the heart finesse just gives the opponent an unnecessary chance to defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♥- Q 7 6 2
♠- 8 6 5
♦- 9 4
♣- A Q 10 5.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

The hand is not quite worth a response of two clubs followed by a later spade raise. If partner shows another sign of life, you will make sure of getting to game in spades; if he passes, you will probably not miss a game.

Dog Bites Boy, Mother Appeals

The mother of an 11-year-old boy, bitten Thursday by a dog, requests that its owners or anyone knowing the whereabouts of the dog, contact her to tell her if the dog has had its rabies shots.

Marilyn Baker of 30 Novato Street, Apt. 205 San Rafael, said that her son Danny was bitten about 1:30 p.m. yesterday while riding his bicycle on Bellam Boulevard.

The dog was described as a small German shepherd type brown and black.

No More Dams On Our Scenic Rivers

The Wild and Scenic Rivers Act (SB 107), authored by Marin Sen. Peter H. Behr and Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino of Ojai, would create a California wild and scenic rivers system.

Into the system will go the Eel, the Trinity and the Klamath Rivers in Northern California, the last of California's free-flowing rivers. They would be protected from further dam and reservoir construction.

AS THE POPULATION pressure pushes northward, accompanied by more tracts, concrete-lined ditches, and dams, the preservation of the last few natural rivers becomes of prime importance to all Northern California sportsmen and vacationers.

The Klamath, Eel and Trinity rank highest in the state in both steelhead catch and production of silver salmon.

They also provide California's major opportunities for canoeing, kayaking and rafting. The Klamath is one of the few rivers in California providing uninterrupted travel on moving water for more than two days.

ONE OF THE arguments against the wild rivers bill is that the State Department of Water Resources wants all options kept open in case water is needed for export to other parts of the state.

However, the Department of Water Resources, in its own bulletin of December, 1970, acknowledged that there is a breathing spell for any immediate water demands on the Eel, Trinity and Klamath. Water from those rivers will not be needed, possibly until the year 2020, and certainly not before the mid-1990's.

IF BY 1985, 14 years from now, the state cannot come up with a cheaper and less destructive water source and must call on the Eel, Trinity and Klamath, then it could in good conscience seek an amendment to the wild rivers act and still have enough lead time to build necessary facilities.

Another argument against the wild rivers bill was that it might block needed flood control work along the river banks.

To assuage those fears, Senator Behr announced he is willing to add an amendment to the bill, permitting any and all flood control work necessary for the protection of lives and property along those rivers, except for dams and reservoirs.

GIVEN THESE assurances — no hindrance to flood control work, and no immediate need to tap the rivers for water — we see no reason why SB 107 should not be enacted into law.

Once a river is dammed, it can never be restored to its original free-flowing status. The Klamath, Eel and Trinity deserve protection from such irreversible action.

Mill Valley Sewer Need

Of the six measures that will go before Mill Valley voters on Tuesday, Measure A, calling for sewer system improvement, is the most critical need.

Mill Valley is under the gun of the California Water Quality Control Board, which is demanding sewer improvements on threat of severe penalties.

Measure A asks the voters to authorize $450,000 in bonds for improvements to the sanitary sewer system and to the sewage treatment plant at 110 Camino Alto. An estimated 9 cents or 10 cents on the tax rate would pay for the sewer bonds over a 20 year period.

If the sewers are improved without the bond issue, the one-shot cost would be about 80 cents on the tax rate.

Next in importance is Measure D, the $300,000 bond issue for storm drain improvement. This goes hand in hand with the sewer improvement, because defective storm drainage facilities are adding to the overload on the sewer system.

Since two-thirds majority vote is needed on each measure, no one is too optimistic about approval of all six.

However, we believe that Measures A (sewer) and D (storm drain) are critical needs that should be approved, even at the expense of the other measures for a fire station, street maintenance, recreation and swimming facilities.

BOUQUETS & BRICKBATS

BOUQUETS to Judy Lee Watson of San Rafael and Denise Louise Howard of Sebastopol, who were selected to reign over the Sonoma-Marin Fair.

A BOUQUET to Sister M. Patricia, director of the Garden School at Dominican College, for pioneering in classroom integration of handicapped children with normal children. She has been selected to attend a seminar at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

BRICKBATS to pet owners who allow dogs to run at large in shopping areas and mess up the sidewalks.

A BOUQUET and best wishes to Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, appointed to head a new super department, which combines all health and medical services. We hope the new agency can cut costs by removing overlaps and duplications.

BRICKBATS to drivers who stop in the middle of the street sometimes two cars abreast, to chat with friends, and block traffic in both directions.

MAN BITES DOG

"I know there are ecologists trying to protect us, but they still make me nervous."

Gone Fishing

Raccoons, where are you? This is the cry of those Marinites whose raccoons no longer come each night after dark for food. We know at least three families in the Kentfield area that have been looking hopefully, but futilely for "their raccoons" for more than six weeks.

Have the neighbors stolen their affections by upping the ante from dog food to sardines and caviar? Has some dread malady decimated the raccoon population? Or have they, as suggested by a knowledgeable friend, gone fishing in the tidal creeks for the little fish that come upstream each spring?

We don't know. But if anyone sees ours, please tell them to come home and we will forgive their crass desertion.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Greatly Discouraged By Bennett Case

It discourages me greatly to read the reports of the Bennett trial. A man with his second arrest in less than a year for drunk driving, is seeminly avoiding justice after a jury of 12 judged him guilty in his latest arrest. Smallman said he had faith in the jury system, yet overturned their verdict - even before they had deliberated for hours without knowing of the verdict's predestined fate.

Smallman seemingly takes the testimony of Bennett's personal friends, wife, personal physician, two fired police officers, and one officer on "uncertain status" since last August, over that of three officers and one Marin General Hospital administrator. and then has the audacity to tell the jury "could well be you're right and I'm wrong." In my mind, he had better hope he's right. The dismissal of the case prevents the prosecution from using the almighty appeal, so effectively used by defendants these days to prolong justice.

I have two final statements. One: I was selected for jury duty this year, as are many others, and I hope they, as well as I, will not lose faith in the jury system because of this incident. Two: I voted for Smallman in the last election because I believed in his ideas concerning the current judicial system and his corrections for the problems we now face in our courts, but if this is an indication of what is to come, I don't want anymore of this type of change.

Why Disregard Dedicated Jurors?

Thank you for the editorial in the paper Monday, June 21, 1971. Your paper endorsed the now Hon. Judge Smallman. In my opinion his behavior in the recent case of William Bennett (State Board of Equalization), is a disgrace to the judiciary. No wonder people do not want to serve on the jury. It is an insult to their intelligence, in other words just pretending they are needed.

It seems to me the legislators would better serve their state, to enact new laws, which would improve court rules, instead of spending their time playing politics.

I wonder by what rule Mr. Smallman feels he can disregard those strong, dedicated 12 members of the jury who are summoned by the county to serve. Or give just reason why they can't serve.

Mr. Smallman came to my door asking support for Marin County Judgeship. To prove my point, I checked around to learn a little about him. I learned the Bar Association, the Independent-Journal, and some other source which didn't tell me anything about his character, didn't give me a reason to elect him for a judgeship. I did not support him. I hope those who did vote for him, will have the backbone to ask him why?

Help To Protect The Mountain Lion

What are we trying to prove?

The Russians all but wiped out the sea otter.

The Russians, Japanese, and Americans cut the whales down to a bare minimum.

Our national symbol, the American Eagle, is being shot and poisoned in Wyoming by the dozens.

The Brown Pelican is all but gone due to D.D.T.

How can we allow our own Fish and Game Department to wipe out the few remaining Mountain Lion?

Please help pass Assembly Bill 660, which will protect the Mountain Lion. Write your Assemblyman and Senator.

Thank you.

Temptation To Hide Official Errors

The recent expose of the "Pentagon Papers" on Vietnam shows clearly the different styles of Johnson and Nixon. . .

But beyond this, it exposes a serious flaw in our government's document classification systems. As it is, the originator determines the classification of a document. He classifies it and (maybe) declassifies it. The temptation to hide errors and embarrassing material which present no security threat to the country is obvious. It is especially obvious in this case where it covered up official lies.

This is a problem I remember discussing with a Navy commander in O.C.S. more years ago than I like to admit. Then it seemed a problem and apparently it remains so.

ART BUCHWALD

A Short Story By Agnew: My Friends In The Press

WASHINGTON — The summer is upon us, and once again it is our pleasure to list recommended books for people to take on their vacations.

NONFICTION

"My Friends in the Press," by Spiro Agnew, Southern Strategy Press — A heartwarming memoir chock-full of anecdotes concerning all the friends Mr. Agnew has made in the television and printed media since he has become Vice President of the United States. Six pages. Reading time: three minutes and 12 seconds.

"Investing in Lockheed for Fun and Profit," an amusing and valuable book on how to successfully manage a large aircraft company. It was originally printed to sell for $3.95 but because of inflation and unexpected overruns it is now priced at $199.

"ONE THOUSAND Reasons for Being in Vietnam." This three-set volume lists every reason ever given by a high government official as to why we were involved in Vietnam. It includes the pledges of four American Presidents, the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, pacification, Vietnamization, incursions and the secret Swiss Bank account numbers of all the leaders we have supported in Indochina. Printed through the courtesy of the New York Times.

"How to Take the Fun Out of Fun City," by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. In this hilarious book, Rockefeller recounts how he has played one practical joke after another on his good friend and fellow Republican, Mayor John Lindsay. Every time Lindsay thought he had something worked out for New York City, Rockefeller thought up something devilish to thwart him.

Lindsay is the perfect fall guy for Rockefeller's kind of humor and the reader is kept on the edge of his chair wondering what Rocky will do to him next.

"STATE INCOME Taxes and Why We Need Them," by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The governor of California writes with fervor on the necessity for state income taxes and why each citizen should be willing to pay them "even if it hurts." Citing case after case of people who would rather be on welfare or Medicare, Reagan makes a strong argument against loopholes in the tax laws that allow some California citizens to get off scot-free. The governor dedicates his book to his tax accountant.

"The Sensuous Telephone," by "M." The wife of a famous attorney general tells you what you can and cannot do with a telephone. She describes various ways of holding the phone, the positions used when talking on it, pre-phone-foreplay or how to work up excitement before making a call, and finally, how to fake it when you don't get a dial tone.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Nation Divided, Destroyed By Undeclared, Secret War

WASHINGTON — As a loyal member of the Nixon team, the Senate's minority leader, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, often finds himself caught between two fires. In conference after conference at the White House he has argued that the Seante must be given some piece of the Vietnam action.

The response is invariably: If we show any signs of yielding by setting a date for withdrawal, Hanoi will get the idea we're going to surrender. Then we will have no chance of sustaining a viable South Vietnamese government and army capable of resisting a communist takeover.

SO SCOTT GOES back up to Capitol Hill to play the part of the little Dutch boy with his finger in the dike. There was no difficulty over the Hatfield-McGovern amendment. Well in advance Scott had predicted the vote would be 53 to 39. The vote on the "end-the-war amendment" to the Selective Service Act was 55 to 42.

The politics and the personalities of the two sponsors played a part. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is the only announced Democratic candidate for president. A victory over President Nixon would have added to his stature.

MARK HATFIELD of Oregon, one of two or three leading Republican doves, has been touted as a potential candidate against President Nixon in the Republican primaries next year. Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr., who is preparing to go into the primaries, has several times said that Hatfield would be a more impressive challanger. Hatfield's position is that if Mr. Nixon means to run for a second term, he will stay out.

The defeat of Hatfield-McGovern and a similiar resolution in the House is far from ending the pressures on Capitol Hill to force some action on the President looking to an end of the fighting. Two of the most-respected senators, Frank Church of Idaho, a Democrat, and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, Republican, have been redrafting a proposal to be hopefully voted on before the summer recess beginning Aug. 8.

THE AMENDMENT AS presently drafted would declare it national policy to withdraw all land, sea and air forces from Indochina. It prohibits any Department of Defense funds or any other funds, including foreign aid money, being used for the purpose of engaging the armed forces of the United States in further hostilities in North or South Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia or Thailand. Defensive air attacks would be prohibited unless American troops were, to use the phrase in the Constitution, in imminent danger. This means there could be no residual force nor any bombing out of Thailand or from aircraft carriers.

Since the repeal of the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, the President has no authority to do any of these things, the amendment asserts. It acknowledges, in effect, that only the commander-in-chief and not the Congress can set a date for a complete pull-out. "The President should set a date for withdrawal," the amendment says.

THIS IS A sweeping proposal, even though it stops short of fixing a deadline. Yet it appears likely to get a majority vote when it comes up. Sen. George Aiken, the ranking Republican on the foreign relations committee, and majority leader Mike Mansfield both favor it.

The Cooper-Church amendment a year ago was adopted by a vote of 58 to 37. This owed something to the violent reaction in the country to the Cambodian "incursion." Toward the end of the session it was approved by a Senate-House conference.

PRESUMABLY THIS time there will be no such emotional push. Nevertheless, the feeling in the Senate, and increasingly in the House, is deep seated that the Congress is a helpless bystander before the relentless sweep of events dividing and destroying the nation. It is a fusion of frustration and growing resentment over an undeclared and, in no small part, a secret war.

My Lai, the Calley trial, drug addiction, fragging, a demoralized army without a mission — the chamber of horrors seems endless. As the disclosures in the Pentagon history show once again, no one can be sure what next day's newspaper will reveal. This is what the White House seems unable to understand.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Tiny Arab States Vie For Oil-Rich Islands

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

A handful of small islands lying in the Persian Gulf may be the deciding factor as to whether the world's richest source of oil is to move safely past Dec. 31, 1971, toward a peaceful future or whether it is to sink into a morass of feudal jealousies and cold war rivalries.

Dec. 31 marks the end of British responsibility in an area where for more than a century it's guns have kept the peace among tiny sultanates, emirates and shiekdoms, overseeing trade, driving out the pirates and more lately holding at bay outside forces casting covetous eyes upon its riches.

BOTH SAUDI Arabia, bordering Bahrain, Qatar and the seven Trucial states, and Iran just across the gulf hope to take over the British role.

Theirs so far is a gentlemanly rivalry.

But around the corner to the south, where the Persian Gulf opens into the Arabian sea, communist guerrillas are battling to overthrow the Sulten of Oman and set up what they describe as a Chinese-style communal government. They are opposed by Oman's army with British air support.

Leftist forces with varying sources of outside support seek the overthrow of others among the small Arab states.

THE ISLANDS at issue are Howard, or Young Camel, at present ruled as part of Bahrain but claimed by Qatar, and three others strategically located at the mouth of the gulf.

Two known as The Tombs are claimed by the trucial state of Ras al Khaima and the third, called Abu Musa, by a second trucial state, Sharja.

Other trucial states are Abu Dhabi, Dubai, Ajman, Fujaira and Umm al Quaiwain. Together, the trucial states plus Bahrain and Qatar have population of not much more than 400,000 but their oil wealth is almost inestimable.

ANCIENT FEUDS, uncertain boundaries and still untapped oil riches lying beneath the Persian Gulf account for the intense rivalries.

Since early 1968 the trucial states, Bahrain and Qatar have sought some sort of union to replace British influence.

Saudi Arabia has pressed for a nine-member union and her influence is credited with preventing efforts to achieve it from falling apart before this.

Iran has declared she will go along with whatever the emirates themselves decide.

But about her claims to the islands which form a bottleneck at the gulf's mouth she is adamant.

SHE EVEN HAS warned Britain, her ally in CNETO, that she will fire on British aircraft making unauthorized passes over the islands.

But union among the nine remains far off and may prove impossible. Still in dispute are the site of a capital, representation in a federal assembly, budget contributions and voting procedures in the rulers' supreme council.

British troop withdrawals are continuing, now down to fewer than 4,000.

LESSONS OF MAO

Pint-Sized Rebellion Looms In The Mideast

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

BEIRUT (UPI)—In a country where a bootprint in the sand is the spoor of the enemy, a few hundred barefoot tribesmen, exslaves and illiterates are fighting to join a world they scarcely know.

A handful of Communist Chinese are instructing them in the political philosophy of Mao Tse-Tung and Karl Marx, of whom the vast majority have never heard, and reports say they are winning their war.

The rebels are Dhofaris, who inhabit a 36,000-square-mile province of the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman at the foot of the Arabian peninsula. This June 9 they celebrated the sixth anniversary of an uprising aimed at wresting Dhofar from the rule of Sultan Said Ben Qabous.

THE DHOFARIS are a backward, fighting people whose isolation has robbed them of any knowledge of the outside world. They know nothing of industrial progress. They lack the simplest consumer items such as shoes, watches or pens.

The despotic rule of Said Ben Taymour, the present sultan's father who was deposed last year, ensured that the Dhofaris —along with the other inhabitants of the Sultanate —should remain fixed in their feudal ignorance. He built no roads, schools or hospitals. He prohibited trade and travel and discouraged farming and imports of foodstuffs. He also banned Dhofaris from military service —a galling restriction on their instinctive militant spirit.

The old sultan's restrictions, many Arabists believe, were largely responsible for the success of the revolutionary movement in Dhofar.

It was inaugurated in 1965 and the first act of violence occurred in 1966 when palace guards fired at the sultan —and missed.

The abortive assassination initiated the active stage of the rebellion and tribesmen took to the hills to start harassment campaigns. It was not until September, 1968, however, that the revolution really got off the ground.

A CONFERENCE at Hamreen moved the rebels from narrow regionalism to seek independence for the entire Persian Gulf, thus ensuring wide attention and attracting outside — mainly Chinese — support.

The conference changed the movement's name from the Dhofar Liberation Front to the Popular Front for the Liberation of the Occupied Arab Gulf. It adopted Marxism as its basis ideology.

Since then the rebels have achieved important military successes and now control three-quarters of the province, which is most of the countryside, and all coastal towns except the capital, Salalah.

The rebels liberated slaves — slave dealing was a prosperous and legal trade —and took them into their ranks. Other slaves fled their masters and joined the rebels for freedom. Most were descendants of East African Negroes brought to Arabia generations ago.

British experts who officer the Sultan's army in opposition to the Dhofaris estimate the rebel strength at 800 men with a 1,000-strong People's Militia.

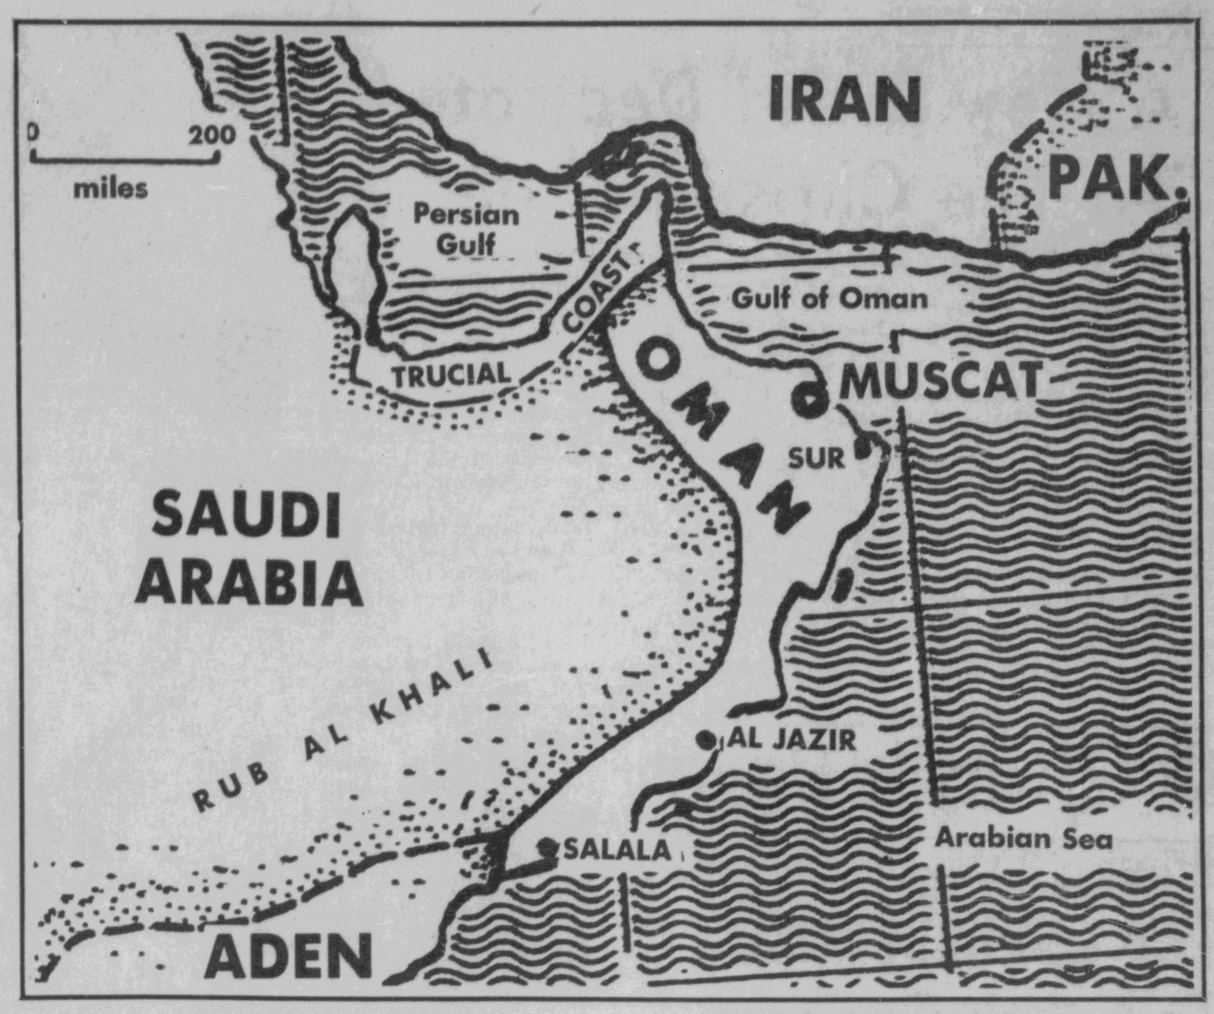
THE BRITISH say there are 10 Chinese experts with the rebels, but that their activity is political rather than military.

The 10,000-man Omani army has 40 British regular officers on loan and 200 retired British officers under contract. The commanding officer is Col. Hugh Oldman, of the British Army.

The government soldiers are mainly Pakistani and Indian

The British are realistic about the difficulties of crushing a popular uprising in a terrain ideal for guerrilla warfare, even with vastly superior men, weapons and equipment. Their hope is that the new regime will progressively drop the old restrictions, introducing education, medical facilities, work projects and opportunities which will remove many of the reasons the Dhofaris went to war.

COL. OLDMAN is now recruiting Dhofaris and Omanis as soldiers and hopes that by the time the new sultan's liberalization measures take effect, the army will have contained rebel operations and stopped the flow of weapons.



UPRISING BREWING — This map spots the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman at the foot of the Arabian Peninsula where the Dhofaris — barefoot tribesmen, ex-slaves, and illiterates — are fighting to join a world they scarcely know. Behind The News

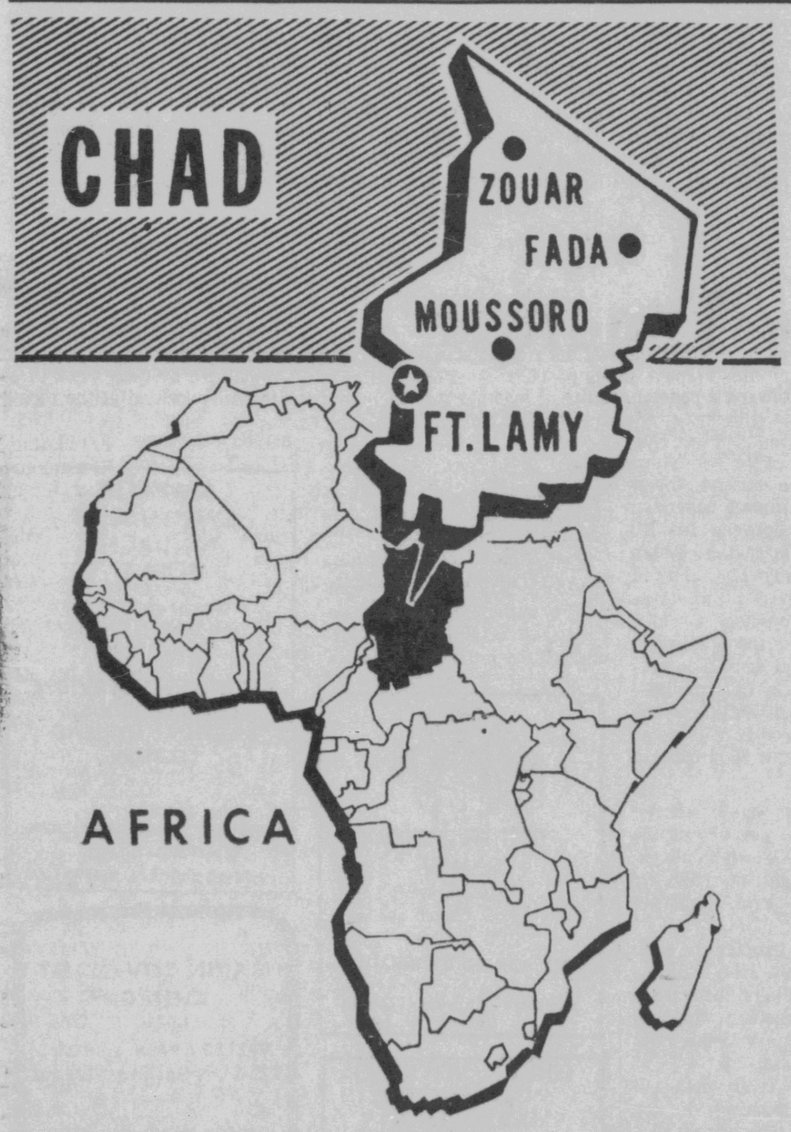
Saturday, June 26, 1971 — Independent-Journal, 29



WOOING AMERICANS — This UPI newsmap spots Chad, in north central Africa, which is now trying to boost its economic development by opening its doors to more than $6 million of American investments, including oil.

Chad Going After The Oil Kingpins

FORT LAMY, Chad (UPI)—With its five-year rebellion apparently suppressed, Chad is trying to boost economic development by opening its doors to more than $6 million worth of American investments.

President Francois Tombalbaye said in an interview with UPI that the influx of American technicians prospecting for oil and naphtha has the full approval of Chad's former mother country, France.

"I put the question to President Georges Pompidou. He told me: accept all the investments that they offer you. I only ask you one thing, that is to conserve the French culture and keep your friendship for us," the President said.

WITH THE BLESSING of Paris, Chad has recently granted to an American oil firm a permit to search for what it hopes will be important oil fields in the region of Ennedi near Chad's frontier with Libya. Government officials said they believed the American firm sought the permit only when it was certain Chad's small war against rebellious tribesmen, fought with aid of the Fremch army and Foreign Legion, had neared a halt.

The government officials said one of the world's 10 biggest oil firms in September 1969 received two oil prospecting permits, one for the region around Fort Archambault in the south and the second for Lake Chad in the center, west to Largeau in the north.

Government officials said the two permits involved a minimum investment of $5.6 million, but that sum already has been exceeded. The permits are good for five years and can be renewed.

The president said he believed foreign engineers will strike oil by the end of 1971, an event that may mark the point of departure in the economic evolution of Chad, one of Africa's richest nations in natural resources.

AMERICAN TECHNICIANS also are searching for deposits of naphtha. Some government officials are of the opinion that naphtha even more than oil will be the future wealth of Chad.

Chad is incredibly rich in natron (sodium carbonate), tungsten, tin, diamonds, uranium and copper, all until now unexploited.

Chad's hopeful economic book and the apparent end of the rebellion in the major part of the country were the two principal points forcefully driven home by President Tombalbaye during the five-day congress at Fort Archambault, capital of the southern part of the country, of the ruling Progressive Chadian Party in early April.

DAWN OF NEW ERA: CITY-COUNTY UNIONS

Such Mergers Are Called The Most Promising Federalism Advance Since Constitution Days

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Richard G. Lguar, 39, is a handsome, articulate Rhodes Scholar imbued with a desire to improve the cumbersome apparatus of local govrnment in the United States.

Four years ago, he was elected mayor of Indianapolis. Two years ago, he won approval of legislation consolidating the city of Indianapolis and surrounding Marion County under a single, unified government.

Such city-county mergers, aimed at eliminating costly overlapping, duplication and confusion of authority, are regarded by many political scientists as the most promising advance in American federalism since the constitution. But for a variety of reasons they also have encountered opposition during the past 15 years, merger proposals have been defeated in local elections about twice as often as they have been approved.

AMONG THE consolidations achieved since World War II were those of Miami, Dade County, Fla.; Nashville-Davidson County, Tenn.; Virginia Beach-Princess Anne County, Va.; South Norfolk-Norfolk County, Va.; Jacksonville-Duval County, Fla.; Indianapolis-Marion County, Carson City-Ormsby County, Nev.; Juneau-Bureau of Juneau, Alaska.

Among the communities that turned down mergers in the same time were Tampa-Hillsborough, Fla.; Chattanooga-Hamilton County, Tenn.; St. Louis-St. Louis County, Mo.; Memphis-Shelby County, Tenn.; Richmond-Henrico County, Va.; Durham City and County, N.C.; Knoxville-Knox County, Tenn.; Albuquerque-Bernalillo County, N.M.

Some mergers have been more complete than others. The so-called "metro government" of Tennessee's Nashville-Davidson County area operates the schools, the parks, and the in Marion County outside Indianapolis—Beech Grove, Lawrence and Speedway. Police and fire protection, though brought together under a new department of public safety, pretty much follow the old boundaries.

Often a large central city merges with the county, as in the case of Nashville and Davidson County, or Jacksonville with Duval County. In the case of Dade County, ,Fla., several cities joined—Miami, Miami Beach, Coral Gables, Hialeah, Homestead.

A CHIEF complaint against consolidation often is that the merger has not gone far enough. There are, as well, racial implications in some mergers. As whites have fled to the suburbs and blacks have made up a larger part of the core city, the blacks have begun to find new political power. A merger, by throwing an entire metropolitan area under one umbrella, may lessen this black power.

In Indianapolis, Negroes constituted 25 per cent of the vote before merger. After merger they make up only 15 per cent. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference unsuccessfully brought suit to block the merger on grounds it would reduce the possibility of black leadership at the mayoral level.

Former Indiana state Sen. Patrick Chavis, who opposed the merger, said it "gives control of the governmental machinery to those who are not concerned with inner city problems."

In Nashville, however, Negro voters favored consolidation. They make up 19 per cent of the population in the county and have six of the 40 council seats.

CITY-COUNTY consolidation is not a brand new idea.

New Orleans and the county of Orleans in Louisiana were consolidated in 1805. Boston and Suffolk County in Massachusetts merged in 1822. The city and county of Philadelphia coalesced in 1854, the city and county of New York in 1874, the city and county of Honolulu in 1907. These mergers all were accomplished by action of state or territorial legislatures.

Later, consolidations were attempted by voter referendum. Many were defeated —Oakland and Alameda County, Calif; St. Louis City and County, Mo.; Portland and Multnomah County, Ore.; Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, Pa., and Macon-Bobb County, Ga.

HERE IS how things are going in some of the mergers:

Miami-Dade County —Survival perhaps has been "Metro's" biggest accomplishment. It was created in 1958 to bring some order out of the chaos and confusion of 27 municipalities that make up Dade County. It has been challenged several times at the polls, and Miami Beach and Hialeah threatened to secede.

Nashville-Davidson County— Metro government was created in 1963 after having been turned down in 1958. Six existing satellite cities were permitted to stay in existence, but no new ones may be incorporated. There is a strong mayor-council form of government, and the mayor, elected for a four-year term, appoints all department heads, prepares the budget and legislative program, and has a budget item veto. There is a consolidated school system and a metropolitan court.

In almost every consolidation, even where there has been political or racial dispute, observers say there are better police, fire, health, hospital, welfare, sanitary, sewer and transportation services. "Caring for roads and streets and providing the other public services," one Baton Rouge official said, "requires the same type of skills and equipment inside and outside the central city limits."

SALT Stalemate: Nuclear Weapons

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon recently announced with considerable fanfare — including an unusual noon television appearance —that the United States and the Soviet Union had agreed to a formula that could produce a strategic arms limitation treaty.

Since his May 20 announcement, most of the public discussion has centered on the relative priority to be given offensive and defensive nuclear missiles in the next round of strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks.

There has been almost no mention of tactical atomic weapons, yet the hard fact is that one of the chief threats to the success of the talks is how to define a tactical nuclear weapon.

The United States has at least 12,000 such weapons scattered around Europe and Asia and aboard U.S. ships.

THE SOVIET Union, with no hope of using similar limited range weapons against the United States has taken the position that there is no difference between tactical and strategic nuclear weapons as long as they can reach her territory.

Americans for the most part have tended to take a rather casual view of the matter, partly because of ignorance of the fact that many strategic atomic weapons carry the equal of 1 million tons of TNT —50 times more than the A-Bombs which wiped out Hiroshima and Nagasaki in World War II.

U.S. military experts also speak disparagingly of such weapons as relatively small — which they are, compared to the 5 million ton strategic warheads packed by Minuteman missiles or B52 bombers.

Another reason for public unconcern may be the description of some "tactical nukes" as land mines and artillery shells intended only for "battlefield" use.

In contrast, one of America's most articulate writers on the subject, Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, believes tactical nuclear weapons are the most dangerous weapons ever invented. He calls them "the percussion cap for a full nuclear exchange."

LAPP, A physicist who worked on the original A-Bomb, believes it is nonsense to accept the military view that a limited war could be fought with tactical nuclear weapons without escalating to an all-out nuclear exchange between the major powers.

Many civilian experts agree. Congress never has specifically authorized deploying these weapons. Congressional committees have not even been able to get full information on the diplomatic aspects of their presence in some countries.

A special Senate foreign relations subcommittee investigating U.S. commitments overseas last year was refused information on secret agreements involved in the deployment of the weapons in Europe.

In its report, the subcommittee deplored the fact that most Americans do not know the tactical nuclear weapons are "stationed in countries all around the world." It said the executive branch "claim that this subject is of such high classification it could not be discussed before this foreign relations subcommittee under any circumstances."

"THE SUBCOMMITTEE believes this position is obviously absurd, is used to cover up questionable policy and practice, is unconstitutional, and is against the best interests of the United States," the report said.

Chairman John O. Pastore of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee has been quoted as estimating the total U.S. stockpile of tactical nuclear weapons "in the tens of thousands."

As best as can be determined unofficially, there are at least 4,000 such weapons in Asia, mostly at U.S. bases in Okinawa, Nationalist China and the Philippines, and possibly in Thailand and Korea, or aboard U.S. ships in the Pacific.

Most of the Asian weapons are in storage rather than on actual deployment. On the other hand, more than 7,500 tactical atomic weapons are deployed in West Germany, Turkey, Greece, Italy, and Britain, most of them combat ready and ranging from about one-quarter kiloton (nearly 100 times as powerful as the conventional TNT block-busters of World War II) to almost one megaton (the equivalent of 1 million tons of TNT).

Since even the "smallest" tactical nuclear weapon can demolish a sizeable town, the principal criteria for defining a tactical or strategic atomic weapon involves how it is used.

BOTH THE United States and the Soviet Union have strategic arsenals consisting of several hundred multi-megaton land-based missiles, bombs carried by long-range strategic aircraft and missile-firing nuclear submarines.

All of these are designed to inflict intolerable levels of destruction on the enemy with the result that massive nuclear strikes are deterred —theoretically at least —by the certainty of equally massive retaliation.

The purpose of tactical weapons is more limited, so they are not even included in the strategic inventory. They are intended for "battlefield use" against combat targets instead of civilian populations.

Lapp told UPI in an interview that there are two fallacies in this definition. One is that even a small battlefield in heavily populated West Germany would involve thousands of civilians — many of them possibly the wives and children of U.S. troops stationed there.

THE OTHER, Lapp said, is the certainty of escalation.

"Say you're the good guys, and are doing well against an invading Communist force," he said. "Suddenly you are being clobbered by nuclear artillery shells fired from cannons 10 or 12 miles behind enemy lines. Naturally, you will call on your own heavy weapons to cauterize the area of enemy fire. But the enemy will naturally have to call up heavier stuff to stop your return fire and so you'll have to radio for planes to attack him deeper behind his lines and you are in a cycle with no possible ending short of a full nuclear exchange."

The Pentagon believes otherwise. Although its experts admit privately that their planning is complicated by the presence of U.S. dependents in Europe, they insist that the smaller tactical weapons could be used within defined limits.

This Week In The World

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The case of the federal government against The New York Times and Washington Post over publication of secret Pentagon documents reached the Supreme Court late this week.

The Times asked the Supreme Court, which is expected to end its current session Monday, to consider an appeals court ruling sending its case back to a district judge.

The government appealed the Post case. A Washington appeals court said the Post could publish the documents because in its opinion publication would not harm national security.

The Boston Globe, Chicago Sun-Times, Los Angeles Times and the Knight Newspaper Inc. chain joined the Times and Post in publishing stories based on the 47-volume Pentagon report. The Globe also was enjoined from publishing any more of the series until a court hearing next Tuesday.

The government has argued publication of the report could damage national security and foreign relations. The newspapers have argued that publication would not be harmful and the public has a right to know what is in the report.

THE ARCHETYPES

A New Breed Dedicated To The Christian Life

By MARY BURNS

Larry Heard and Bobby Evans are archetypes. They represent a breed of young adults who are unapologetically Christian yet very "this worldly" in their commitment to make heaven on earth a reality.

They are among 850 college students in the United States and 91 in California appointed by the Southern Baptist Convention as student summer missionaires.

California's 91 recently spent a weekend at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry, in an orientation session, prelude to 10 weeks of work with career missionaries of the 11-million-member Protestant body.

Nineteen-year-old Larry Heard is from Grambling, La. He is a student at Northwestern State University and someday hopes to teach acting. His introduction to the stage came, naturally for him, in the church.

Although he wears a fairly impressive Afro, mild-mannered Heard could hardly be called a militant. He has, however, participated in "peaceful demonstrations," on his campus for causes in which he believes.

Twenty-year-old Bobby Evan's Georgia drawl betrays his birth in the Peach State. He is a sociology major at Georgia College, Milledgeville and will enter a theological seminary next year after his graduation.

An unpredictable series of events brought the pair from their hometowns to the Strawberry seminary and San Francisco's Fillmore Community Center for the summer.

Heard applied to the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention last fall after his campus minister encouraged him.

Evans originally applied to work in Puerto Rico but the overseas assignment folded. His conclusion: "God has a hand in my being here."

Their responsibilities include teaching vacation Bible school, supervising a recreational program and relating to the students of the large, black ghetto.

The two students had not met before they came for orientation. Both admit their previous church experience has not prepared them for working as an equal with a member of another race. They apparently expect their mutual commitment to God to bridge the culture gap.

"It's sometimes hard for me to relate to black people even as much as I want to," Evans says. "That's when the Lord has to do his thing."

They were prepared, however, for the antireligious attitudes they have found in the Bay Area, even though they are from "Bible Belt" states where the Southern Baptist Convention is strongest.

"I haven't been surprised by San Francisco" Heard says. "I expected to see people who have not realized God is, and I've found this to be true."

Evans says his greatest wish is that his contemporaries may embrace Christ as he had; he knows his wish may be long in coming. But he is not by this reality.

SUMMER SERVICE — Larry Heard (left) and Bobby Evans (right) seem to blend into the campus atmosphere of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary as they gleefully anticipate their summer in the Bay Area. The two were among 91 college students from all over the United States who gathered at the seminary recently for a preparatory orientation before they began 10 weeks of Christian ministry in California. (Independent-Journal photo)

"I know I will have problems as I seek to relate Christ today."

"People, especially now, find it hard to accept Christianity. But I see this as a challenge, and I feel that if something isn't a challenge, it's a waste of time."

Evans expressed definite ideas about why such disenchantment with religion exists.

"You have to come in contact with the Word of God." he says. "You can't force anything on people. When I do something for God it has to be motivated and led by his spirit. The confusion comes when I start doing my thing instead of his thing."

"A lot of people try to push their cultures off on people. Cultures are different but the work of God is the same for everyone, and this is what should be shared."

The young college student said he is occasionally embarrassed about his beliefs. "I sometimes find myself apologizing for myself. This is bad. Why should I apologize for what I am. People should accept me just as I must accept them."

The attitudes of these two young men reflect those of all the student summer missionaries, whose assignments reflect youth's mushrooming interest in community involvement.

The 91 California summer missionaries will work in coffeehouses, beach and resort ministries, migrant camps, ghettos, drug rehabilitation centers, government offices, national parks, clinics, — and the list goes on endlessly!

Some were appointed by their state Baptist students organizations and will receive no compensation for the summer. Others, appointed directly by the Atlanta based home mission agency will receive $300 for the 10 weeks.

Very few are preparing for church-related careers. They represent various ethnic backgrounds; many are not Baptist. They came, they say, after much prayer because they needed to be involved. Some came not knowing what their assignments would be.

Perhaps the greatest testimony to the value of the summer missions program is that they come back. Many California appointees are repeaters serving for the second or third time in a program which not only gives career missionaries a rest break but provides these students with an opportunity for self-evaluation and, as Bobby puts it "more insight into what God wants me to do witp my life."

Top Graham Aide To Speak Tomorrow

Robert H. Jones, associate crusade director for next month's Northern California Billy Graham Crusade, will speak at tomorrow's 9:30 a.m. service at Marin Covenant Church, which meets at Miller Creek Junior High School in Marinwood.

Jones has been with the Bill Graham Association since October 1968. He has been in the Bay Area for the past couple of months teaching "Christian Life and Witness Classes," in preparation for the crusade which will be held in the Oakland Coliseum July 23-Aug. 1.

He is a member of the Milwaukie, Ore., Covenant church and is active in projects of the Evangelical Covenant Church of America.

Guest Speaker Tomorrow At Valley Baptist Church

Rev. William Hunter, recently appointed a campus minister by the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the Valley Baptist Church.

He is substituting for Rev. Warren Conrad who is away from the church this weekend.

Hunter spent several years in Madagascar in the literature ministry field. Prior to that he was in the Congo, but was forced to evacuate in 1960.

Sunday services at the church are 8:15 and 11 a.m.

Five-Day Assembly Announced

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans were announced this week for a five-day district assembly at Kezar Stadium July 14-18 by members of the Jehovah's Witnesses in Northern California and Western Nevada.

James Wadding, circuit supervisor, said Kezar Stadium will be transformed into a "giant place of worship" for the 30,000 expected to attend, including a delegation from Marin County.

The assembly will feature speakers from the group's world headquarters in Brooklyn.

It is one of 49 assemblies that are scheduled to be held this summer in the United States and Canada.

New Liturgy Being Used At Services

A new church liturgy, created by Margaret Albanese, Bay Area poet on the "Canticle of Praise" is being used at both the 8 and 10 a.m. services at the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon.

A special event at the church tomorrow will be a 7:30 p.m. concert of renaissance, baroque and contemporary music by the Christiansen Quartet, directed by Leo Christiansen, who is music director of St. Stephan's Episcopal Church in Tiburon.

An Asian Center Wins Endorsement

TOKYO (LWF) — Continued investigation into the possible establishment of an Asian Center for Advanced Studies (ACAS) has been endorsed by the Commission on Church Cooperation of the Lutheran World Federation.

As proposed by Dr. Won Yong Ji of Geneva, Asia secretary in the LWF Church Cooperation Department, the goal of such a center would be the development of a new high level of theological and academic proficiency among Asian churchmen in an ecumenical context. He noted that such a center has been urged for several years among Asia churches.

Single Service Is Initiated By Church

The United Methodist Church of Novato has initiated a single Sunday service for the summer.

The single service is held at 9 a.m. with special activities for children from nursery through the sixth grade.

'Tent Kamp' Underway In Fairfax

"The Lord's Joyful", teen folk singing group from Christ Lutheran, Long Beach, is a part of a weekend Tent Kamp program at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church in Fairfax.

Two-hundred Lutheran teenagers from 24 Bay Area congretions are camping out on the church grounds.

One feature event of Tent Kamp today was a folk festival, featuring Jim Valley, formerly "Harpo" of Paul Revere and the Raiders.

Tent Kamp speakers include Ken Berven, evangelism staff member of the American Lutheran Church; Rev. Lud Siqueland, regional youth director of the American Lutheran Church, and Rev. Erling Wold, pastor of St. Olaf Lutheran Church, Garden Grove.

The public is invited to the closing worship service in the outdoor chapel at 9 a.m. tomorrow, featuring Jim Valley and a sermon by Wold.

Ecumenical Vacation Church School Set

An ecumenical vacation church school will be held Aug. 9 through Aug. 19 at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Participating churches will be the host church, First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church and St. Raphael's Catholic Church.

Scholars Piecing Story Together

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN

PARIS (UPI)—Scholars from three continents are piecing together parts of a flimsy jigsaw puzzle that may help to shed new light on the early struggling years of Christianity — and the heresies that plagued it.

One view is that when the jigsaw of papyrus paper is finally put together, the documents will take over where the Dead Sea scrolls left off in the history of Mediterranean religions.

There is nothing new about the discovery of the papyrus fragments. They form part of a 13-book library that was discovered in 1945, buried in jars in a Roman cemetery at Nag Hammadi on the Nile between Cairo and Luxor.

They were quickly identified as Gnostic writings—a religious movement that existed side by side with early Christianity and was closely related to it.

But only in recent years have scholars been able to get down to work on restoring the documents. Many full pages, written in two dialects of the Coptic language (ancient Egyptian), survive but much more is in fragments, either torn by careless dealers or eaten by worms.

That is what the scholars are fitting together, and translating. The project director, Prof. James M. Robinson, of the Institute for Antiquity and Christianity of Claremont Graduate School in California, said the first volumes of a facsimile edition should come off the presses next year.

"One of the values of this for historians and the like is not that we get very much more in the way of tidbits on the history of Jesus, but we do catch sight of opinions of new testament writers, and those real movements that (Saint) Paul attacked in his letters because they were infiltrators...that led (Christians) in ways he had not intended," Prof. Robinson said in an interview.

Prof. Robinson is among those who believe that Gnosticism was more of a religion in its own right than a heresy from the Christian church. The "Nag Hammadi library" are writings of "non-Christian Gnosticism," in his view.

"For the first time we are getting documentation on areas of non-Christian Gnosticism," he said. "This is the first hunk of non-Christian Gnostic literature of an early period."

He dated the earliest stories of the Nag Hammadi collection at anywhere between 100 BC and 100 AD. He said St. Paul's writings already had allowed scholars to guess at what the Gnostic movements —which spread all over the Mediterranean world and were a serious rival to early Christianity—were up to "and what the scholars have deduced is now beefed up" by the Nag Hammadi library.

"The running battle carried on by Paul in the 50's of the First Century shown in Corinthians is brought into focus by this library," Prof. Robinson said.

As for the Gnostics, he says the Gospel of St. John is different from the others "because it came from another world of thought, because it came from a gnostic element."

"The library really makes it possible for historians to see the give and take of early Christian thinking," he said. "We've never had that possibility before."

The international project is being backed by Egypt, which retains custody of the library in Cairo's Coptic Museum.

Grants totalling $150,000 from the U.S. National Endowment of Humanities and the collaboration of UNESCO have also enabled the work to continue.

'There Is Too Much Violence All Around Us,' Says Sid Stinson

By WAT TAKESHITA

Marin County Undersheriff Sidney Stinson is a career law officer who doesn't look like one.

He's got a contagious smile and easygoing manner that belie years of tough training and police experience that rank him among the best qualified of Marin's finest.

He looks more like a business man than the dedicated lawman who held the state pistol championship for two years in a row, in 1960 and 1961. He was a member of the county's crack pistol team that captured the state championship three consecutive years.

IN HIS 20 years of service under three different sheriffs, Stinson has been in some tight situations, at both ends of the gun barrel. But the dangerous and often thankless work, that leaves some professional crime fighters ruthless and embittered, has failed to mark Stinson. Despite the tensions of the times and the added burden of Civic Center security, Undersheriff Stinson still retains that infectious grin and the unassuming manner of a man who is not overwhelmed by the responsibility placed upon him.

There's nothing stiff or formal about him when he approaches a suspect, talks to his men or describes to friends how that big fish got away.

When he describes an investigation or submits his activity report, the description is natural and spontaneous.

INSTEAD OF saying, "We approached the suspect, attempted an arrest, met with resistance, and used minimum force necessary to subdue subject and apprehend same," Stinson would probably tell you:

"Yeah, the guy put up a good fight, but we nabbed him without any trouble."

In actions and words, the warmth of the man shows through. His eyes are sharp, but even they seem to have a twinkle.

BORN IN ARIZONA on June 4, 1929, he ran away from home at age 14, lied about his age and joined the Merchant Marine. By the time it was discovered he was two years under the minimum age, Stinson had won a free trip to India, Australia and South America.

They dumped him off unceremoniously in Savannah, Ga., with just enough train fare to get him back to Marin where his mother lived.

His father, a commercial fisherman, operated salmon boats out of Ketchikan, Alaska. Stinson alternated between Marin and Alaska, attending Tamalpais High School and schools in Alaska and College of Marin. He spent summers at sea, working on his father's salmon boats.

IN 1950, HE applied for a job as a Marin County deputy sheriff and began his law enforcement career under Sheriff Walter Sellmer in April of 1951.

He rose to sergeant under the late Sheriff David Menary and then made lieutenant, captain and undersheriff under the present sheriff, Louis P. Mountanos. During the 20 years, he has handled every job in the sheriff's office except juvenile work.

Stinson was a director in the Marin Mental Health Association and initiated a program of training officers in handling mental cases about nine years ago.

THE TWINKLING EYES and warm smile of Marin County Undersheriff Sidney Stinson, facing camera contradict the public's stereotype concept of the veteran career law officer. Stinson, seen here in conversation with one of the department's deputies, Douglas Ohlson, has seen 20 years of service under three different sheriffs, and has gained a reputation as a police officer and administrator with compassionate and progressive ideas.

IT HAD BEEN one of his biggest concerns that so many agencies such as the mental health offices were open only from 8 to 5, whereas police were in contact with people who needed such professional services round the clock and on weekends.

Marin's Mental Health Center at Marin General Hospital is now open 24 hours a day. "It's a big improvement," said Stinson.

The propsed Suicide Prevention Center and the Big Brothers organization have his strong backing. "I think they're tremendous. These are the kinds of things people should be involved in, and they should be available round the clock."

THE UNDERSHERIFF has known his share of narrow escapes but he refuses to go into the specifics. "There's too much violence all around us, and our aim should be to avoid it if at all possible," he observed.

Stinson was away on vacation at the time of the Aug. 7 shootout at the Marin Hall of Justice. However, he was one of the officers who escorted Angela Davis from New York to Marin.

One change he would like to see is a centralized police force

"What Risk Is There In Cleaning My Print Dress?"

Your drycleaner accepted your dress for cleaning - but at your risk. The reason for this is that the design printed on your dress is of pulverized metal. This has been mixed with a lacquer binder and then applied to the fabric. The most common metallic prints are gold, silver or copper. The risk is that when wet with drycleaning solvent the lacquer binder may soften and release the pulverized metal which will then rub off in the mechanical action of cleaning.

You can test this yourself by snipping a small piece from an unexposed seam. Apply a drop of an evaporating paint remover or amyl acetate and rub the metal print design between your fingers. You will see quickly why your drycleaner will accept your dress only at your risk.

for the entire county. "It's costly, having 12 agencies duplicating one another. It's got to change some day, maybe after my time. I believe centralization can be much more effective and less expensive."

AS UNDERSHERIFF, he helps Sheriff Mountanos supervise the department's 168 employees. He also helped organize the drug abuse bureau and the Civic Center security system.

Undersheriff Stinson lives in Novato with his wife Jorene and two daughters, Judy and Leanna. The eldest daughter, Mrs. Robert Conklin, lives in Petaluma.

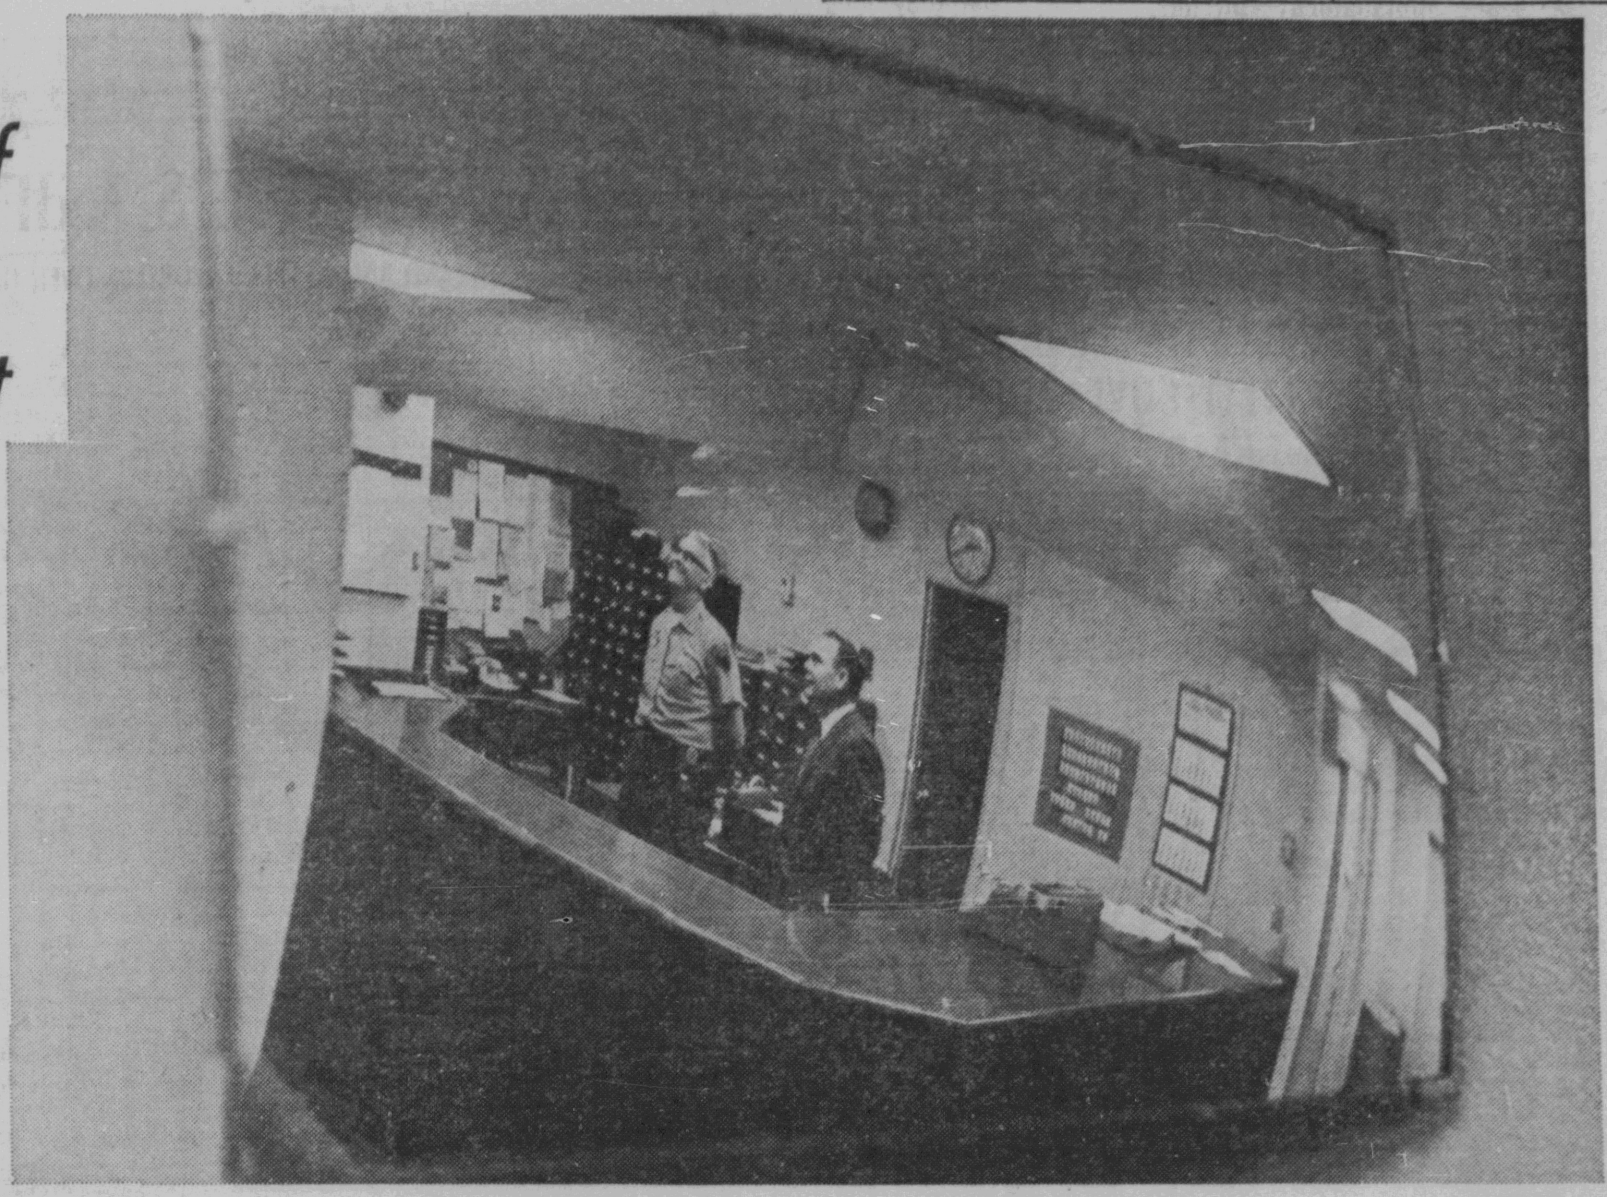
His brother Bart is an inspector with the San Rafael Police Department, and another brother, James, is semi-retired, living in Hawaii. His sister, Georgia Pearson, lives in Dallas, Tex.

Stinson's chief hobby is fishing for trout in the High Sierra, a sport which his family enjoys with him.

IN MANY OF his public appearances, Stinson stresses the need for uniform application of the law to both the big and the small.

Some of his acquaintances suspect that he is more softhearted than he pretends to be when it comes to dealing with minor crimes, especially those committed by juveniles or first offenders. Stinson denies that, insisting: "No, you can't discriminate in enforcing laws. You've got to enforce them uniformly."

But those who know him as a fishing companion, a family friend, or a defender of peace and order cite him as one career lawman who has been able to wear the uniform and the badge with distinction for two decades without losing the warmth and compassion of a human being sensitive to the feelings and needs of his fellow man.



AT THE booking desk of the Marin County sheriff's department in the new Hall of Justice at the Marin Civic Center, Undersheriff Sid Stinson, right, joins Lt. N.D. Snyder in watching the overhead television monitors that enable them to keep a check upon the jail cell area. Stinson is the No. 2 man in a department with a total personnel of 168.

Fight Fans Will Be Treated to Forty Rounds of Milling at Coliseum Between Lightweights and Bantams

SID HESTER, the matchmaker of the Mission Athletic club, will dish up the regular monthly boxing exhibition this evening at the Coliseum, and in order to attract the fight fans to his show has arranged as classy a card of fighters at popular prices as could be desired by the most exacting fan.

There will be but two fights, but the two carded are of the sort liked by the sportsmen of the city. Each event is scheduled to go twenty rounds, unless a knockout intervenes, and the possibility of some forty rounds of milling is enough to attract all of the fight-hungry populace.

The quartet of fighters that will make Sid Hester's card this evening at the Coliseum. They are (reading from left to right) "Fighting Dick" Hyland, Percy Cove, Monte Attell and Johnny Frayne. Referee Eddie Smith (in the center) who will referee both contests.

THESE NEWSPAPER clippings are from the scrapbook of the late Sid Hester. Above, the pre-fight ballyhoo for one of his 1909 boxing cards at the Mission Athletic Club in San Francisco — only two bouts, but each scheduled for 20 rounds, and featuring four of the area's most popular pugilists. And below, the weigh-in and the conclusion of one of Hester's main events. Fighers and referee are not identified in the scrapbook.

When Boxing Was In Its Heyday Era

A Scrapbook Brings Back Memories Of Time Of Jeffries And Johnson

By DON KEOWN

Few of the residents of San Anselmo's Butterfield Road in the 1940s and '502 were aware that one of their neighbors, Sid Hester, had lived a colorful career in the sports world early in the century.

Even some of his close acquaintances knew Hester only as a 35-year-man with the City and County of San Francisco who rose to deputy director in its public works department prior to his retirement in the early 1950s.

But one friend who was aware of Hester's earlier background as a nationally and internationally known boxing promoter and matchmakes is V.R. Foutz of Larkspur.

HE HAD KNOWN Hester even before the latter moved to Marin County in 1941.

"I met him at the home of my father-in-law, Carl Stern, in Larkspur," Foutz recalls. "Carl was an avid sports fan. And I can remember the two men talking boxing by the hours."

Later when the Hesters moved to San Anselmo, the Foutzes were their frequent guests for social occasions.

Those evenings or afternoons found Sid Hester often reminiscing about his days as a boxing promoter and a prominent figure on the sports pages of the nation's newspapers.

"AND EVEN though I was not personally a really rabid boxing fan, I found his stories fascinating," says Foutz. "He was a wonderful conversationalist."

Thus when Hester's daughter, Helen Hester, employed at San Quentin Prison as secretary to Warden Louis S. Nelson, loaned Foutz an old scrapbook in which her father had compiled some of the newspaper clippings and other mementoes of his boxing days, it was an opportunity for the Larkspur man to relive some of the pleasures of an old friendship.

Some of the photographs are faded beyond recognition. And some of the clippings are torn beyond repair.

BUT THERE IS ample material to testify to the prestige that was Hester's in an era when boxing was enjoying one of its heydays.

Most of the contents deal with the year 1909 when Hester was matchmaker and manager for the old Mission Athletic Club in San Francisco.

There are newspaper clippings, fight card programs, tickets, snapshots, telegrams, letters, personal notes.

Much of the material deals with Hester's efforts to land for the Mission Athletic Club the two great matches of the time — Jack Johnson vs. Jim Jeffries, and Stanley Ketchel v. Sam Langford.

FOR THESE fights, Hester was vying with the biggest promoters of the time.

Newspaper headlines told of Hester's offer of $75,000 for a Jeffries-Johnson bout.

One story quoted Jeffries: "The Mission Athletic Club is one of the most substantial in the country and anything they say they will do is all right."

The old ex-champion considering a comeback against the formidable Johnson was also quoted as being confident that he could defeat the great black heavyweight. "It's the wind that counts, boys," Jeffries told reporters.

The bout between the two champions, Hester stipulated, "could be anywhere from 20 to 100 rounds, as the principals may decide."

ANOTHER newspaper termed Hester's offer of $10,000 to Ketchel to fight Langford, "win, lose or draw," a "bombshell" in the boxing world.

But the scrapbook is filled with the names of other boxers familiar to all fans of ring history and with whom Hester dealt freely and without the intense competition he encountered in his bidding for the Jeffries-Johnson and Ketchel-Langford matches.

Some of those names are those of Abe Attell, Patsy Kline, Otto Fritch, Packy McFarland, Fighting Dick Hyland, Monte Attell, Johnny Murphy, Young Corbett, Johnny Frayne, Frankie Neill, Freddie Welsh, Kyle Whitney, Ad Wolgast, Battling Nelson and Phil McGovern.

HESTER'S daughter, Helen, says that her father's years in boxing were behind him and he had settled down to the life of a public official in San Francisco by the time she arrived on the scene, "so I really know very little about that side of his life."

She remembers that her father and his friends used to talk about boxing, "but being a girl, I wasn't particularly interested and very little of it registered with me."

But she does recall being hor-

ENJOYING A PERUSAL of the scrapbook kept by matchmaker Sid Hester of his days as a fight promoter is V. R. Foutz of Larkspur. The book with its yellowed clippings and other mementoes brought back memories to Foutz of the many times he used to listen while his friend Hester told stories of the great boxers he had known and matched. The picture is of Freddie Welsh. Hester, a Marin resident since 1941, died in 1958.

A TICKET TO one of the great fights in Pacific Coast sports history, Battling Nelson vs. Ad Wolgast, fought in Richmond on Feb. 22, 1910, for the lightweight championship of the world, is among the mementoes in the Sid Hester scrapbook. Note the bout was scheduled for 45 rounds, and took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

rified by some of the stories of the old-time fights in which men battled and bloodied each other for hours "to a finish."

And she remembers, too, that her father had a special admiration for the controversial Jack Johnson both as a fighter and as a man.

FOUTZ AGREES that Sid Hester was a Jack Johnson admirer.

Battling Nelson, he adds, was another pugilist for whom Hester had great respect.

Talking in the 1940s and 1950s, like many another old-timer Sid Hester used to bemoan the decline in the quality of the sport and its athletes.

"He used to say that the fighters with whom he dealt could have licked the best of the current crop with one hand tied behind their back," Foutz says. "He felt it was a matter of training.

"HE THOUGHT that the newer fighters just didn't take the sport to heart and just didn't train sufficiently to be really good at it."

Still, says Foutz, Hester remained in close touch with boxing. He continued to attend matches in San Francisco. And younger promoters consulted him frequently for advice, and Hester always responded generously, sharing his years of experience.

Foutz remembers Sid Hester as a rather tall and slender man, always trim and in shape.

"HE WAS," Foutz says, "what I would call a positive person — quite impressive. Until his health declined, he was very active. And he was quite talkative, and one of his favorite subjects, of course, was boxing."

It was plain, says Foutz, that Hester had enjoyed his career in boxing, and that he took pride in it.

He remembers Hester as being interested in all sports generally, with a special fondness for baseball as well as boxing.

Helen Hester says her father retired from his San Francisco job in the early 1950s, and in the closing years of his life moved from San Anselmo to Corte Madera. He died in 1958. Her mother is still living.

DESPITE HER personal aversion to boxing, she treasures the scrapbook for its record of the fine repute in which her father was held by a sport that has not always been marked by such good feelings.

"The clever little matchmaker at the Mission Club" is the way the boxing writers referred to Sid Hester. And always as a man who could be trusted to keep his word, and to do his best on behalf of fighters and fans.

Foutz, now retired after service in the collections department of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s San Francisco business office, says this same integrity marked Sid Hester throughout his life. And thus made their friendship a relationship to be especially cherished and remembered. The yellowed pages of a torn old scrapbook have now brought a new freshness to those memories.

A PHOTOGRAPH preserved in the scrapbook of Sid Hester shows Hester, at center, with two other boxing personalities of the time, M. Cooney, on the left, and Heine Rafael on the right. A notation on the back of the picture says that it was taken on Aug. 17, 1909, at Joe Willett's training camp. Hester, at the time, was the matchmaker for the Mission Athletic Club in San Francisco, one of the country's busiest promoters of fight cards.

ON SATURDAY and Sunday, July 3 and 4, the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross becomes a little bit of Paris transported to Marin as its supporting organizations join to stage a "Weekend in Paris" festival complete to a Left Bank of the Seine with sidewalk artists in costume from the Marin Society of Artists. Above, Paul Romer has Phyllis Thelen as a can-can girl as his model. At left, Blanche Ayers works on a poster publicizing the festival. And below, Romer and Mrs. Madison Devlin, right, president of the society, enjoying sidewalk cafe refreshments served by Phyllis Lynch.

Dixie Devlin And Her Year Of Dedication

She Is Devoting All Her Energy To Artists' Society

DIXIE DEVLIN, left, president of the Marin Society of Artists, has gone all-out in organizing her group's participation in next week's "Weekend in Paris" festival at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, complete to a costume of her own recalling the era of Henri de Toulouse-Lautric. The sidewalk artisan in a different kind of Gallic costume is weaver Zamma Zethraus.

"This," says Mrs. Madison Devlin of Strawberry Point, "is my year of dedication."

She is referring to her 12-months tenure as president of the Marin Society of Artists that runs into October.

Previously, she says, she had to reject suggestions that she accept that office because she found herself traveling out of the county so frequently with her husband, a professional photographer.

"Still," she says, "I felt an obligation to the society. I think every Marin artist and artisan — in fact every Marin resident — is indebted to the society for what it has done through the years in promoting the arts and elevating culture generally in our county."

SO WHEN Madison Devlin agreed to forego traveling for a year, his wife accepted the presidency and plunged herself wholeheartedly into its activities.

In her efforts on behalf of the society, Mrs. Devlin adds, she has had the enthusiastic cooperation of her husband, also a member. "We work very closely together on everything, and he has made a tremendous contribution."

The team of Devlin and Devlin has undertaken a number of special projects on behalf of the Marin Society of Artists, and one of the major ones will be coming up next weekend in the society's participation in the "Weekend in Paris" festival at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

"IT IS ALMOST impossible to over-state the importance the Marin Art and Garden Center has held for Marin artists and art-lovers," says Mrs. Devlin, who is known socially as Dixie Devlin but who signs her canvases as Leola Devlin.

"The very availability of the grounds with its art gallery and its annual art and garden fair has played a major part in making Marin the center of art and craft activity that it is."

And with the official Marin County fair leaving the Ross grounds this year for a new site at the Civic Center at Santa Venetia, Dixie Devlin sees 1971 as critical for those who hope the art and garden center will continue to flourish as Marin's uniquely beautiful cultural mecca.

THAT IS WHY, Mrs. Devlin points out, the success of the "Weekend in Paris" festivities next Saturday and Sunday is so essential to the art and garden center's future.

And that is why she is serving, along with Mrs. Tom Ayers of San Rafael, as one of the society's co-chairmen for its art in action activities.

The festival has been organized by 14 member and sponsoring groups at the center to help fill both the financial and cultural void left by the fair's departure.

AND NO GROUP has thrown itself into the preparations for what promises to be a most colorful event and for what could well become yet another Marin tradition than has Mrs. Devlin's Marin Society of Artists.

More than 50 of the society's 600 members, properly costumed, will be performing art-in-action demonstrations in Left Bank settings during the two days.

"What would Paris be without its street artists?" asks Mrs. Devlin.

In addition, the Frances Young Gallery will be transformed temporarily into a miniature Louvre for a special show.

AND THE SOCIETY is sponsoring the appearances of puppeteer Bob Hartman who was a big success with children in his special performances earlier this year at the Young Gallery in conjunction with the Marin artists' annual rental show.

During the two days the 10-acre center will also be the scene of music, dancing, films, fashion parades, a flea market, floral displays and sidewalk cafes featuring such appropriate delicacies as crepes and croissants plus wines.

This rallying behind the art and garden center may have added importance in view of efforts to obtain support for Bay Area cultural groups from President Richard M. Nixon's full-funding of the cultural arts program.

"TO QUALIFY," says Mrs. Devlin, "we must all present ourselves to the House Appropriations Committee in a most favorable light and prove the worth of our programs. A successful Weekend in Paris fete would speak well for community interest in and support of the art and garden center."

Next weekend's programs represent but one of the highspots in Mrs. Devlin's 12 months of dedicated effort on behalf of the art society.

A new room was finished on the art and garden center grounds for the society's potters.

And Madison Devlin, besides helping to run the printing press in the issuance of the society's bulletin, found time to do the extensive photography required for a special 10-foot display screen that combined his pictures of fine handcrafted jewelry with actual jewelry created by members of the society. Shown at the Young Gallery, the screen caused a sensation.

SUCH PROJECTS, Mrs. Devlin hopes and believes, have provided the society's craft members with a needed boost in their morale and brought them back into the organization's mainstream.

For Mrs. Devlin feels that her greatest single accomplishment as president of the Marin Society of Artists has been the re-establishment of unity in an organization that was beginning to feel some of the strains and stresses of divergent views and interests.

She rejects the old "chestnut" that artists are temperamental, and thus difficult to work with.

"BUT THEY DO have a higher degree of sensitivity than the layman," she adds. "And you should keep that in mind when working with them."

The society dates back to 1927 when it was founded in an old garage on San Rafael's Fourth Street as the Marin Art Association. It was faltering when in 1935 its name was changed to Marin Art Association. And suddenly it seemed to acquire a new momentum.

Other milestones have included the society's participation in 1944 in the first Ross festival that was the forerunner of what became the traditional Marin Art and Garden Fair, and the construction the following year of the Frances Young Gallery on the Marin Art and Garden Center grounds that is still, today, the focus for society shows and activities.

THE SOCIETY operates under a limited membership policy.

"Away back in 1927 the original standards were set as high as possible because it was felt that the best interests of Marin would be served by a society that stressed quality as well as quantity in its art and artists."

To qualify, members must have passed a juried show. Or they can join as associate members and pass the juried show hurdle while in that status.

The membership rolls are reviewed annually, and to continue on the roster the artists must have contributed a specified number of their hours to the society — working at one of its shows or staffing the gallery, doing bookkeeping, hanging paintings, contributing food for receptions, etc.

THE ANNUAL dues are $15.

The society's links with the Marin Art and Garden Center are old and close. And at present its support is especially important, Mrs. Devlin belives.

"This is the time for artists to rally around," she says. "The whole future of the center may be at stake."

The Devlins have been Marin residents for 10 years and now make their home on Strawberry Point. "We are nature buffs and love it there," she says. They also own an historic 111-year-old house at Nevada City.

BERKELEY-BORN Mrs. Devlin is a graduate of the University of California and holds a general secondary teaching credential as well as a Master's Degree in Fine Arts. She has studied privately with Millard Sheets, George Post and Richard Yips, and has done an apprenticeship in mural paintings with Maynard Dixon and Ray Boynton.

She has had 15 one-man shows including exhibits at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and Mexico's Gallery of Fine Arts, plus participation in numerous group shows.

She has taught for the University of California extension division, San Francisco City College and College of Marin.

WITH THE Marin Society of Artists, Mrs. Devlin has held a number of earlier offices — "everything from kitchen duty to chairman of the artists advisory council, recording secretary and vice president."

She says that despite the intensity of her efforts on behalf of the Marin Society of Artists during her term as president, her own painting has not really suffered.

"Once can always find time for doing the things one really wants to do," she explains. "And I have been well repaid for what little time I have lost from my own work."

TO ALL HER endeavors, her friends say, Dixie Devlin brings great energy and exuberance — the qualities that are necessary for such tasks as seeing to it that the 100-pound sacks of clay needed by the potters are delivered and distributed in time for next weekend's art-in-action programs.

For two and a half decades, the Marin Society of Artists was a part of the art and garden fair that fitted so perfectly into the wooded surroundings at Ross.

Now, Dixie Devlin and her membership believes, they are helping to start another tradition that could very well have an even longer run.

"OR PERHAPS," the society president says, "it would be more correct to say that we are resuming an old and interrupted tradition. For it seems to me that next Saturday and Sunday's Weekend in Paris celebration is really closer in spirit to the old festivals of the 1940s than were the more recent art and garden fairs."

And after her tenure as Marin Society of Artists president ends in October, what does Dixie Devlin plan?

"Madison is feeling the travel bug again," she answers. "So I suppose we will be hitting the road once more."

With cameras and film, brushes and paints in town.

And the warm glow that will come from knowing that her term as president of the Marin society was a job well done.

THESE ARTISTS were not in costume, but wearing the fashionable dress of the time when this photograph was taken in 1948. Mrs. Donald Works was the president of the Marin Society of Artists and as such accepted the keys to the completed Frances Young Gallery. With her is shown Mrs. Dickens Cotton.

TASKS THAT MEMBERS of the Marin Society of Artists can perform to meet the organization's service requirements range from the preparation of food for receptions to the staffing of its Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center. Here, Robert Pinne helped meet his quota by hanging paintings for the 1964 fall rental show.

You Can Park Your Children In Norway

AMERICAN CHILDREN can join in the healthy, open-air fun of Norway's famous camps while their parents are touring Scandinavia and other European points. The scene here is Tomm Murstad's yachting camp on Oslo Fjord. Still other camps are located high in the mountain ranges.

Norway has become such a favorite vacation land for Americans with children, that a popular saying now goes like this:

"Take your children with you and park them in Norway, whilst you do the rest of Scandinavia in peace!"

Healthy open-air life is the hallmark of children's camps in Norway. They are located on the fjords and in the mountain ranges.

MOST OF THE children in these camps are healthy Norwegian kids, and your kids will enjoy meeting them.

Teen-agers will love Norway. There is so much to see; so many things to do. And it costs less than anywhere else in Europe.

There is a new trend in Norway of great interest to parents and teachers. The idea is to transfer an entire school class — with pupils and teachers — to a special camp school, situated in the mountain ranges of Norway, where tuition is combined with field studies of fauna, flora and geology, etc.

MANY OF THESE school camps also accept individual children and teen-agers.

Norway also offers a great choice of educational vacations, such as salmon and trout fishing courses, horse riding and pony trekking vacations, work camps, youth hostel tours, yachting holidays, conducted walking tours and university courses.

Perfect Place To Relax — A Finnish Holiday Village

Too many Americans on a two or three-week vacation abroad feel they must cover as much territory as possible to make their trip worthwhile.

Such whirlwind travel is exhausting. Confusing, too. For, events and places must kaleidoscope in the mind, when going by at such a fast pace.

IF YOU ARE determined to "country-hop" this summer and are counting on getting to Scandinavia, be sure to at least drop in on the often overlooked fourth sister country, just a boundary line away. After tearing around Europe, Finland will loom as an oasis.

A stopover there will provide a delightful wind-up for your vacation. Instead of dragging home weary, you'll get your second wind in this friendly country.

Throughout Finland, there are at least 90 holiday villages where you can plunk down for a day or two, or a week or more, to revive. In any one of them, you can rent a cottage, ranging from a rustic cabin to a luxury villa, all near or on the water. Most of them have been built within the last five years. All are inexpensive.

Example: a two bedroom cottage, including living room and kitchen, is only $4 a day per person or $25 a week, with full board.

YOU CAN BE alone or socialize with the Finns, who are a warm people and who speak English. They also respect your privacy.

There are usually from 10 to 20 bungalows in a village, tucked among giant pine and birch trees, profuse in this country of 60,000 lakes and 30,000 forrested islands.

You won't have to go too far from Helsinki to find a haven.

Cottages are completely furnished in a simple Finnish style, and you can either whip up your own meals or select a village in which a fully licensed restaurant does the cooking. The main thing is you can relax.

To help put you in top shape, you'll have the luxury of your own sauna. Most cottages include one. A few of these traditional Finnish baths and you'll feel rejuvenated.

If this produces too much energy you can work if off by sailing, fishing for perch and pike, playing tennis, hiking and dancing. And you'll sleep like a baby.

MAYBE A cottage doesn't appeal to you. Then how about an unforgettable stay in a farmhouse?

You can do it for about $7 a day, with meals.

The houses are spotless, the meals home cooked and good, the company delightful. Some of the farmhouses are gems, holding treasures in antiques.

Wherever you choose to relax, you'll become intoxicated with the fresh air in Finland. No pollution there. During the summer, the lake breezes waft only the scent of lilacs and lilies of the valley.

After those few days of taking it easy in the country, you'll be fit and ready to head for home. Before you take off, though, you should try Helsinki's excellent restaurants and hotels, and get in at least one shopping tour.

A Tivoli Record

Copenhagen's famous Tivoli amusement park had a record season in 1970. More than 5.2 million guests from Denmark and abroad passed through the turnstiles and paid 4.8 million dollars admission fees.

TO SAVE TIME and running around, go to Design Center, where many of the Finnish products are assembled. They're priced and the retail sources listed, so you can go directly to the shop carrying the merchandise you want.

There is an endless variety of items. Among the best buys are furs, (especially mink), jewelry, boots, crystal, linen and umbrellas. The Finish rya rugs are handsome for floor or wall coverings.

Humor In A Prisoner-Of-War Camp?

THE ADVENTURES OF PRIVATE FAUST by Hans Hellmut Kirst; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is sort of a subdued "Hogan's Heroes" from the talented German author of the Gunner Asch tetralogy and "Night of the Generals," substituting subtler wit for the outrageous slapstick of the farcical television series.

Still, Kirst does not succeed completely in overcoming this reader's reservations toward humor in conjunction with the grim subject of prisoner-of-war encampments.

And a funny Nazi, be he a guard or prisoner, remains a contradiction of adjective and noun.

Kirst skirts this with at least some success by making his key German figure an anti-Nazi.

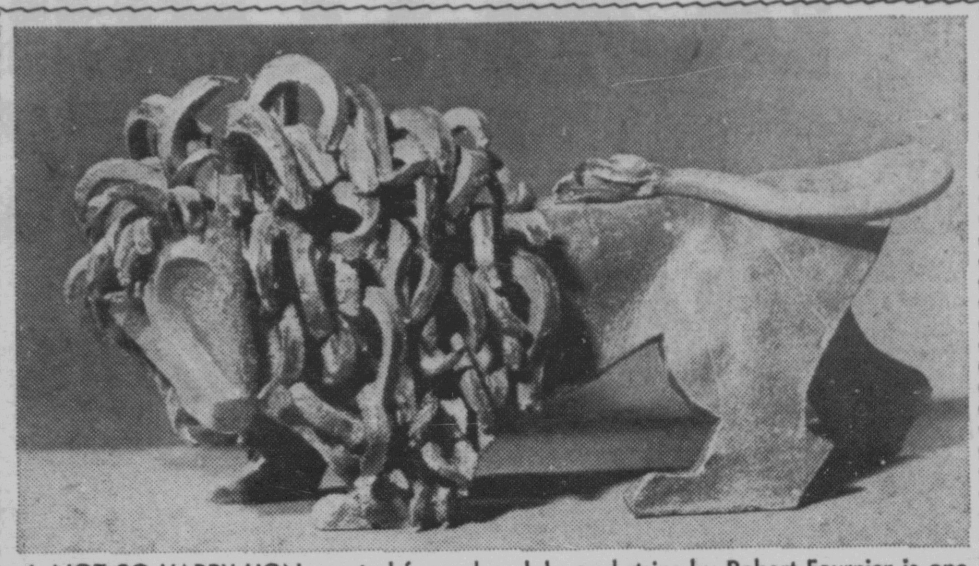
The scene is a British-run POW camp in the North African desert. The commander, a fastidious homosexual, has introduced progressive and permissive regulations and practices, complete to a bagpipe band of Germans under a Scottish sergeant, to soccer games pitting Germans against English, and to painfully correct if informal relations between the interned and the interners.

It is a relatively pleasant place to spend a war for both sides. And Colonel Nelson, the commandant, is as jealous of threats to the tranquility of his model camp as might be the principal of any modern school functioning under progressive educational dogma.

There is one fly in the ointment. The anti-Nazi prisoner Faust is determined to escape and return to Germany to have his vengeance upon the betrayer of his parents. His threat to the camp's serenity is resented even more by the German prisoners, anxious not to lose their privileges, than by the British. Indeed, at least two of the "captors" find themselves able to make special use of Faust's talents, the bandmaster Jock McKellar to whom Faust is indispensable as his pipe-major, and a wheeler-dealer, black marketing sergeant named Sharpe.

Kirst does not let his story deteriorate into farce, but keeps his humor dry and understated. And the translation from the German by J. Maxwell Brownjohn has given us a text with a decidedly British sound and flavor.

The novel of Private Faust's struggle with two establishments — one German, one British and both all too human — makes amusing reading. And for those of us who are troubled in these times by the idea that there can be anything funny about men caught up in war and entrapped behind barbed wire fence, there is the consolation that Kirst not only gives us humor, but also a considerable measure of insight that can be applied toward understanding the human character.



A NOT-SO-HAPPY LION created from clay slabs and strips by Robert Fournier is one of the finished pieces pictured in that master English ceramist's book, "Ceramic Creations" (Sterling, $6.95). It is a guide for studio potters, touching on the fundamentals, but focussing more especially upon some on the finer points that can lift pottery from the humdrum to the truly artistic. Thus it is mainly a book for the potter who already has some knowledge of the craft, and who wishes to broaden his creative horizons. The photographs, generous in number and quite helpful, are the work of J.M. Anderson. And it is the publisher's claim that the book fills a void, offering expert instruction and inspiration at a higher level than other existing manuals.

Soul Defined: 'Graceful Survival Under Pressure'

THE JESUS BAG by Dr. William H. Grier and Dr. Price M. Cobbs; McGraw-Hill, 179 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

Christianity has shaped the lives of the overwhelming majority of American Blacks. The concept of a God demanding an earthly existence of humility and misery for the reward of a pleasurable after-life, which Whites originated and have profited greatly from, has evolved a unique Black proclivity for enduring intense psychosocial strain.

In this heretofore quiescent Black power lies the key to America's future.

The nation faces doom, contend these black psychiatrists, assistant professors of psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. Although at the summit of civilized sophistication, this country suffers from many of the distressed conditions that precipitated Rome's fall, among them unsuccessful leadership, widening economic class disparities and a continuing war.

From the Black phenomenon of "soul" — "graceful survival under pressure" — this country can derive its most crucial lesson. Sorely needed is a widespread development of inner strength and authentic egalitarian reforms.

That the patience of some Blacks wore out, as evidenced by the riots of the 1960s, is understandable. But the eruptions were tremendously deep learning experiences for all "Negroes". The eruptions revealed that America is sick.

Greatly enriching a theme first touched in "Black Rage" of three years ago, this work, then, is powerful diagnosis and prescription. And well-ordered and documented. Included are numerous enlightening case studies and a large bibliography supporting the authors' claim that Blacks have a marked tendency toward affliction with high blood pressure.

Important among the survival methods described is the secular ritual known as "the dozens." Well known by young "Negro" males, it can be a highly emotional experience. (This writer can well attest). In the game, an instigator will boast of prodigious sexual feats performed with the mother of another. If the insulted young man "plays the dozens" (those who don't are usually not subjected) he learns to repress any hurt feelings that may arise and effect a confident, even smiling, facade.

It is through this "drama," explain the authors, that Black males first acquire the ability to withstand taunts which become a way of life.

Particular exposure is made of "white experts" who attain such dubious standing by virtue of only token interaction with the group and research of the Black experience. But into this group, this writer feels, can be included most of the future readers of the book.

Medicine As Practiced Behind Bamboo Curtain

THE CHINESE ART OF HEALING by Stephan Palos; Herder and Herder, 235 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

In this book Stephen Palos, Hungarian-born Buddhist monk now living in a Tibetan exile monastery in Switzerland, has written what Dr. William Gutman describes in the foreword as "one of the first comprehensive books on Chinese medicine, written by someone thoroughly familiar with the subject, to be published in English."

Its appearance is timely, Dr. Gutman adds, because it comes when European doctors are restoring more and more to the use of Chinese techniques, particularly acupuncture, and because it offers possible alternatives to modern drugs that are beginning to show harmful side effects.

Palos begins his book with a history of Chinese healing, explains its theories including the little understood (in the West) yin and yang principle, discusses diagnostic methods, and then finally goes into the various techniques for treatment beginning (and for some readers, no doubt, ending right there) with the use of acupuncture needles.

Described too are moxibustion, respiratory therapy, massage, therapeutic exercises, sun therapy, hydrotherapy, medicaments including herbs and animal materials, etc.

Newer western-influenced research and developments are also discussed.

"The traditional Chinese art of healing, far from being a mere accumulation of random experiences, as it has hitherto been taken to be, is on the contrary a unique system in its own right," Palos claims, and adds that it will continue to play an important public health role in the East.

Palos' book is a serious, nonsensationalized treatment of his subject, suggesting mainly that in a time when so much that has originated in the Orient is being prized and adopted in the West, we would be unwise to fail at least to consider medical practices that have stood the test of many centuries and seemingly have served a great people well. At the same time, Palos admits, competent experts are correct in their contention that claims and data from this area where information is now so scarce and difficlut to confirm must be treated with "critical reserve."

Vulgarity And Voyeurism In Morally Lax Hollywood

TWICE UPON A TIME by Carolyn Jones; Trident, 288 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The moral laxity of Hollywood provides actress Carolyn Jones with her theme for this first novel.

She is writing about an entertainment world she knows, but one hopes — and suspects — that Miss Jones has exaggerated the looseness of its morals. If not, then ancient Sodom and Gomorrah were havens of puritanism in comparison to Hollywood and Broadway today.

Her central figure is Susan Maxwell, movie star and nymphomaniac. Her marriage ended because her film-producer husband could not satisfy her physical desires, Susan sets out to find herself a man who can. Ultimately she succeeds, after numerous sexual adventures.

There are indications that Carolyn Jones, a gifted actress, may have a somewhat lesser talent for writing. But her material for "Twice Upon a Time" is so coarse and gamey that any such ability passes unnoticed. A few readers may be enthralled by an opportunity to peek behind the scenes into Hollywood's bedrooms. But most will be repelled by such voyeurism and vulgarity.

Joe McCarthy — His Career, And His Legacy

By DON KEOWN

THE NIGHTMARE DECADE by Fred J. Cook; Random House, 626 pages, $10.

Was Joseph R. McCarthy a fanatic — a rightwing zealot so blindly obsessed by anti-communist convictions that he lost all sense of balance and perspective?

Or was he, instead, a coldly calculating cynic, an opportunist without principles or ideals, who rode his red-baiting nag roughshod over innocent victims simply because it gave him gratification for his overwhelming ego?

Fred J. Cook, award-winning former New York World-Telegram star reporter, tells us it was the latter in his stunningly detailed and incisive biography, "The Nightmare Decade: The Life and Times of Senator Joe McCarthy."

"Josephy McCarthy pulled together more successfully than any other politician in our history all the elements of an incipient American fascism," Cook writes. "Fortunately for America, he did not have any ideological program to offer . . . He, for the most part, was in the game for the kicks — the thrill of seeing his name in the boldest, blackest headlines."

In the process of feeding that ego McCarthy arose to such prominence that whole government departments trembled and cowered before him. But the absence of any really substantial stake also made him reckless, so that his ruthless, self-centered tactics ultimately alienated many of his supporters, especially when they were turned upon fellow conservatives or upon national heroes of the stature of George C. Marshall.

But McCarthy's "wild man" political conduct is well remembered. What is not so generally recalled and what we are reminded of by Fred Cook is that McCarthy's behavior in the political arena was totally in keeping with his ethics elsewhere.

We are reminded of the phony war hero image McCarthy worked so hard to cultivate. Our attention is directed to the low level financial shenanigans in which he often was involved. We are caused to remember that long before he became the nation's most rabid anti-communist, McCarthy had established another less glamorous reputation as a past master at selling out to the special interests, and at collecting his dues for so doing.

And thus is destroyed one myth nourished in some quarters in recent years — that before McCarthy became obsessed with the red-baiting fever, he was a liberal-minded agrarian who served Wisconsin and the country well.

The facts, as Fred Cook demonstrates, are that while still a country judge Joseph McCarthy had already displayed a contempt for the laws of the land and for the rules of fair play.

And finally we are reminded, too, of how the Wisconsin bully boy caved in at the Army-McCarthy hearings when confronted with a Joseph Welch who saw the senator for what he was and asked: "Have you no sense of decency, sir? At long last, have you left no sense of decency?"

It was a question McCarthy did not dare to answer. A short time later he stood condemned by his timid colleagues in the Senate, and he plummeted from power, dying an early death to which both alcohol and disappointment no doubt contributed.

But after a masterful job of telling the story of the fear-fraught, hate-ridden McCarthy years, Cook goes on to make it plain that the evils of McCarthyism did not die with their originator.

"The damage that Joe McCarthy did is incalculable," writes Cook. "There are no scales on which to weigh his impact on the soul of the nation, but it is safe to say he left America less free than he found it. He made dissent suspect. He made rational debate of major political issues impossible. He imposed a straitjacket on foreign policy."

Cook maintains that McCarthyism has survived through ultra-right movements and figures down to George Wallace and Spiro Agnew today.

He weakens his argument a bit by failing to maintain his differentiation between those championing causes or ideologies no matter how wrongfully conceived, and those out for naked personal glorification and aggrandization.

Still, Cook, one of the best investigative reporters around, makes the point that Joseph McCarthy did leave the America he professed to love so devoutly a bitter legacy of suspicion and division.

And in his rather merciless exposure of a man who was himself without mercy, Cook makes it plain that McCarthy not only outranks Huey Long in his fullest hysteria as the most dangerous demagogue to make use of the halls and prestige of the Congress in this century, but that he also rates with Theodore Bilbo and Pat McCarran as its vilest, meanest products.

Those who will cling to the old McCarthy myth of the white knight on charger doing battle with assorted red dragons will be infuriated by Cook's book. For the sake of their blood pressure, they might do well to substitute a re-reading of "McCarthy and His Enemies" by William F. Buckley Jr. and L. Brent Bozell. That apology for the witch-hunters still reads well, until a Cook insists upon focussing our attention upon the real record of ruined lives and rampant hysteria.

A WIRE SERVICE photograph taken in 1954 at the height of the Army-McCarthy hearings in Washington caught Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in conference with Roy Cohn, his chief henchman. The hearings marked the start of McCarthy's decline in political influence, a slide from power that was completed a short time later when he was formally condemned by his colleagues in the U.S. Senate. McCarthy's physical death followed in 1957.

IT SEEMS like only the other day that we were putting our 1970 income tax forms in the mail, but apparently it is not too early to start thinking about the 1971 returns.

Anyway, Cornerstone Libraries (Simon & Schuster) has published as a $1.25 paperback J. K. Lasser's "How to Avoid Having Your 1971 Tax Return Questioned."

The idea, of course, is to avoid errors and other invitations for an audit. But the book from the Lasser organization, specialists in tax publications, goes on to offer advice on how to present and possibly win your case in the event of a disagreement with Internal Revenue.

It is, of course, principally a book for those who file a more complicated — and thus more subject to argument — return.

Of more general interest is the advice that every American has now been "computerized" as far as income tax liability is concerned. "Therefore there is more likelihood than ever before that you will come up for a tax examination. You must be more complete and accurate (than ever before) with the information you file to avoid inspection and sessions with the revenue agent."

Now, how is that for spoiling your vacation?

"WINDOWS of Thought" (Simon and Schuster, $2.50) by Stillman J. Elwell, is a particularly pleasant little book of verse, at its best somewhat reminiful of Robert Frost in one of his more rural moods. There a Will Rogers quality of the homespun philosopher in Elwell, too — "Not from boyhood in a moment,/Does a man emerge full-grown./ But through years of patient study/ Are the ways of wisdom shown." Corny? Perhaps. But truths are often corny. And that perhaps is the reason why in this sophisticated age we embrace so much that is phony and spurn so much that is true. There is nothing phony about Stillman Elwell, former-poet. And a lot that is true in his verse.

"ANIMALS, Birds and Fishes on Coins" (Sterling, $3.50) by Gunther Schon, is part of the publisher's Topical Coin Library series that suggests a different approach to the collecting of coins, based upon the subjects on their faces rather than their place or date of issue. The book contains some 250 photographs of coins of many national origins, but all bearing the likenesses of members of the animal kingdom. All are coins now readily available, and their current market value, generally modest, is listed.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE EMBASSY MADONNA by Lydia Kirk; Doubleday, 161 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The Little Old Lady sleuth as a detective story heroine in the pattern of Miss Marple or Miss Seaton is firmly entrenched in mystery fiction. Lydia Kirk, widow of a U.S. admiral and diplomat, has concocted Mademoiselle Jacquin as her entry in this field.

In "The Embassy Madonna," the Mademoiselle, employed in the U.S. Embassy in Brussels, senses some shenanigans in respect to a Belgian art masterpiece returned from America where it had suddenly surfaced under mysterious circumstances.

Mademoiselle's curiosity prompts her to investigate — and to place herself in danger.

Mrs. Kirk plots well, uses the Belgian background nicely and takes advantage of her personal knowledge of the diplomatic world. However, Mademoiselle Jacquin is not the charmer that Miss Marple is. And Mrs. Kirk is troubled by a stiff, rather stilted writing style that is especially troublesome in her dialogue. Still, it's quite acceptable.

TIME-LIFE BOOKS has spanned three more decades in its "This Fabulous Century" series with books covering the 1920s, the '30s and the '40s. "This Fabulous Century Volume III — 1920-1930" covers the era of aerial stunting including tennis on the wings of planes flying at 70 miles per hour in photo at left, and of Clara Bow, bathtub gin, the automobile, Knute Rockne, Babe Ruth, Al capone, Jimmy Walker, Jack Dempsey, Bruce Barton, marathon dancers, Charles Lindbergh, the Charlston, runaway prosperity and finally the Black Friday crash. Volume IV, 1930-40, tells of lean years, including children such as the farm girl pictured at center who toiled long hours, and FDR, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Orson Welles, Fred Allen, W. C. Fields, J. Edgar Hoover, Shirley Temple, John L. Lewis, Huey Long, Buck Rogers, marathon dancers, big bands and the 1939 World's Fair. Volume V, 1940-50, documents and pictorializes G. I. Joe including the happy Yank kissing U.S. soil upon his return from Europe in the photo at right, and Generals Eisenhower and Marshall, Harry Truman, Jackie Robinson, Sugar Ray Robinson, Robert Taft, Joe DiMaggio, Frank Sinatra, Roy Rogers, Ava Gardner, Wee Bonnie Baker, war bonds, the New Look and imprisoned Nisei. The books sell for $9.95 each and, richly illustrated, are guaranteed to bring back floods of memories for those who lived the years.

Some New Books For The Juniors

Doubleday and Co. has continued its "Art for Children" series with three new books dealing with European masters and their works by the artist, critic and dealer Ernest Raboff.

The new additions, each priced at $3.95, are "Leonardo da Vinci," "Raphael" and "Michelangelo."

The format is the same as that used in earlier books in the series — a brief biography of the artist, the reproduction of some 15 of his works in color plus other smaller drawings in black and white, and Raboff's interesting and perceptive discussions of the paintings shown.

Thus of Da Vinci's "The Lady with the Ermine":

"The eyes of the pet and the eyes of the lady are equally alive and seem to be interested in watching the artist at work. Leonardo knew that eyes could be telescopes and microscopes when one learns to use them."

The texts are presented in a hand lettering that uses color for emphasis, and we suspect it is an effective technique with artistically-inclined youngsters.

The series becomes more impressive as it grows. Obviously Doubleday came up with the right author for the task in mind when it selected the literate but unpretentious Raboff.

OTHER NEW books for juniors:

Islands have always signified adventure and mystery to boys and men, and thus played a colorful part in literature. "A Book of Islands" (Doubleday, $5.95) is an anthology collected and edited by John S. Bowman of works with island settings. The range is from the Arabian Tale of Sinbad's first adventure to a chapter from William Golding's "Pincher Martin." In between are to be found Homer, Swift, Defoe, Verne, Stevenson, Conan Doyle, Wells, Kipling, De Maupassant, Dumas, Maugham, Richard Harding Davis, Richard Connell and a number of others. It is a big book offering both variety and quality. And Bowman's central theme of the romance of islands holds up well.

Catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati's Reds is the current glamor boy of big league baseball. Robert B. Jackson, who specializes in sports biographies and automotive books for boys, has turned out "Johnny Bench" (Walck, $4.25) for the young star's yet younger fans. It is a routine sports success story, apparently hurriedly produced and illustrated with news photos. Johnny Bench admirers, 10 and 11, however, will no doubt be generally pleased if not entirely satisfied.

"Do You Want To Be My Friend?" (Crowell, $4.50), Eric Carle's 1971 Book World Children's Spring Festival honor book, is a carefully designed tale planned to lead the preschool child into the wonderful world of reading. Text is minimum. At the outset, Little Mouse asks: "Do You Want to Be My Friend?" The pages that follow are without words, but show in a natural flow of beautifully designed artwork Little Mouse's search for that friend. The storyteller or the child can supply his own narration. And finally there comes an answer, "Yes." German-born Carle has created an extraordinary book of rare merit and thought, one that has to be seen to be appreciated, as it most certainly will be by the 4 and 5-year-old set.

Adrien Soutenburg, the very prolific and versatile Marin writer, combines two currently keen interests — science fiction and conservation — in her newest book, "Out There" (Viking, $4.95). The time is the future. Technology and its pollution have caused havoc. Virtually all wild animal and plant life has been killed. But somewhere high in the mountains there must still be surviving wild creatures. Led by the redoubtable Aunt Zeb, a strangely-assorted Nature Squad sets out through the dead landscape to rediscover life. And to acquire some new insights about this strange future world. Miss Stoutenburg says she wrote this book out of her concern for threatened wildlife and landscape, and it constitutes a powerful and unusual appeal for action now if we are to prevent the kind of sterile future she pictures so imaginatively.

THE TITLE CHARACTER in artist-author Jessica Ross' "Fanona the Beautiful" is a small girl whose much-admired long blonde hair has made her conceited. In a story told largely through pictures, Fanona comes to realize that beauty is something more than golden tresses. An excellent moral for 4 to 8-year-olds. But one catch: Long blonde hair or no long blonde hair, are children really going to believe that "the neighbors thought Fanona (above) was a beautiful little girl?" Holt, Rinehart and Winston is the publisher of the $3.50 book.

AN ISLAND'S CUISINE REFLECTS ITS HERITAGE

THE MARTHA'S VINEYARD COOK BOOK by Louise Tate King and Jean Stewart Wexler; Harper & Row, 305 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Somehow the very name Martha's Vineyard seems to promise good eating, but "The Martha's Vineyard Cook Book" surpasses expectations.

Louise Tate King of Blueberry Hill Farm and Edgartown restaurant fame and Jean Stewart Wexler, summertime islander, gift shop proprietor and gardener, have put together a mouth-watering collection of recipes peculiar to Martha's Vineyard.

The dishes reflect the heritage the island shares with the New England mainland. But it also reflects the special history, geography, botany and culture of the Vineyard.

Thus extensive use is made of fish and shellfish, of wild game, of cranberries and blueberries, of such island-grown delicacies as the Jerusalem artichoke, rose hips, quince and beach plums. Most of the concoctions have an English derivation — Blackberry Fool, Beefsteak and Kidney Pie, English Lemon Cake. But the island has Portuguese roots, too — Sweet Bread, Lima Beans and Linguica, Massa Sovada, etc. And an Indian heritage that is not neglected.

There are dishes that originated with the resourceful year-round islanders, and dishes brought there by the more cosmopolitan summer residents. There are dishes that were created to feed the sailing masters and their crews while at sea, and sweets concocted to sell to the tourists. There are chowders and puddings and herb sandwiches and teas and vegetable casseroles and stuffings and breads and jellies and soups and stews and pancakes and cakes and conserves and relishes and baked beans and any number of chicken and clam preparations.

Mrs. King and Mrs. Wexler have given their book a special charm by providing a running commentary on island history and lore, on the origins of their recipes and on the sources of the bounty for their larder. Grambs Miller, artist and island resident (appropriately, on Chowder Kettle Lane in Menemsha) has added some appealing drawings.

All in all, "The Martha's Vineyard Cook Book" is a rare delight — an attractive book that is a treat to read, and no doubt an equal treat from which to eat.

It's Planting Time For The Begonias

Like any other bulb flower, the tuberous begonia can be planted in its bulb or tuber form.

But this, of course, is not the time for that.

It is the time, however, for planting tuberous begonias in the seedling form in which they are offered in all nurseries.

And far more begonias are started in Marin gardens as seedlings than as bulbs.

IN EITHER form, there isn't a better choice for the shade garden. And very near the coast in Marin they can even take a fair amount of sunshine.

What makes the tuberous begonia such a standout is its spectacular bloom that comes in a rainbow of brilliant colors and in an eye-pleasing array of flower forms.

Many gardeners like to use their tuberous begonias as the focal point in a landscape setting, in the foreground before a backdrop of shurbs, or as a carpet under trees.

THEY GO WELL, too, in clay pots — the six and seven inch size pots are ideal — so that they can be moved about to provide color splashes where they are most needed. These can even be brought indoors for short periods of time to enliven a dreary room.

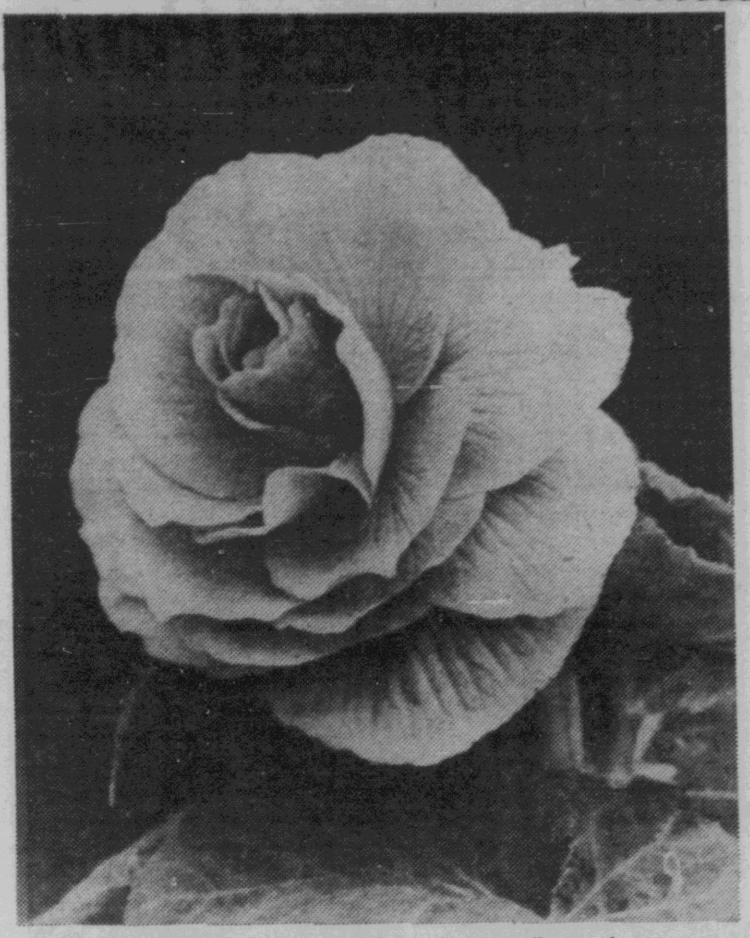
In planting tuberous begonia seedlings in the earth, start with a rich, porous and well-drained soil. Your nurseryman can recommend a planter mix formula and can outline the simple planting procedures for you.

In selecting your planting site, a general rule is that the exposures best suited to camellias, fuchsias and azaleas are also best suited to begonias.

THE COLOR kadeidoscope includes orange, apricot, red, salmon, pink, yellow and variegations. The forms range from rose-like blooms to camellia-flowering types. And some of those blooms will measure five inches or more across.

This becomes all the more impressive when one remembers that begonia blooms can be cut for indoor bouquets and decor.

Indoors or outdoors, these are the kind of blooms that cause observers to "oh" and "ah," and speeds them to the nearest nursery to acquire their own members of this spectacular perennial family.



THE ROSE-LIKE BLOOM is one of the favorite flower forms among the tuberous begonias, but there are others equally beautiful.

Be Thorough In Watering Of Dichondra

You can sprinkle a dichondra lawn too often and still not give it enough water.

Sounds contradictory, but it's true! There are many, many householders who get real pleasure from hand-sprinkling their dichondra lawns. And, this is a relaxing pastime. But, alas, it's not doing much good — and can do considerable harm.

UNLESS HE'S watering just a small spot, the average person simply does not have the time nor the patience to hand-water long enough to give most dichondra lawns the amount of water they need.

A dichondra lawn should receive a half to a full inch of water with each irrigation. This means turning on the sprinklers and leaving them on for good, long soakings.

On some soils or on sloping lawns this might require turning the sprinklers on and off several times to let enough water soak in and to prevent run-off or puddling.

WHAT HARM can hand-sprinkling do? Since it usually only dampens the soil surface, this encourages shallow rooting — and weak plants.

Frequent hand-sprinkling also keeps the soil surface and dichondra leaves moist for longer periods of time, a condition disease organisms thrive on. Then, too, when the soil is kept damp, weed seeds lying at or near the top of the soil get the moisture they need to sprout and for the tiny sprouts to survive.

In comparison, watering less often, but giving thorough soakings, encourages deep rooting and lets the leaves and the soil surface dry out thoroughly between irrigations. This discourages diseases and prevents most weed sprouts from surviving.

So, reserve hand-watering to small areas and let your sprinklers do the heavy work of watering. Your dichondra lawn will thank you.

In fact, thorough watering is a good policy for almost all lawn and garden plantings.

The Taller Plants Require Support

Home gardeners should remember that tall-growing and weak-stemmed annual plants should be given support when they have reached about a third of their total growth.

So says James Underwood Crockett, horticulturist, among other hints aimed at assuring a healthy, bountiful and beautiful display of flowers for the home and property. They are in his book, "Annuals," first volume in a new Time-Life Encyclopedia of Gardening.

A twiggy brush, four to six inches shorter than the plant, and pushed into the ground beside it, makes an ideal support for the fragile-stemmed. Bamboo and reed stakes, or narrow redwood or cedar slats, should be used to stake the taller plants.

Annuals tend to grow with a minimum of care, Crockett advises. But from time to time they should be weeded and watered. They will flourish best if they are watered in the early morning, perhaps a couple of times a week, rather than lightly each day.

By periodically cutting off new flowers, the gardener can expect a greater production of blooms.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- With California's long dry, warm summer well under way, a regular watering schedule that stresses deep soaking is essential to the welfare of lawns gardens. Moisture-loving plants such as the camellia need more frequent waterings.
- Mulches can cut down on your watering chores, and also increase the effectiveness of your irrigations.
- Planning an outdoor party? Keep in mind how blooming pots of geraniums, zinnias, pelargoniums, marguerites or marigolds can add a colorful decorative touch to the festivities.
- Dahlias should be kept moist, but not wet. Feed them every two or three weeks.
- If you haven't already done so, thin out excess fruit on peach and other fruit trees. You'll get a better quality and size in your crop.
- Choose summer-flowering shrubs in bloom. Nurseries are now showing hibiscus, roses, lantanas, oleanders, abelias, hydrangeas and fuchsias.
- Dwarf citrus continue to be a popular choice as a container plant for the patio.

A KOOKY USE OF THE CUKE

THERE IS SOMETHING expecially satisfying about achieving an attractive landscape effect with an unusual planting. Here the tropical effect around this doorway has been created by cucumber plants. Along with lush foliage, the vines produced pretty yellow flowers — and finally edible vegetables. There is, of course, one drawback. The cucumber is an annual. Thus if you want the same effect again the next year, you will have to plant again.

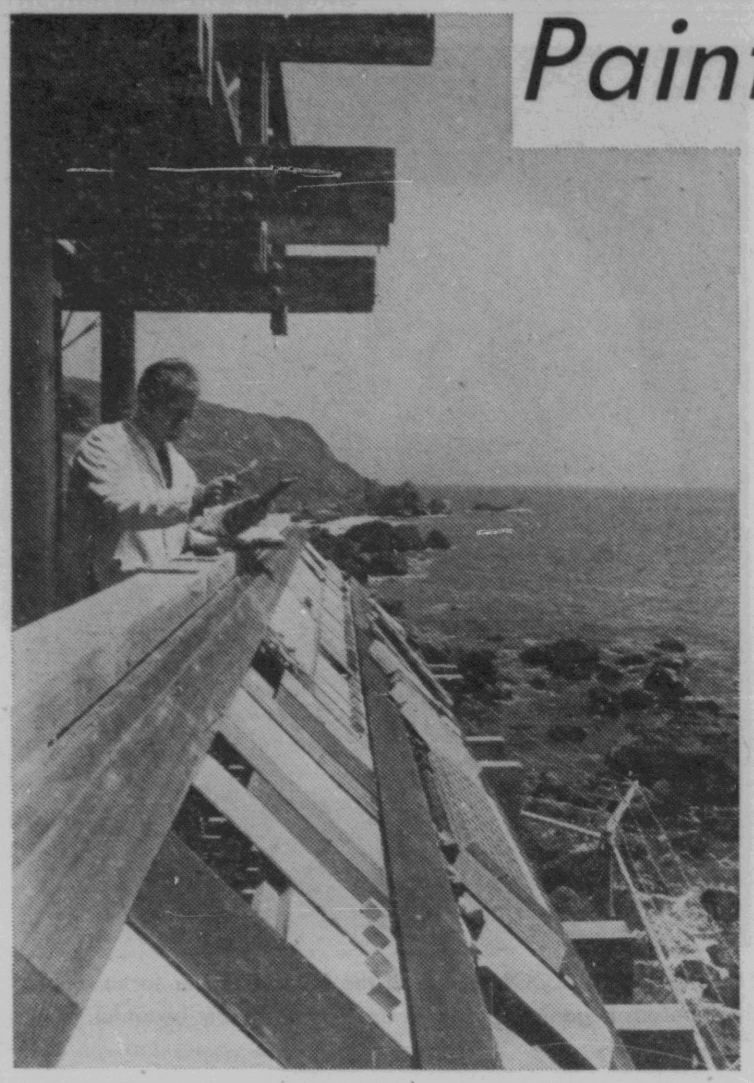
Painting Tips From An Expert

Pacific Gas and Electric Research Has Produced These Pointers



HARRY ALDERSON, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. research engineer, studies the effects of the elements on painted materials at the company's Muir Beach test station along Highway 1 to determine the best paints and surface materials for the utility's facilities.

Paint-up time close at hand?

If so, here are some basic pointers that guide the professionals, according to Harry Alderson, an engineer in Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s department of engineering research, which has conducted tests and research on paints and other coverings for more than 40 years:

1. DON'T STINT ON PAINT QUALITY. If you place a cash value on time devoted to a typical paint job, it's quickly apparent that the paint and brushes are the smallest cost component. PG&E figures that for each dollar spent on paint another $5 goes into the labor to prepare the surface and apply the covering. So a high quality, long-lived paint actually results in savings.

2. PREPARE THE SURFACE PROPERLY. A thorough cleaning and brushing pays by extending the life of paint. Patching of cracks and holes is a "must." If outdoor surfaces require new nails, the galvanized type is recommended. These can be set with a punch, then puttied for best appearance. Indoors, a caulking compound around windows will prevent water seepage, which can spoil the best of paint jobs.

3. USE A PRIMER. When the old paint is in sad shape or you are beginning with an unpainted surface, put on a good primer coat. Apply it so that it works into the surface. Alderson says two finish coats on top of the primer should produce a handsome covering with a life of at least five to eight years.

"IDEALLY, AFTER that time, all you will need is a single finish coat to make the surface look like new again," says Alderson, who has spent much of his 19 years with PG&E making sure the company receives full value for paints it purchases. He also supervises research to determine the best paints and coverings to protect PG&E buildings, equipment, and materials under the many types of atmospheric conditions in its service area.

The PG&E department of engineering research, located in Emeryville since 1926, handles more than 200 separate research projects in such fields as aquatic environment, corrosion control, extra high voltage transmission, radiation measurement and materials testing.

A staff of 75 men and women includes specialists from the fields of biology, oceanography, geology, physics, chemistry and metallurgy in addition to the major engineering disciplines.

ON THE BASIS of Alderson's studies, the department offers these additional painting tips:

1. Plan to paint during a dry, moderately warm (60 to 70 degrees) day.

2. Follow the paint manufacturer's instructions to the letter.

3. Latex paint, besides being easy to apply, has the ability to "breathe." That is, it lets moisture vapor through when temperature changes cause condensation. Conventional oil-base paints tend to blister when this happens, but they have other advantages such as establishing a good bond on surfaces like stucco.

4. An easy to clean nylon brush works best with latex. With oil-base paints, the professionals use bristle brushes, but nylon produces satisfactory results for most do-it-yourselfers.

5. Remember that most dark paints fade faster than light shades, says Alderson. Yellows and reds tend to fade more than, say, light blue and medium to light green.

One Basement — Three Rooms

Do you need a party room, a guest room, and a cozy den for reading or working at home? But you can't afford three new rooms?

You can have all three, and more, without putting up walls, if you have a basement. The secret is compartmentizing that open area, using built-ins at the right spots.

BUILT-INS along the walls leave the party room in the middle. In one corner, near plumbing, can be placed a food service counter, with sink and cabinets, and a range and refrigerator if desired.

Enclose this area with walls the depth of the appliances and folding louvered doors.

In an adjacent compartment, install book shelves, music center and television along the walls, and enclose this also with louvered doors for privacy.

Next to this "den" place closets so they set off the guest room, containing a sofa that converts to a bed. The closets also are handy for the family's off-season clothing.

OTHER PARTITIONS can space-off sewing and laundry equipment behind attractive doors.

The beauty of it all is that most of the work can be handled by the weekend handyman, a section at a time.

Western woods, louvered doors, and other supplies are offered by lumber dealers and it is not a project beyond the abilities of a home handyman.

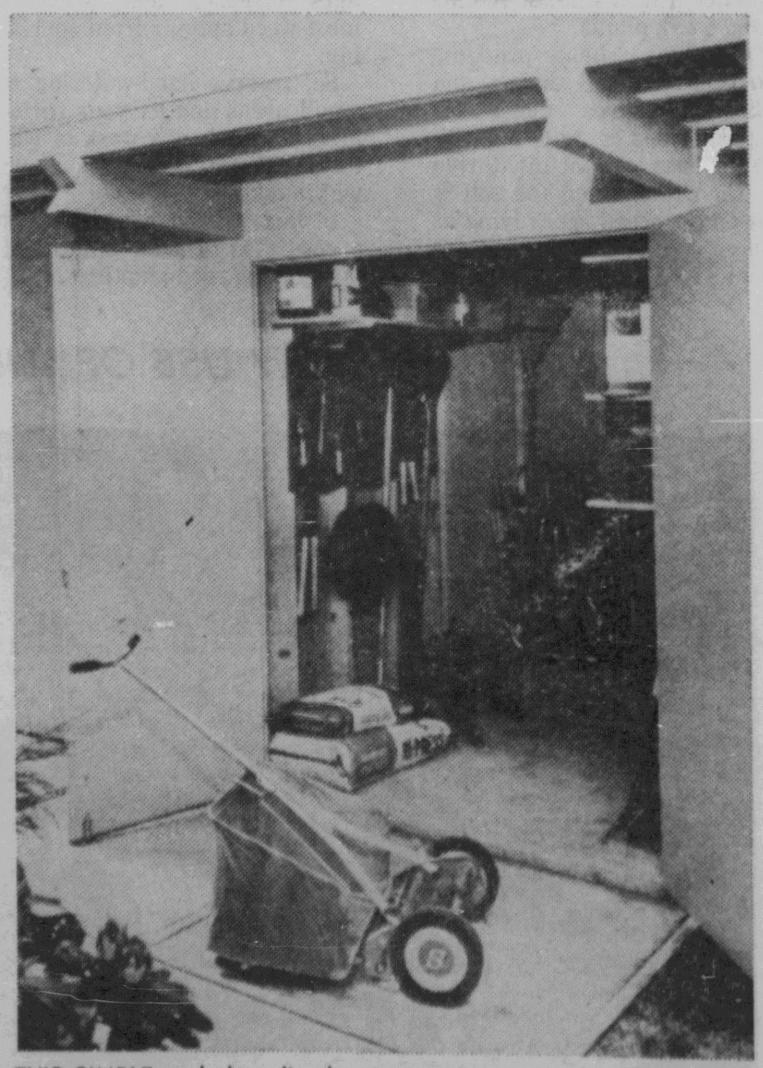
PLYWOOD PROJECT



THIS SIMPLE and clean-lined storage unit to accommodate garden tools and play equipment was devised by the American Plywood Association of 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, which offers the pattern for 25 cents. Ask for Form 65-180. Built of plywood, it stands seven feet seven and a half inches high, has three double door entries and can be colorfully painted or naturally stained. Its installation permits you to give the garage back to the family car.

Solving A Problem Of Luggage Space

YOU CAN USE that space atop your car for carrying luggage during your summer vacation trip, and still not run the risk of a sudden rainstorm dampening your possessions. Actor John Ericson demonstrates a compartment that can be built with the help of a Steve Ellingson pattern, which holds a generous amount of luggage, and which closes into a water-tight, dust-proof container while you travel.

Luggage is often a problem when you decide to make your summer vacation a motoring one.

The trunk compartment in the rear of the automobile overflows. Suitcases and hand luggage kept inside the car crowd and cramp the occupants.

A rack on top of the automobile seems a logical solution. But it, too, can present problems. A sudden rain can soak suitcases and even the contents. Dust and other d e b r i s also make themselves felt.

EVEN A CANVAS covering is not a total solution. For it often works loose and flaps wildly in the wind.

Then perhaps the ideal solution is a luggage compartment built from wood that locks securely and protects your belongings.

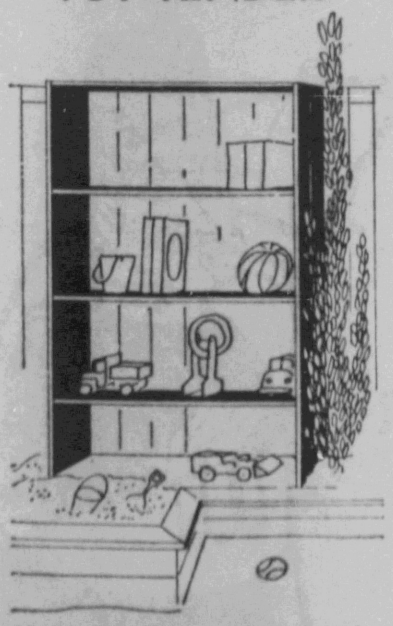
To build your own, send $1 (plus another 25 cnets if you want air mail service) to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Car Luggage Compartment Pattern No. 228.

The finished compartment can be locked as added protection against thieves. And it can be painted the same color as your car for appearance's sake.

IT BOASTS A hinged top that makes packing and unpacking easy.

The handyman needs only to trace the full-size pattern onto wood, saw it out and then assemble the pieces. The size can be varied to meet your specific needs.

TOY TENDER



SHELVES OF one-by-10-inch western fir or pine boards provide a simple but handy means of storage for the children's toys that otherwise would clutter up the backyard sandbox and destroy much of its usefulness. The box-like closet can be left unfinished or stained to match the play spot.

TV Discovers Raggedy Ann

Lester Osterman Productions Inc. has obtained an option to purchase television rights to the classic Raggedy Ann stories of Johnny Greulie from publisher Bobbs-Merill Co. Inc.

Osterman and daughter Patricia Gray, who did "The Littlest Angel" special seen annually at Christmas-Time, plan a musical show with Raggedy Ann as the heroine, and with music and lyrics by Joe Repose of "Sesame Street" fame.

The Mission's Muscle Man

By VERNON SCOTT

Peter Lupus, the muscle man of "Mission: Impossible," will be back next season after threatening to leave the series unless his role as Willie Armitage was expanded.

The producers have given Willie more to say and do, no little thanks to mountains of fan mail.

When Lupus began his role five years ago he weighed 238 pounds. Now he is a svelte 216, a result of rigid dieting. He consumes 150 capsules of vitamins, minerals and protein supplements a day.

Lupus' chest measures 49 inches; his waist is 32.

HE MAINTAINS these dimensions by breakfasting on a high protein energy drink with raw egg. Lunch is chopped liver and cottage cheese. Dinner is a small steak and salad.

Even so, Lupus must have all his clothes tailored. He hasn't been able to buy suits, trousers or jackets off the rack since he was 16.

The actor and his wife, Sharon, have been married nine years. Their 13-month-old son, Peter III, is already assuming the proportions of his father.

THE LITTLE Tyke is 33 inches tall and weighs 32 pounds. It is necessary to buy his clothes in the toddler department for 3 and 4-year-olds.

Home for the Lupus family is a Spanish modern which sits atop a hill overlooking the San Fernando valley. There are weights in the patio for quick workouts. But Lupus usually visits a nearby gym three days a week to keep his muscles in tone.

On weekends the family packs off for the beach or Palm Springs to sop up the sun and do some swimming.

LUPUS REPORTS to Paramount studio at 6 or 7 a.m. daily and works until 7 p.m. After dinner he attends acting classes two nights a week to break the big ox image he won as a former Mr. Indianapolis, Mr. Indiana and Mr. Hercules.

As is the case with many large men, Lupus is soft-spoken and self-effacing.

He and Sharon entertain now and then at small dinner parties. When they go out for dinner he prefers Japanese food because it is high in protein and low in calories.

EARLIER THIS year Lupus toured Japan, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands entertaining wounded servicemen.

"I was really surprised when I got home," he said. "Little Peter had grown so fast I hardly recognized the little guy. The doctor says he's going to be as big as I am."

Unlike many show business personalities, Lupus has a fixation about answering fan mail. On his days off from the show and during the hiatus he spends hours writing to fans of the show.

BEFORE GOING to bed every night he steps on the scales to weigh himself. If he's gained a pound or two he cuts back on his diet.

"It's one thing to be heavy and photograph 10 pounds more than you really are," he explained. "But when you have a huge chest and a small waist like I have, you photograph 20 pounds heavier.

"I'm trying to get away from that. So I've cut down my workouts. It's paid off. My neck size used to be 18 3/4 inches; now it's only 17 1/2.

New Releases On The London Label That Popularize The Classics

By JOHN SUNIER

A number of recent releases on the London label are of considerable interest to the record buyer.

The first three with which we'll deal are in the new area of popularizing the classics with people who normally could care less about the classics.

Several Bay Area people have been involved in the production of "The Music of Erik Satie: The Velvet Gentleman" Deram-London DES 18036. While recorded in England with the Camarata Contemporary Chamber Group, the strange album art was done by former San Francisco record promotion man Jon Sagen and the very Satie-ish liner note innovation was created by local harpsichordist Margaret Fabrizio and avant-garde composer Robert Moran.

The Satie music includes of course both the Three "Gymnopedies" and three "Gnossienne" as well as many of his other most inimitable little hors d'oeuvres. The performances are excellent and recording equally fine. The few tracks featuring the Moog synthesizer add a contemporary mood and convince the listener that Satie and Moog would have gotten along famously.

The music is somewhat arranged by Camerata, a versatile conductor-arranger in the Kostelanetz-Carmen Dragon bag, but the arrangements do not change Satie's intent appreciably, like with adding drums and bass or anything that violent. This is a thoroughly superior album of widest appeal.

DRUMS AND bass are just what pianist Jacques Loussier has been adding to the keyboard music of J.S. Bach now for some years, in the highly-regarded series of "Play Bach" albums on London. Now he plays Bach's complete "Brandenburg Concerto No. 5" with his trio and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra on a new London "Phase 4" recording, including the Baroque master's "Air on the G String" and "Prelude No. 2 in C Minor" as well.

The Fifth is the most ambitious of the six Brandenburgs, known for the first real solo use of the keyboard in an instrumental concerto. Loussier substitutes his piano, bass and drums for the harpsichord part of the original and the rest of the orchestra follows Bach's original score note for note.

The effect is very pleasing and should bring Bach's boisterous, swinging music in these concerti to many new ears.

GUSTAV HOLST'S suite, "The Planets" has been a hackneyed favorite of neophyte concert music listeners for some time. It also turns up with painful frequency as background music to silent films, documentaries etc. Those who are sick of these programmatic portraits of the various heavenly bodies will be almost as pleased with Bernard Herrmann's new London recording (Phase 4 SPC 21049) as those who, God forbid, havenever heard of it.

He plays these impressionistically post-Romantic pieces to the hilt and London's engineers have outdone all competition in capturing the sound. The large amount of "ambient information" captured by the multi-mike method of London's "Phase 4" system is especially thrilling when heard on a pseudo-quadrasonic speaker set-up. One is surrounded by rich orchestral sound.

The album's art presentation is obviously inspired by the popularity of the "2001" soundtrack album.

THE FIRST stereodiscing of music from Edouard Lalo's "Namouna" ballet of 1882 is found on London CS 6536, with L'Orchestre de la Suiss Romande conducted by Ernest Anermet.) The busy plot is not very important: it concerns a slave girl and pirates on Corfu. The music is colorful, rich and very French-19-th-century.

Lalo's "Norwegian Rhapsody" fills out the LP. It boasts melodies that seem exceedingly familiar even upon hearing the selection for the first time. Actually, the music sounds less Norwegian than Spanish, a la flamenco.

A SIMPLY brilliant concerto for soprano vocalise and orchestra is one of two major works of Reinhold Gliere on London OS 26110, featuring Joan Sutherland, with The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Bonynge. This is the first modern stereo version of the "Concerto for Soprano and Orchestra" as well as the fine "Concerto for Harp and Orchestra" the latter with soloist Ossian Ellis.

Gliere pleased both Czars and commissars during his 75-year composing life. While he is an arch-conservative, his melodies are truly beautiful and finely-wrought.

Three little encores fill out this Sutherland-family effort, one of which is the matchless Stravinsky "Pastorale."

THE ONLY recording of Borodin's "Quintet in C Minor" is given a loving performance by members of the Vienna Octet on London CS 6636, along with Mendelssohn's "Sextet in D Major, Op. 110." The Mendelssohn work is a gilt-edged delight of great lightness and elan. Superb sound throughout; one of the distinguished chamber music recordings of the year.

One of the major works of Beethoven's early period was the ballet "The Creatures of Prometheus." Zubin Mehta and The Israel Philharmonic Orchestra essay a new version of excerpts from this ballet score on London CS 6660. Beethoven was in love and happy during this period — unusual for the brooding master — and his music is full of lightness and verve, with inventive melodies andgrace. Harps figure predominantly in the orchestrations.

This new release expands our view of a composer we usually don't think of as a ballet composer.

A GULP, A BITE, A CHEW — AND SUDDENLY YOU'RE A WINNER

There is literally a variety of ways to throw yourself into the eating and drinking contests at the Marin-Sonoma Fair, as these appealing (and very full) youngsters demonstrate. And, if your enthusiasm — and your tummy — holds out, you may be the winner. Gregory Baarts, 3, of Corte Madera, (far left) looks as though he may be throwing in the towel in the milk drinking contest, but Lisa Ramponi, 4, of Petaluma, appears still eager in the watermelon contest. At far right, James Angel, 12, of Petaluma, shows what it takes to be big winner in the fair's pie eating contest, and Mike Twomey, 11, of Windsor, demonstrates the ability which captured first place in the watermelon eating category at right. The youngsters were among 17,304 persons who flocked to the fairgrounds yesterday. Since the fair began Wednesday, 29,776 persons have visited the exhibits and joined in the fun. The final day's activities tomorrow will include a junior horse show at 9 a.m., dairy cattle awards, a 4-H dog obedience show, a fair parade in downtown Petaluma beginning at 1 p.m., a chicken barbecue at 12:30 p.m. in the fair picnic area, a variety show at the Gardenway Theater at 7:30 p.m. and auto racing at the grandstand at 8 p.m.

TRIBUNAL REPORT HEARING

Breach Of Trust Is Charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government's top prosecutor told the Supreme Court today the New York Times and the Washington Post "consciously and intentionally participated in a breach of trust" by publishing part of the Pentagon's secret Vietnam study.

U.S. Solicitor General Erwin N. Griswold made the claim in his opening argument on the celebrated newspapers case, the first in which the Supreme Court has agreed to rule on judicial power to restrain the press from publishing news the executive branch deemed a threat to U.S. security.

After acknowledging newspapers rightly attach great importance to preservation of freedom of the press, Griswold said the court had to consider the "integrity of the presidency" and the need to have it "function effectively."

He claimed the U.S. Constitution did not forbid the government to stop the press from printing something, citing copyright and literary property laws as examples of deterrents to a totally unfettered press.

Justice Potter Stewart asked Griswold if publication of the material in the 47-volume Pentagon report would harm the national interest, whether or not it was classified "secret" and regardless of how the newspapers obtained it.

"Doesn't it depend on the claim that disclosure would result in immediate, grave threat to the security of the United States however the material was acquired," the justice inquired.

"Yes," replied Griswold, "but the fact that obviously it was acquired improperly is not irrelevant.

At the start of the extraordinary Saturday session, jammed with spectators, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger denied a government move to hold some of the arguments privately. He said the lawyers could submit papers "under seal" instead.

Griswold said attorneys for the Justice Department, the Times and the Post filed "closed briefs" and the government's case was fortified by "more detail" from the Departments of State and Defense.

Both newspapers were seeking the right to resume publication of articles based on the secret report, entitled "History of U.S. decision Making Policy in Vietnam," which traces American involvement in Southeast Asia from the end of World War II until May, 1968. The study was begun in 1967 on orders from then Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Government lawyers contended in previous lower court hearings the documents were stolen in violation of the Espionage

WARRANT FOR ARREST OF ELLSBERG ISSUED

Complaint Says Ex-Pentagon Aide Had Two Sets Of Secret Papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A warrant was issued Friday for the arrest of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg on charges of illegally possessing and failing to return documents from a top secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam War, the Justice Department announced early today.

Ellsberg, 40, is a former consultant to the Rand Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., which helped the Defense Department prepare the 47-volume study, and has been frequently cited as the possible source who leaked the study to The New York Times.

Ellsberg's lawyer, Leonard D. Boudin, a visiting professor at the Harvard Law School, said in Cambridge that Ellsberg would appear in court when he is ordered. "I have taken the position that Dr. Ellsberg has violated no law, disobeyed no order of any court and of course will appear in response to any process," Boudin said.

A complaint filed with the warrant said Ellsberg possessed "separately bound sets of 47 and 18 volumes ... of Xerox copies of a study of 'United States Vietnam Relations for the period 1945-1967.' All but one volume were classified top secret.

The arrest warrant and complaint were signed by U.S. magistrate Venetta S. Tassopulos in Los Angeles, where a federal grand jury is investigating the documents leak at the request of the Justice Department.

The department said the charges against Ellsberg carry a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine on conviction.

Ellsberg, now a senior research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, dropped out of sightlast week, surfacing only to appear Wednesday night on a CBS television interview that had been taped at a "secret location."

Affidavits signed by Rand Corp. security officials Richard Best and Jan Butler said Ellsberg, who worked for Rand from 1967 until the fall of 1970, had access to the entire 47-volume Vietnam study and was given actual custody of 27 of the volumes "at various times between Oct. 23, 1969, and April 7, 1970."

Another affidavit filed with the warrant was signed by Ellsberg's former wife, Carol, who said she learned in October, 1969, that her husband had been making Xerox copies of documents, some of which bore a "top secret" stamp.

She said she warned him that "this was a criminal act and he could go to jail for it." His reply, she said, was that "he had done nothing illegal and there was no official secrets act in this country."

Mrs. Ellsberg said her husband told her he "was very concerned about the war in Vietnam and that he was going to be actively working against it and that there were things that had not been disclosed which should be known.

"He then said he would only give it to authorized people like Sens. (J. William) Fulbright and (former Sen. Charles E.) Goodell," she said.

Lynda R. Sinay, 28, a divorcee and friend of Ellsberg's in Los Angeles, told the grand jury there on Thursday that Ellsberg had used her Xerox machine in late 1969 to copy about 3,000 pages of documents she could not identify.

Another Ellsberg friend and former fellow Rand employe, Anthony J. Russo Jr., faces possible contempt of court action for refusing to testify before the grand jury, even though he has been granted immunity from prosecution.

Possible Tragedy In Air Is Avoided

LONDON (UPI)—A British European Airways (BEA) airliner and a Pan American cargo jet nearly collided in flight over Heathrow Airport Friday, a BEA spokesman said.

The pilot of the BEA Vanguard turboprop plane which carried 135 passengers reported the planes took evasive action by climbing steeply.

Marin City Boys' Club Into UBAC

The Marin City Boys' Club, after five years of trying, won admittance yesterday to the United Bay Area Crusade.

UBAC announced in San Francisco that the club, which serves 350 boys, will be eligible for funding in 1972. The amount of financial support will be fixed later.

The club, financed entirely by contributions, has been seeking UBAC funding since its formation in 1966. Its facilities include game and study rooms, a library, arts and crafts area, photo laboratory and an auto mechanics shop.

Manford (Manny) Chandler, club director, said today the club still must raise about $32,000 for operating costs this year. Contributions may be sent to the club at 640 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

The club was among three agencies — the other two are in San Francisco and on the Peninsula — promised UBAC financing in 1972.

Agnew To Launch A 10-Nation Tour Tomorrow; Korea First

EL TORO, Calif. (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew Sunday begins a 10-nation diplomatic tour of Africa, Asia and Europe, his most ambitious international undertaking since assuming office.

Agnew will visit Korea, Singapore, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Ethiopia, Kenya, the Democratic Republic of the Congo, Spain, Morocco, and Portugal.

The vice president's previous two ventures into foreign diplomacy were confined to Asia.

Agnew will be gone a month, returning to the United States July 28.

The mission, according to a spokesman, does not have an overall comprehensive goal but was planned on a country by country basis. Agnew's first destination —Seoul, Korea — may be the most important of the trip.

In a ceremonial role, Agnew is going to Korea as head of the U.S. delegation to the inauguration July 1 of President Chung Hee Park.

But Agnew plans to spend five days in Seoul and is expected to have several meetings with Park to discuss delicate matters.

On his last trip to Korea — last August —Agnew brought the formal news that the United States was scaling down its military commitment there.

On this trip, however, a main topic of conversation could be Korea's decision to withdraw its 48,000 battle-toughened troops from Vietnam.

Under the present South Korean plan, the first 15,000 troops are scheduled to leave this year, a timetable that has upset the South Vietnamese.

The Vietnamese would like to keep the Koreans in place in the Central Coastal Region through the South Vietnamese elections in October and the expected enemy post-monsoon offensive next spring.

The United States is involved because it provides the weapons, ammunition, combat pay and other support for the South Koreans in Vietnam.

In Seoul, government leaders hope to discover during Agnew's visit whether the United States is considering South Korea as a possible site for tactical nuclear arms storage.

South Korean leaders will stress that the reversion of Okinawa to Japan should not weaken American defense capability in Asia, and military leaders have suggested Cheju Island for the storage of nuclear arms when they are removed from Okinawa.

American military experts have so far indicated they feel Cheju is too close to the China mainland.

Heroin Haul In Mekong Delta Area

CAN THO, Vietnam (UPI)—A large quantity of heroin has been confiscated and about 20 U.S. servicemen have surrendered for medical treatment in connection with a narcotics crackdown in the Mekong Delta, military spokesman said Saturday.

The drive also turned up 182 soldiers absent without leave from their bases and resulted in the arrest of eight others for narcotics possession and six for marijuana possession, spokesmen said.

The spokesmen said Maj. Gen. John H. Cushman, who ordered the 16,000 American servicemen in the delta restricted to their bases Tuesday for an indefinite period as part of the crackdown, met Friday with Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of all U.S. forces in Vietnam, to discuss the success of the program.

Two "shakedown" inspections, one Tuesday morning and another Friday, along with narcotics voluntarily surrendered by the 200 seeking amnesty, have produced a total of 234

Judge Bars St. Louis War Report

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—A federal judge today issued a restraining order barring the St. Louis Post-Dispatch from further publication of secret Pentagon documents on the Indochina War.

David Lipman, assistant managing editor, said: "Our lawyers have informed us that a restraining order has been issued. Beyond that, we know nothing more."

Lipman said he did not know who the judge was who had issued the order. "It is strange that we don't know," he said.

The first edition of today's paper was halted minutes before it went to press, and the front page was replated with a bulletin in a three-column box that read, "The Post-Dispatch today was restrained by a United States District Court order from further publication of secret Pentagon documents setting out the history of the nation's involvement in the Vietnam War."

The story which the bulletin replaced would have said the newspaper planned to resume publication in Sunday's paper the documents it began printing in Friday's edition.

Instant Status As Sophomores To Be Offered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Freshmen entering San Francisco State College next fall will have a chance to become instant sophomores by taking a series of five tests.

President S.I. Hayakawa said the experimental program, which will be offered to 1,300 new students, could provide up to 30 hours of credit before students enter a classroom. All who apply will be given tests.

The exams, each worth six college credits, will determine the student's knowledge of English composition, social science-history, humanities, natural science and mathematics.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The husband-wife singing team of Sonny and Cher will star in a summer comedy-variety series on CBS beginning Aug. 1 at 8:30 Sundays.

Comedienne Pat Carroll gets a regular role on "The Bobby Sherman Show," a half-hour series starring the singer that ABC will put in the 8-8:30 p..m slot Saturdays beginning Sept. 18.

James Stewart does "Harvey" again, this time as a Hallmark Hall of Fame special on NBC eariy in 1972. Stewart played the Elwood P. Dowd role as a replacement for Frank Fay during the original Broadway run of Mary Chase's lovable play in the 1940's. He starred in the 1950 film version, which has had numerous video outings in recent years. He was on the Broadway revival with Helen Hayes in 1970.

Are you set for Christmas? ABC announces a repeat of a Yuletide standard, "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town" for Dec. 3, and a December airing for an animated version of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

NBC's forthcoming "Nichols" series, starring James Garner, has added as cast regulars Margot Kidder and Stuart Margolin. Miss Kidder is the provocative Canadian actress who gained so much attention in the "Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin in the Bronx" movie a year ago. Vargolin has been a guest star on numerous television shows.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Quits The VFW

KENOSHA, Wis. (UPI)—Chuck Goranson, a Vietnam War veteran, formally resigned from the Veterans of Foreign Wars Friday, saying the VFW is "made up of far-right wing people and drunken old men with older ideas."

Goranson, a member of the so-called "Peace Post" from Madison, Wis., participated in peaceful protests against the veterans organization because the Madison chapter had been suspended by the national VFW for its antiwar activities.

A second day of protests was scheduled today.

Had 'Enough'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Three tiring Soviet cosmonauts achieved 300 Earth orbits in their Salyut space station today, two of them flashing game smiles from behind bushy black beards. One cosmonaut said, "We've had enough."

The cosmonauts, Georgy Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev, have spent 20 days in space —more than any other men.

They carried out complex experiments today intended to measure the activity of atomic particles in and around their 25-ton station. It was the latest in a series of 140 tests assigned to the cosmonauts during their record-setting flight.

Bank Bombed

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—An Oakland branch of the Bank of America suffered $2,000 damage in a pipe bomb explosion — the 46th attack on the bank's facilities in the past 17 months.

The bomb, made of gunpowder stuffed into a six-inch pipe, was placed in a brick flower box in front of the bank, police said. It exploded Thursday night, blowing out windows in the bank and a store next door.

A Long Rest

LONDON (UPI) — Conductor Leopold Stokowsky, hospitalized three days ago for medical tests, has canceled engagements with the London Symphony Orchestra and will take a long convalescent vacation in Europe, doctors said today.

A spokesman for Westminster Hospital said the 84-year-old musician plans to leave the hospital shortly and spend seven weeks on the continent. Doctors have advised a complete rest, he said.

Stokowsky entered the hospital Thursday after complaining he felt unwell.

Fiscal Session

THURMONT, Md. (UPI)—President Nixon met with his chief fiscal advisers Saturday morning starting a two-day discussion at Camp David of the economy, congressional action relating to it and the anticipated federal deficit for the current fiscal year.

Also under consideration was the federal budget which will be effective for the new fiscal year starting July 1. Central theme in the talks will be administration action in the fight against inflation.

Nixon arrived at Camp David Friday following a two-day midwest trip into Indiana and Illinois. He watched a television movie before retiring. Mrs. Nixon drove here from Washington this morning.

'Superb' Shape

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Composer Rudolph Friml, who entered a hospital for the first time at the age of 91, was out again today, and in "superb condition."

Friml won fame as the composer of such operettas as "Rose Marie" and "The Vagabond King."

Lightning Strikes

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Lightning struck the Apollo 15 lauunch tower again Friday, but the moonship escaped damage and newly installed fuses protected vulnerable ground equipment.

It was the fifth time in two weeks lightning hit the 446-foot umbilical tower next to the moon rocket.

Detailed testing showed that the first four strikes did not affect the delicate systems in the spacecraft and the lightning that hit the tower Friday was of relatively low strength.

Still In Hospital

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Juan V. Corona remained hospitalized today after doctors said they "can't rule out" a heart ailment as the cause of his chest pains.

The physicians decided Friday to keep Corona, 37, suspect in the slayings of 25 itinerant farm hands, in the hospital over the weekend because of "significant changes" in the tests of his heart.

Addict Threatens Touring Senator

NEW YORK (UPI)—Four U.S. senators visiting a Harlem "shooting gallery" where addicts were preparing to inject themselves with heroin fled quickly Friday when one addict threatened Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, with a knife.

Hughes said he did not see the knife, possibly because a television cameraman blocked his view, but said, "It was a dangerous place to be in."

Six male addicts were preparing to take heroin shots in a basement of the Harlem tenement visited by Hughes, Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., and Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and newsmen and television cameramen.

When camera crews turned on their lights, the surprised addicts screamed at them to leave.

"Get the ——out of here," yelled the addict with the knife. "You've got a lot of —— nerve. I'm gonna bust this knife right up your —."

The senators, members of the Senate Subcommittee on Alcoholism and Narcotics, had been taken to the addicts' gathering place by officials of a heroin detoxification agency across the street who wanted to show how widespread the drug problem was in the slums.

SEN. HAROLD HUGHES

"When it's so wide open that three or four United States senators can walk into a shooting gallery just across the street from a hospital where addicts are supposed to be recovering, when heroin can be bought on any street, then it's a national tragedy," Hughes said.

A few minutes earlier on their tour, a former heroin addict, Isaac Hayes, 16, showed Hughes five packs of heroin he said he had just bought. The drug agency had given him $10 to show the senators how easy it was to buy drugs in the area.

Later the youth pointed to a man in a maroon shirt standing at a corner as the person who sold the heroin.

The senators' trip also included a visit to a Methadone center, a walk through Harlem and meetings with leaders of anti-drug programs.

"I wish you all well and hope you can recover and get out of here and start to live reasonable lives," Hughes told a group of girls at the clinic.

Hughes, who admits to being a former alcoholic and has been mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential contender in 1972, said he was not shocked by the incident in the basement. "The ghettos are where the drug problem is the worst," he said.

Hughes also said testimony before the subcommittee in Washington had prepared the senators for what they saw.

Recess On Budget Work

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A two-house legislative conference committee seeking to write a compromise state budget has recessed for the weekend after barely beginning its work.

Three senators and three Assemblymen met for about two hours Friday behind closed doors. They reported no progress on reaching an early agreement.

Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the bipartisan panel, said negotiations would resume Monday morning.

The reports Collier referred to were summaries of differences between the Senate and Assembly versions of Gov. Ronald Reagan's 1971-72 state budget.

The legislature must agree on a compromise figure before midnight June 30, or the state enters the new fiscal year without authority to spend money.

Reagan has the last say, however, in expenditures with the power to veto sums he believes unnecessary. But the governor cannot increase state spending.

Airline Luggage Woes Being Eased

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) —Airline passengers complain more about lost and damaged baggage than anything else, and something is being done about it.

Twenty-one of the world's leading airlines flying the Boeing 747 now load passengers' baggage into protective containers that carry the luggage until it is unloaded at destination, says Goodyear Aerospace Corp., maker of such containers. As well as reducing complaints, the system also speeds up passenger baggage service, the company says.

CRLA Takes Top Agency To Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) —California's Legal Service Program for the Rural Poor, which incurred the wrath of Gov. Ronald Reagan for suing his administration, now is taking the federal antipoverty agency to court.

California Rural Legal Assistance Inc. (CRLA) filed suit Friday in U.S. District Court asking it to order director Frank R. Carlucci of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) to disclose the findings of a special commission which investigated charges of improper activites against the legal services organization.

The charges were the basis last winter of Reagan's veto of a $1.8 million OEO grant to CRLA. At the time, Carlucci gave the program funds last through July and chose three state supreme court jurists to look into the charges. The OEO director got the commission report Friday, but said he would not disclose its findings until he decides whether to give CRLA funds for the rest of 1971.

The CRLA suit was filed to force Carlucci to release the commission report. It expressed confidence that the three judges had made recommendations favorable to CRLA, but its lawyer, William McCabe, told newsmen that would do the organization very little good if Carlucci decided to cut off the rest of the 1971 funds.

McCabe said CRLA hoped for a hearing on the suit Monday, because Carlucci probably would make his decision by July 1.

Although Reagan's veto was based on a series of specific charges against CRLA's operations, the governor reportedly has been irked for some time by the organization's successful challenges of his administration. A suit that forced the state to give up a planned multi-million dollar cutback in medical care for the poor is the most frequently cited example.

The commission appointed by Carlucci last March to investigate CRLA included former Chief Justices Robert B. Williamson of Maine and George R. Currie of Wisconsin an Justice Robert B. Lee of Colorado. Justice Thomas Tongue of Oregon was a member of the commission but resigned after the state declined to participate in public hearings on the charges.

JUST BELOW DMZ

Americans Join In Fighting Around Abandoned Fire Base

SAIGON (UPI) — American tanks and armored personnel carriers today joined South Vietnamese forces in the fighting around the abandoned Fire Base Fuller just below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), military sources said.

It was the first time U.S. ground forces had become involved in the weeklong struggle around the mountaintop outpost five miles south of the DMZ.

Fuller was overrun by 1,500 North Vietnamese troops Wednesday night and reoccupied by South Vietnamese troops less than 24 hours later. It was finally abandoned, its fortifications and bunkers destroyed by air strikes.

Mititary sources said the American armor, from the 1st Brigade of the 5th Division (Mechanized), took up blocking positions east of Fuller and were firing in direct support of the South Vietnamese.

U.S. B52 bombers meanwhile kept up heavy raids in support of Allied troops around Fuller, flying four missions in the 24 hours ending at noon (12 midnight EDT), th U.S. Command said. Since May 21, nearly 20 million pounds of bombs have been dropped by B52s over Quang Tri province, which includes Fuller.

The U.S. command also reported a North Vietnamese rocket attack that killed one GI at Camp Carroll, a joint U.S. South Vietnamese outpost, four miles southeast of Fuller.

Another American was killed and six were wounded when an armored personnel carrier hit a mine eight miles northwest of Fuller and the pilot of an American UH 1 Huey helicopter died when it was shot down east of An Khe, 240 miles northeast of Saigon on Friday.

South Vietnamese troops battled the Communists two miles east of Fuller, killing 12 North Vietnamese and capturing four weapons Friday afternoon, military spokesmen said.

The South Vietnamese command rushed 5,000 fresh troops into the battle for Fire Base Fuller, the western anchor of the thinly held line of fortifications along the Demilitarized Zone. A regiment of government Marines moved into Fire Base Sarge, eight miles south of Fuller.

Official South Vietnamese figures issued today showed 13 government troops killed in the fighting at Fuller, which fell to the North Vietnamese Wednesday night and was recaptured by the South Vietnamese Thursday night. More than 100 South Vietnamese had first been reported killed.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said 120 North Vietnamese were killed in the fighting for Fuller and as many as 300 others were killed by air strikes and artillery barrages between June 19 and 24 in and around the mountaintop base.

Israeli Troops On Bank Of Canal Fire On Jets

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli troops on the occupied east bank of the Suez Canal opened fire today on two Egyptian fighter-bombers that buzzed their positions on the southern end of the waterway, a military spokesman in Tel Aviv reported.

The incident coincided with a warning by Egypt and Saudi Arabia that there is no chance for any enduring peace in the Middle East unless Israel withdraws from Arab territory seized in the 1967 war and "the Palestinian people regain their rights."

The Israeli spokesman said two Soviet-made Sukhoi 7 jet warplanes flew across the canal, which marks the Egyptian-Israeli 1967 war cease-fire line, in mid-morning. It was the sixth time since April 26 that the Israelis have reported firing on Egypt an planes apparently on reconnaissance missions over their front line defenses. None of the aircraft has been reported hit, however.

A complaint against what Israel considered as another violation of the Middle East ceasefire was fited with the U.N. Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) in Jerusalem, the spokesman said.

Egypt and Saudi Arabia called on Arab and other nations to support the Palestinian cause in the Middle East struggle and said Arab backing "is an important factor in the confrontation with the Israeli enemy."

Fairfax Approves Improvement Funds

The Fairfax City Council last night approved by a 4-1 vote a capital improvements budget of $113,000 for 1971-72 that includes funds for street improvements and city hall remodeling.

The budget is part of a total city spending program of $583,818 proposed by City Administrator Robert E. Crowe.

Most of the budget will be used for street improvements, including rebuilding the intersection at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Claus and Bank Streets and installing traffic signals at the location.

The councilmen spent considerable time discussing the practicality of the move, which will cost the city $40,000. According to Rowe, the intersection is poor and has caused significant traffic problems because of uneven intervals in the signals and improper funneling of cars onto Sir Francis Drake.

The council also allocated $35,000 for city hall remodeling; $6,500 for replacing the Bridge Court bridge; $1,500 for a new storage building; $500 for fire alarm undergrounding; $11,000 for park improvements and $8,500 for water line improvements.

Councilman Francis J. O'Connel opposed rebuilding the intersection and replacing Bridge Court bridge. He gave no reason for his opposition to the street improvement but did question whether the bridge is sufficiently traveled to merit replacing.

The council also approved budgets for the building department, $13,845; recreation department, $17,913; parks, $17,254; street, $98,237, and corporation yard, $33,720.

The council later went into closed session to instruct Crowe on city employee salary negotiations and announced it would meet again on the issue in open session at 8 p.m. Monday.

Four Hurt In Accidents; Three Crashes On 101

Three separate accidents on Highway 101 yesterday injured four persons, none seriously, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Joseana Cruz, 30, of Richmond, was treated for multiple injuries at Marin General Hospital after a wheel came off the pickup truck she was driving, causing it to overturn, spilling 2,100 pounds of fishing sinkers across the road.

Mrs. Cruz was driving south on the highway near the Sausalito offramp at 8:30 a.m. when the accident occurred.

Rudy Jungberg, 57, of 11 Blossom Drive, San Rafael, was to see his own doctor after his auto was hit from behind about 9:15 a.m. near the Tiburon Boulevard overcrossing by a car driven by Roy C. Klabunder, 61, of 285 Alameda Dela Roma, Novato, officers said. Klabunder also was to see his own doctor.

Mary E. Kelly, 43, of 60 Nova Lane, Novato was injured at 4 p.m. when her auto was hit from behind by two cars after she spun sideways trying to avoid a car that she said had cut in front of her. She was to see her own doctor for injuries suffered in the crash.

Uninjured were the drivers of the other two cars, Verda M. Westbrook, 52, of Santa Rosa, and Harry J. Bolton, 35, of 282 Orange Blossom Lane, San Rafael. The accident occurred north of the Sir Francis Drake Boulevard interchange.

FIRE CALLS

Church Blaze Is Being Probed

Marin County firemen are investigating the cause of a blaze which swept through the day school annex of the Village Baptist Church in Los Ranchitos early today, gutting the building and causing $15,500 damage.

The fire began about 1:26 a.m. in the annex, at 7 Via Van Buren, and the structure was engulfed by flames by the time firemen arrived minutes later. Firemen could not say where the fire started, but had contained it by 1:48 a.m.

Damage to the school building was estimated at $14,000, while damage to contents was expected to total $1,500.

JIM KEAN

Picture Of Shoot-Out Is Winner

I-J Special Report

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — The dramatic picture of a kidnapper holding a pistol and a shotgun at the head of a judge during an ill-fated bid to escape won the Independent-Journal second place for news pictures in the 1971 Better Newspaper contest.

The I-J also won honorable mention in the contest's freedom of information category — a division in which the paper won first prizes in 1968 and 1970.

The results of the contest were announced today during the 86th annual convention of the National Newspaper Association.

Contest judges said I-J photographer Jim Kean, "was alert and did an excellent job of catching an event that made national news."

His prize — winning photograph was taken during the Hall of Justice shoot-out in which Judge Harold J. Haley and three others were killed.

Kean has won three previous second place awards for photographs entered in the Better Newspaper Contest — in 1965, '68 and '70.

The first place award for photography went to the Village Voice, in New York City, for Fred W. McDarrah's photograph of a uniformed-man holding a knife-carrying woman at bay with a club.

Third place went to John Filo's Pulitzer prize winning picture of a teen-ager kneeling over the body of a student slain at Kent State University. Filo, then a student at the university, took the picture for the Tarentum, Pa., Valley Daily News.

First prize in the freedom of information category went to the Lapeer, Mich., County Press, which had been denied access to certain public records and took the fight to court.

DRUGS

vials of heroin containing between one and two grams per vial, and 60 pounds of marijuana mixed with tobacco, spokesmen said.

During the five days that American servicemen have been restricted to their bases, South Vietnamese police have conducted a series of raids on bars frequented by Americans in an effort to cut off the sources of supply of the narcotics, spokesmen said.

Hearing Set In Drug Case

A preliminary hearing was set yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for Michael Eugene Zelinski, 22, and Richard Carter Cravath, 32, both of San Anselmo.

Both are charged with possessing heroin, possessing it for sale, selling LSD and possessing drug paraphernalia. Zelinski pleaded innocent to the charges yesterday.

They were arrested Wednesday after police went to their residence in search or robbery suspects. The robbery suspects were not found, but the drugs allegedly were.

No Complaint In Drug Investigation

No complaint was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Mark Hampton Scott, 52, of San Rafael, arrested Wednesday on suspicion of selling heroin and possessing stolen property.

The district attorney's office said a complaint would not be filed pending chemical analysis of the suspected narcotics.

Guilty Plea To Burglary

Ross Sheffield Murphy, 20, of Ross, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to burglarizing a San Rafael residence May 9.

He was bound over to superior court to appear July 12 for setting of a sentencing date.

He was arrested May 15 after he attempted to sell 90 silver dollars to a local merchant, according to police.

Murphy's fingerprints matched prints taken at the home of Wilbur F. Mathewson of 47 Bret Harte Lane, from which a coin collection was taken in a burglary, police said.

Innocent Plea To Pot Charge

Daniel Martin Klopf, 19, of Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing marijuana.

Preliminary hearing was set for July 20.

Klopf was arrested Wednesday when Mill Valley police stopped him to see if the bicycle he was riding had been stolen. Police said they found a cigarette and plastic bag, both believed to contain marijuana, in his possession.

Act before the newspapers obtained them.

Griswold was given one hour to argue the government's case.

Attorneys for the Post and the Times also were allowed an hour with the time divided equally for each of the papers, to say why, in the interests of a free press, they should be permitted to resume publication of articles based on the Pentagon study with no restrictions whatsoever.

The Supreme Court voted 5 to 4 on Friday to hear the case and partially restrained both newspapers pending the outcome of the litigation. It said the Times and the Post could go ahead with publication in today's editions of material that was not designated in a "special appendix" of documents that the government wanted suppressed.

Both the Times and The Post decided Friday to refrain from further publication of their articles until the Supreme Court handed down its decision.

The opening arguments began in the Supreme Court at 11 a.m., right on schedule. More than five hours earlier, people began lining up on the white marble steps outside to gain admission to the hearing. By the time the proceedings got under way, every seat in the chamber was filled.

The nine justices gave no indication, as usual, when they would issue their decision. But court observers said it was possible an opinion might come Monday, the day the court had planned to adjourn its current term.

Friday, four of the justices voted to lift promptly all restraints against the Times and Post without waiting to hear arguments in the Supreme Court. They were Justices William O Douglas, Hugo L. Black, Thurgood Marshall and William J. Brennan Jr.

Douglas was polled by phone at his Goose Prairie, Wash., vacation home. He arranged to fly back to Washington Friday night.

In lower court hearings, attorneys for the Times and Post and other newspapers that have published stories from the documents have argued publication was justified by the public's right to know and the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of speech.

The Times started its series of articles June 13 and published three in a series of five before being blocked by the courts. The Post started its series June 18 and published two before coming under court order.

Other major newspapers across the country have since printed material from the Pentagon study.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Friday former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara told President Johnson in late 1966 that the pacification program in Vietnam was a "disappointment" and had "if anything gone backward." The newspaper printed the full text of a memorandum from McNamara to Johnson dated Oct. 14, 1966, and said it came from a portion of the Pentagon history.

The Los Angeles Times printed excerpts from the study in today's edition saying Johnson sent 3,500 Marines to Vietnam in 1965 to protect an Air Force base at Da Nang without realizing this would be the first step to a land war in Southeast Asia. The Times said the report called it a "majo decision . . . without much planning."

The Chicago Sun-Times, quoting secret government documents, said today the Central Intelligence Agency told the Nixon administration in 1969 it could immediately withdraw from Vietnam and "all of Southeast Asia would remain just as it is for at least another generation."

Concert Tonight

Marian Marsh and David Wade will sing a concert of classical and popular music at 8 p.m. today at St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael. James Groves will accompany them on the organ. The concert will benefit the church's organ fund.

OBITUARIES

Margaret I. Crotts Dies At 82

Margaret I. Crotts of San Rafael, long-time Marin County resident, died today at her home after a sudden illness. She was 82.

A native of Sebastopol, she had lived in Marin 40 years, residing at 9 J Street. Her late husband, Louis U. Crotts, was a well digger.

Mrs. Crotts is survived by a son, George S. Crotts, and a daughter, Kathryn M. Crotts, both of San Rafael; a brother, Joseph F. Rose of Hayward, four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday in St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Keaton's Mortuary, 1022 E Street, San Rafael.

MRS. COLE

Funeral will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, for Grady E. Cole, a long-time Marinite.

Mrs. Cole, widow of Victor L. Cole, a public accountant in San Rafael and a long-time San Anselmo School District trustee, died unexpectedly Thursday in Humboldt County while on a visit.

She recently had moved into a Marin retirement home after 50 years' residence at 67 Yolanda Drive, San Anselmo. Mrs. Cole was a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.

She was a volunteer worker at Marin General Hospital, a member of San Rafael Chapter 215, Order of the Eastern Star; Islam Temple 25, Daughters of the Nile; San Rafael Improvement Club and of the Unity-in-Marin Church of San Rafael.

Survivors are two sons, Howard of Denny, Trinity County; William of Palos Verdes Estates, Los Angeles County; a brother, Julius Edling of San Carlos, and seven grandchildren.

Entombment will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery. Memorial contributions are preferred by the family to Shriners Hospital, San Francisco, or the Marin General Hospital Memorial Fund.

DEATH NOTICES

COLE — In Hoopa, Humboldt County, June 24, 1971. Grady E. Cole, of San Anselmo, beloved wife of the late Victor L. Cole, loving mother of Howard H. Cole of Denny, Calif., and William L. A native of Brooklyn, N.Y. A member of San Rafael Chapter No. 215, OES; Islam Temple No. 25, Daughters of the Nile; San Rafael Improvement Club and the Unity-in-Marin Church of San Rafael.

Friends are invited to attend the funeral Tuesday, June 29, 1971, at 11 a.m. at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, where services will be conducted by San Rafael Chapter No. 215, OES, and the Rev. Candida Wright. Entombment Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Memorial contributions to the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children, San Francisco, or Marin General Hospital Memorial Fund preferred. Friends may call at the mortuary after 12 noon Sunday. (Parking court on E Street.) (6/26

CROTTS — In San Rafael, June 26, 1971, Margaret Ida Crotts, mother of George S. Crotts and Miss Kathryn M. Crotts; sister of Joseph F. Rose. Grandmother of four and great-grandmother of six. A native of California, aged 82 years.

Friends are invited to attend the funeral Monday, June 28, 1971 at 9:15 a.m. from Keaton's Mortuary, 1022 E Street, San Rafael, thence to St. Raphael's Church where a Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated for the repose of her soul at 9:30 a.m. Interment Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Keaton Chapel. (6/26)

Injuries Minor In Accident

Ellen Schoenlank, 45, of 37 Marina Boulevard, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital today for possible fractured ribs and a cut thumb following an accident on North San Pedro Road, near San Rafael.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Mrs. Schoenlank was injured at 12:15 a.m. when the car in which she was riding was hit by a vehicle driven by Jeffrey Duncan, 17, of 4 Via Montibello, San Rafael.

Duncan lost control of his car, went off the road just south of Main Drive, slid 69 feet in the dirt and bounced back onto the road, hitting the Schoenlank vehicle, officers said.

Her husband, Robert Schoenland, 47, was driving the car.

Stricter Law Enforcement Being Sought

The Marin City Council, dissatisifed with police protection in the community, has asked Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos and the county board of supervisors for stricter law enforcement.

Councilman C. J. Williams reported the group Thursday agreed to appoint a committee to look into complaints that deputies at the Marin City substation are frequently out to their office when needed and take up to an hour to respond to calls.

The council also set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday at Manzanita Center to confer with the Marin City Tenants Union, which has been inactive for the past month.

Williams said the council wants to help revive the union.

No Gas War In North Bay

Despite reports of a gas war in San Francisco that has sent prices from eight to 10 cents below normal, prices in Marin and Southern Sonoma counties have not fluctuated significantly.

Spokesmen for major companies serving Marin refused to discuss the San Francisco gas war or North Bay prices, but a drive-around check by the Independent-Journal showed no major price changes.

The low-priced gasoline in San Francisco reportedly was caused by heavy competition among gasoline marketers and service stations, plus a current oversupply of gasoline.

Corps Steps Aside On Ross Common

The Army Corps of Engineers has declared it cannot help solve flooding problems on the Ross Town Common.

Col. Charles R. Roberts, district engineer for the corps, has written to Neil R. Brixon, chairman of the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone Advisory board, outlining the Army's decision.

"Congress has established generally that the federal government should undertake only that which local levels of government cannot do as readily or as well from the standpoint of the national interest," Roberts wrote.

He said studies showed Ross Common's flood problems resulted from inadequate local drainage facilities rather than anything that would link it to the Corte Madera creek flood control project underway.

Roberts said the Army's creek work in the area would leave the Commons with nothing more to handle than runoff from about 20 acres surrounding the Common, and hence would make the solution purely a local responsibility. Enlarged culverts, particularly along Murphy Creek, should handle the need, he indicated.

Marin Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. reacted yesterday by branding the news "indeed a disappointment" and asking clarification of the Army's reasons.

Arrigoni argued that the colonel's letter "does not satisfactorily explain your conclusion" that the Ross Common should be handled by local agencies alone. He pointed out that one of the reasons for the Army work on Tamalpais Creek was to prevent its overflow from flooding low areas behind embankments of the creek project.

He asked whether the same problem does not exist with the Ross Common and low-lying areas of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard. Arrigoni said zone studies indicated correction of the Commons and Sir Francis Drake problems may cost $300,000.

"The town of Ross, in asking for outside assistance" when it joined Zone 9, "obviously realized that the scope of the problem was beyond the local resources," Arrigoni wrote. "This is precisely the philosophy under which the corps of engineers gets involved in flood control projects in the first place."

The supervisor suggested that the flood control work in the Common and on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard would be less costly if the Army redesigned its Corte Madera Creek Project so peak runoff would not crest higher than the lower reaches of the Common.

Farewells For Officers At Hamilton Base

The Novato Chamber of Commerce and the City of Novato had a farewell gathering yesterday at Nave's restaurant for Col. Lee A. Sarter Jr., base commander, and Lt. Col. Everett C. Brown, director of information, who will be leaving Hamilton Air Force Base.

Brown will leave next Friday for the 14th Aerospace Force, Colorado Springs, Colo., and Colonel Sarter will depart Aug. 2 for Ent Air Force Base, Colo.

Also honored was CWO 4 Vern Proctor, director of the base band, which was disbanded in an economy move.

The Marin Military Affairs Committee honored Sarter and Brown at a dinner at the officer's club at the base Thursday night. About 75 civilians and 38 officers attended, including Gen. Seth McKee, commander of the North American Air Defense Command.

Employee Robbed In Parking Lot

An employee of a San Rafael department store has been robbed of $304 by an armed man who accosted her in a bank parking lot, then escaped on a motorcycle.

San Rafael police said Patricia Ann Fountain, who works at the Disco store on Francisco Boulevard, had left the Bank of America with the money, en route to the store, when approached by the thief Thursday.

"Give me the money or I'll shoot the xxxx out of you," the bandit told Miss Fountain as she entered her car in the parking lot at the Montecito Shopping Center, where the bank branch is located.

The thief took the loot, which was in a canvas bank bag, and escaped on a motorcycle. He was wearing a brown jacket and dungarees.

Trial Cost Is Approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill requiring the state to pay an estimated $850,000 in costs for the Angela Davis-Ruchell Magee trial in Marin County has been approved by an Assembly committee.

The measure by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, was sent to the Ways and Means Committee Thursday on a voice vote by the local government committee.

The trial will cost about $850,000, Bagley estimated.

Miss Davis and Magee are charged with murder, kidnaping and conspiracy in connection with the Aug. 7, 1970, shootout in which a judge and three others were killed.

Miss Davis is accused of buying the guns which were used. Magee is charged with taking part in the kidnaping of Judge Harold J. Haley and of killing Haley with a shotgun.

Plan To Dredge Sausalito Canal Still A Very Much Alive Issue

The long-standing plan to dredge the Sausalito Canal through Richardson Bay to the Mill Valley Boat Harbor is still very much alive, County Public Works Director Donald R. Frost said yesterday.

He explained that decisions by the county and the City of Mill Valley not to budget for the work in fiscal 1971-72 resulted from new studies of the project by the Army Corps of Engineers, which will perform the dredging.

Mill Valley councilmen Thursday night eliminated $16,785 that had been recommended for its share of the project in the coming fiscal year. The proposed county budget reviewed by the board of supervisors this week and last lacked any funds for the dredging, according to County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

Frost reported the county already has obtained all rights-of-way needed, as well as a permit from the Bay Area Conservation and Development Commission.

The public works director reported that Col. Charles R. Roberts, district engineer for the Corps, told him earlier this month that his office expected to complete its federally required "environmental impact study" and a "detailed project report" during July. Roberts said he "hoped" to complete plans and specifications for the actual dredging "sometime late this year," Frost said.

The project report must compare costs of removing the dredging spoils to Alcatraz, Seal Rock or seaward of the Farralon Islands, Roberts told Frost. The army also must "determine the requirements of local cooperation" on costs of the overall project.

The board of supervisors formally voted 4-0 last year to ask the Army to dredge the canal. At that time, the cost was estimated at $1,169,000, with Richardson Bay property owners assessed for $660,000 and the county paying $35,000.

The federal contibution at the time was estimated at $474,000 and could have gone no higher than $500,000, regardless of how much local sources had to provide, Frost said.

Costs have risen since then, partly because of BCDC requirements that the spoils be carried away from Richardson Bay rather than placed on the shoreline. But Frost said the $500,000 ceiling on federal matching funds has been lifted. The Army engineers now can match local contributions to any limit needed, he explained.

The canal is designed to extend two-and-one-half miles from the Mill Valley boat harbor to the Army engineers' turning basis in Sausalito. The dredging will remove an estimated 700,000 cubic yards of bay mud to create a channel varying rom 100 to 150 feet wide and eight feet deep at low tide.

Owners of some 200 parcels of land in the 860-acre assessment area will be billed for the local share of the project other than funds contibuted by the county and Mill Valley.

Tenure Denied, Man Cries 'Foul'

BERKELEY (UPI) —A criminology professor arrested during the May 15 People's Park anniversary riot charged Thursday that the University of California denied him tenure "for irrelevant, political reasons."

Anthony Platt, 29, an assistant professor, said his promotion to associate professor had seemed assured until his arrest on charges of obstructing university policemen.

The charges were dropped Monday by Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court Judge Lewis Sherman.

INTERNATIONAL BALLET dancer Cathy Prescott is performing with the Stuttgart Ballet in San Francisco through tomorrow. The 19-year-old San Domenico graduate is now on a four-month tour in the United States after appearing in Israel and Germany. Reared in Kent Woodlands, she formerly danced with Marin Civic Ballet.

BAY AREA VISIT

Marinite Dancing With Stuttgart

By PAT BALMES

Marin welcomed home its own international ballet dancer this week as Cathy Prescott, formerly of Kent Woodlands, performs with the Stuttgart Ballet at the Opera House in San Francisco through tomorrow.

The 19-year-old San Domenico graduate performed with Marin Civic Ballet for three years. Last September Cathy traveled to Germany with San Mateo ballet teacher Richard Gibson to audition before his friend John Cranko, director of the Stuttgart Ballet. Accepted as a regular member, Cathy is featured soloist in "Salade," which is not on the San Francisco program.

She has danced with the ballet in Israel, Germany and New York, where she began the current four-month tour of the United States.

"I WAS homesick at first in Stuttgart and found the city boring after San Francisco. I can understand German, but can't speak it yet. I have a flat there and I can drive," says the young dancer. But she enjoys the Stuttgart dance company and will return next year.

"My whole life now is professional ballet, revolving around classes, rehersals and performances. The professional dancers are older, and that changes things from dancing in a regional school where you concentrate on your own technique and you also have school and your family," says Cathy who adds that in professional theater she uses her technique for the production, forgetting about herself.

Her day begins at 10 a.m. with a class taught in English and German. Then she rehearses until 1 p.m. There are two-hour classes in the afternoon and rehearsal again from 5 to 8 p.m. or else a performance. For a performance Cathy arrives at the theater at 6 p.m. to makeup and then works out at the warm-up bar.

"I am glad our company uses a warm-up bar because it prevents injuries from strains during a performance," says Cathy.

IN STUTTGART she has three performances a week; on tour she has eight. This week in San Francisco, she will have danced nine times.

After the performances, parties are frequently planned for the touring troop by local ballet lovers and professionals. But their director, before accepting invitations, has to ask,

"Will there be food there? The dancers will be starving after the performance!"

Everybody in the company, performers from all over the world, "is crazy about San Francisco," Cathy says. She and her friends are enjoying the restaurants. There are many Americans in the company and no more will be accepted now "because the Stuttgart Ballet is supported by the German government and is supposed to be a German state ballet," according to Cathy.

AMONG THOSE who went backstage to greet the young dancer this week were her mother, Mrs. John Prescott, formerly of Kent Woodlands, who now lives with her husband in Montana, and Cathy's former ballet teacher Mrs. Leona Norman of San Rafael, director of Marin Civic Ballet.

Mrs. Norman says that Cathy did not start as young as most children do, "but her talent was such that she learned faster than most." During the five years she taught Cathy it was evident she had the perfect body, coordination, intelligence and talent a dancer needs, the teacher said.

Cathy's tour will end in Washington, D.C. on Aug. 9. She says,

"That night I'll be in Montana to spend two weeks with my parents." The remaining month of her vacation will be spent studying ballet under Madame Marika Bessabrasova in Monte Carlo.

Stanford Chapel Is Setting For Wedding

Stanford Memorial Chapel at Stanford University was the setting for the wedding of Carol Marilyn Patterson of Menlo Park to Kenneth G. Hankermeyer on June 19.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Austin of San Anselmo.

Carol chose her sister, Mrs. James Shotwell of San Jose, as her only attendant. Leonard Johnson of Sunnyvale was the best man.

The guests were seated by Joseph Cayot and Jan Cayot, both of Mountain View.

A reception followed at the Mitchell Park Center in Menlo Park. The couple will return to live in Palo Alto after their wedding trip to Lake Tahoe.

Carol is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School and Stanford University and is a teacher at Jordan Junior High School in Palo Alto. She also attended the University of Mexico.

The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hankermeyer. He is a graduate of Fremont High School in Oakland and the University of California and is employed as an engineer with Ampex in Redwood City.

SHERRI SHARP
August nuptials set

Engagement Announced In Petaluma

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Sharp of Petaluma have announced the engagement of their daughter Harriett Chereleen Sharp to Michael Kenneth McKnight, also of Petaluma.

Sherri, as the bride-elect is known, is the sister of Tommy, Terry and Carolee Sharp of Petaluma. She is a graduate of Petaluma High School and will be a junior at Sonoma State College.

She is employed with Greyhound Lines in San Francisco for the summer.

Michael is the son of Mr. and

Mrs. Earl L. McKnight of Petaluma and he is the brother of Danny McKnight of Hayward, Gerald McKnight of Geyserville and Lonnie McKnight of Petaluma.

He was graduated from Petaluma High School and is employed with Analy Auto Parts in Sebastopol.

An Aug. 14 wedding is planned at the United Methodist Church in Petaluma.

MARRIED IN ARIZONA

Novato Couple Will Celebrate Golden Anniversary Tomorrow

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary tomorrow are Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Welch of Novato, who were married in Phoenix, Ariz., on June 29, 1921.

Their son and daughter and their families, Capt. (ret.) Cooper F. Welch of Sunnyvale and Mrs. Hugo Scotto will honor them at a party Sunday afternoon at the Scotto home in Terra Linda.

Lola Powell and Cooper Welch met on June 29, 1920, and were married on that date one year later. Mr. Welch was a real estate broker in Phoenix for 25 years before his retirement. He served three years in the Army during World War I, 15 months of that time in France. Prior to becoming a real estate broker Mr. Welch operated a supermarket in Phoenix.

DURING THEIR years in Phoenix Mr. and Mrs. Welch were active in the Order of Eastern Star. Mrs. Welch was a charter member of the friendship chapter and they served as past worthy matron and worthy patron. They now attend the Mill Valley Chapter, of which their daughter is a member.

Mrs. Welch was also active in civic affairs and was among a group that visited Washington, D. C., while Harry S Truman was president to convince the government that they needed a new veterans' hospital in Phoenix, where a number of young men were sent following World War II. She proudly displayed a picture of the delegation with President Truman. A new hospital was finally built in Phoenix.

Mrs. Welch was born in Texas and Mr. Welch in Mississippi. Mrs. Welch moved to Phoenix with her family when a child of 8.

The youngest in the family, Mrs. Welch said her father left her family when she was five-years-old. "It was a nightmare," she said, "and I couldn't understand it."

PERSERVANCE IS the key to a happy marriage, the couple agreed. Mrs. Welch said one has to take the good times with the bad times in a marriage. She said she was horrified at the way some young couples live together today without being married.

The Welchs moved to Novato in April 1967. "We wanted to get away from the dust storms in Phoenix and live nearer our children," Mrs. Welch said, as the couple relaxed in their comfortable mobile in Novato. "I wouldn't live in a house again," she said.

Since moving to Novato the Welchs have become active in the Novato Senior Citizens and attend the Novato United Methodist Church. They transferred their membership to the Novato Church from the Central Methodist Church in Phoenix where they were members for 45 years. Mr. Welch is also a member of a luncheon club for retired men, Sons in Retirement, Inc.

Among the 150 guests invited to the party tomorrow are the Welch's six grandchildren. Timothy Welch is 15 and Stacy Lee Welch is 12. Mrs. Scotto's children are Pamela Sutherland, 14, Vicki Sutherland, 8 and Peter (Chip) Sutherland, 6 years old.

THEIR GOLDEN wedding anniversary will be cause for celebration tomorrow for Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Welch, who live in their mobile home in Novato. The couple, who have lived in Marin since 1967, were married in Phoenix on June 29, 1921.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Couple Married In Elizabethan Setting

By MOLLY MARIN

Rev. Terry Lee Henry, formerly a Sausaltio street minister, Mill Valley resident and San Francisco Theological Seminary student, wed Kathy Lee Bryant on June 15 at the First Christian Church in Albany, Ore.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Bryant of Albany. Reverend Bryant is pastor of the church where the combination Elizabethan-modern wedding was held.

Attending the wedding from Marin were Elizabeth W. Vreeland of Mill Valley and Mr. and Mrs. Howard rice of San Anselmo, and the bridegroom's mother came from Michigan to attend the wedding.

The newlyweds are living near Los Angeles, where Reverend Henry is temporarily serving as minister of a Prebyterian church.

LEAVING TUESDAY for Hawaii where they will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary are Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Hartley of Novato.

VISITING IN the Bay Area are Mr. and Mrs. Sam Burasato of San Miguel de Allende, Mexico. The couple are staying with Carmen Burasato's mother, Mrs. Mamacita Reyes, at the home of Mrs. J.S. Porter in Ross, and will be the guests of Mr. Burasato's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burasato, in San Francisco before returning to Mexico next month.

Mrs. Reyes gave a party for her daughter and son-in-law on their 24 wedding anniveryary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Noah in Lucas Valley.

A SURPRISE party was given for Richard Colombo of San Rafael by his sons and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Colombo and Richard Colombo Sunday at the John Colombo home in San Rafael. Mr. Colombo is retiring from 25 years' work with Tacchi Brothers garage. Friends and relatives were on hand for the garden party.

Mr. Colombo and his wife, Lena, enjoy gardening and he plans to do some hunting and fishing with his sons.

Special Camp For Fibrosis Patients To Be At Fairfax

Cystic fibrosis patients will attend a special summer camp to be held at the Girl Scout camp in Fairfax Aug. 25 to 29. The camp is sponsored by the Children's Hospital Medical Center of Oakland cystic fibrosis clinic staff and is funded by private donations.

Some 70 patients will be able to participate in fishing, swimming, crafts, baseball and volleyball, with the assistance of a staff of medical personnel, nurses from Merritt, Providence and University of San Francisco hospitals and high school students.

Children attending must be 7 years old or over. Any cystic fibrosis patient is eligible, according to the medical center. Enrollment is made through the Children's Hospital Medical Center C.F. center in Oakland.

Women Will Be Third Of Force

By 1975, 30 million women will comprise more than one-third of the nation's total work force, according to a U.S. Department of Labor forecast.

Two-thirds of the families will have annual incomes over $10,000, and 30 per cent of the family heads will be under 35 years old.

Highly mobile, the average woman will eat out more, and at home she will rely more on convenience foods and appliances. In meal planning she will be more knowledgeable about foods, more diet and more quality conscious.

Use Swim Safety If Water Unknown

If you swim in sites which are unfamiliar to you, the California Medical Association says you may run risks that would not threaten you on your favorite beach.

Before diving in a new place, test the water for depth and for hidden logs or rocks. If you get caught in a strong current, don't try to fight it. Swim along with it, and, cutting diagonally across the current, head for the shore.

Don't forget the safeguards which you observe while swimming at home, the association reminds. Don't swim in water that is too cold, and don't swim immediately after a meal.

Questions With Poetry From 'Frightened Earth Resident'

DEAR READERS:

This essay-poem came to me over a year ago. I've wanted to print it but I wondered whether an advice column is quite the place for such probing thoughts.

Nevertheless, it's nagged me until I've given in.

Perhaps you'll like it too — though you may not agree with the writer.

DEAR HELEN:

In the course of everyday living

One seldom stops to contemplate why he or she exists,

Or why man as a whole exists.

It is said that we must propagate the species,

And so we do, and all to often at that.

Has man made this planet a better place to live for himself and other living things?

Only man takes his own life. own life.

Only man can rationalize, putting thought into action.

Only man kills for pleasure.

All our lives we work towards achieving what we want,

But once we get it we know not what to do with it,

And we want more.

We have visible and invisible means of eliminating those who do not conform

To our particular branch of society.

Can we, as supposedly intelligent creatures,

Live out our lives without knowing why?

If we can do this,

Then why do we flatter ourselves by thinking ourselves superior to the worker ants?

We drink and smoke and use drugs.

We seem to find all means of suicidal outlets,

Labeling most of them as pleasures of life.

Most of what our government does for other countries

Is done solely to keep face.

We allow mass media to infect our minds and fill them with trivial nonsense,

And all the bad influences in life,

Until we can no longer cut through the fantasies we live in.

We see what we want to see,

And no more.

We ruin the lives of our young.

Because we cannot look back to our youth,

Or perhaps because we can remember it all too well

And unknowingly inflict pain similar to our own.

In return, youth rebels.

They try to grow up,

But the parents keep them children.

They try to be children,

But the parents make them old.

Day by day it becomes all the more difficult to function in such a world.

For we are all right,

For we are all wrong,

And I sit and wonder, "Where are we going?"

And shivering, I think "I don't really want to know!"

Celebration At Site Of Memories

No more appropriate place could have been selected than Mill Valley's Outdoor Art Club for the golden wedding celebration tomorrow afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Forest Seitz of Greenbrae for the club is closely associated with their family history.

The Seitzes were actually married on July 5, 1921, at the Mill Valley home of Marie Seitz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Weissich, but the reception is being hosted tomorrow by Dr. and Mrs. Ghery D. Pettit of Pullman, Wash., who will celebrate their 23rd wedding anniversary at the same time, and Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Fitzhenry of Kentfield.

MRS. PETTIT and Mrs. Fitzhenry are daughters of the Seitzes. The wedding receptions of both daughters were held at the Outdoor Art Club, and all but one member of the wedding parties of the Seitzes and Pettits will attend the party tomorrow.

Among them will be Marie Seitz's twin sister, Carolyne, Mrs. James B. Phelps of Mill Valley, who was matron of honor.

The Outdoor Art Club holds many memories for them, for their mother was one of the early members of the club, and both are 50-year members, Mrs. Seitz having served as president in 1943 and her sister as vice president.

Others of the Seitzes' wedding party present tomorrow will be Mr. Seitz's brother, Reuben W. Seitz of Yountville, who was best man, and Mmes. Katharine Burbeck Johnson and Dorathea Wood of San Anselmo, Otto Weissich of Mill Valley and Gertrude Gerdau of San Francisco.

THE SAN Francisco-born family of the twin sisters same to Mill Valley from San Francisco in 1911 and the girls were graduated from Tamalpais High School.

After their marriage the Seitzes lived in Mill Valley until they moved to Greenbrae in 1558.

Marie Seitz served two years as president of the Marin Society for Crippled Children and was active in the early days of the Marin Music Chest. In World War II she worked as a Gray Lady and was in the first class of Pink Ladies at Marin General Hospital.

Mr. Seitz, who was born in Sierra County in Forest, which is now a ghost town. The family lived in San Francisco for seven years before moving to Ross in 1908 and to their own home in San Rafael in 1909. He was graduated from San Rafael High School and lived in San Rafael until he was married.

He is a retired vice president of the Pacific National Fire Insurance Company, now the Transamerica Corporation.

He was a member of the Mill Valley school board from 1931 to 1934, a trustee of the College of Marin from 1946 to 1955 and chairman of the Mill Valley district of Boy Scouts of America from 1940 to 1948. He is also a past commander of the Mill Valley American Legion Post 284 and of the Marin County Council of the American Legion.

TODAY HE is active mainly in the Sons in Retirement organization. Since he retired, he and his wife have traveled extensively in Europe, the Orient and Mexico.

Their major common interests are their children and the grandchildren—John Robert Jr., Colleen Anne, Patrick Francis and Michael Thomas Fitzhenry and Ghery St. John and Paul Robert Pettit. And they enjoy playing bridge, but prefer to play in separate clubs, however.

"Give and take," both agreed, is the major secret of maintaining a happy marriage for 50 years.

Confusion Between Double, Single Knit

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

Please tell us the difference between a single knit and a double knit. I wasn't aware there was a difference except by the weight of the knit.

MRS. A.V.

DEAR MRS. A.V.,

Double knits are made with a double set of needles, giving double thickness to the fabric. It is difficult to distinguish the right from the wrong side, unless the fabric is textured or patterned. Double knits are heavier in weight than single knits, and they drape softly, yet tailor beautifully. The most popular fibers are wool, plyester and wool-synthetic blends.

Single knits are made with a single set of needles and sometimes with only one yarn. The fabric has a definite right and wrong side. Single knits are usually lightweight with good stretch and recovery. They are made in a broad range of fibers, wool, cotton, synthetic blends.

Best known single knits are jersey, a soft, drapey, supple knit in a plain stitch, either wool or synthetic. Matte jersey has a brushed surface. Tricot is a very lightweight, run resistant knit made on a warp knitting machine which interlocks each loop above, below and sideways. This is sued for lingerie as well as outerwear and is usually made from acetate, triacetate or nylon. Cicre is a nylon tricot with a shiny, wet looking finish.

MRS. MARIE Sanders, Louisville, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion:

"I've found a little trick that has worked perfectly for me and should help others who have trouble threading the sewing machine needle. I cut two 5 inch squares of fabric, one in white and the other black. Stitch them together back to back. When threading your machine with a dark thread, hold the white side of your square behind the needle. When using a light colored thread, hold the black side of your square behind the needle. It certainly will make threading your machine needle a snap instead of a chore.

DEAR EUNICE,

In August I am going to be a bridesmaid, and I will be making my own dress. It is to be made of taffeta with a chiffon overlay. Should I sew all the seams together or make the two skirts separate and attach at the waist only?

LOUISE D.

DEAR LOUISE,

The type of construction depends entirely on the style of the dress you are making. If the skirt is almost straight, or has a slight A-line, the two layers of fabric could be treated as one, the darts would be made together, as well as the seams, hem, etc.

Many times when chiffon is used, it is used for a flowing, soft, full skirted effect. If this would be the case, it is better to use the taffeta in an A-line, underskirt. Then construct the chiffon separately, usually with a very small hem, either hand rolled or turned up with a narrow strip of horsehair braid for more shaping at the hem. This type of pattern would require the two layers of fabric to be applied together at the waistline only.

A Safety Tip

Never leave children alone with a washer or dryer that is in operation.

NUPTIALS IN ROSS

Dee Williams exchanged vows with Art Stackhouse in a ceremony Saturday at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, where the reception was also held. The couple will live in Berkeley after a Lake Tahoe wedding trip. She is the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Williams of San Rafael and Art's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Stackhouse of Oyster Bay, N.Y., formerly of Terra Linda.

Engagement Announced For Couple

Mrs. Hugh M. Brown of Mill Valley and Ernest F. Gaudreau of Tarrytown, N.Y., announce the engagement of their daughter Pamela Jane Gaudreau to Dennis James Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shea of Spring Valley, N.Y.

Pamela was graduated from Tamalpais High School and Smith College in Northampton, Mass., where she was elected to Sigma Zi, the national honor society for scientific research. She has just completed her first year at the University of Michigan Law School in Ann Arbor. The future bride is the sister of Sandra Gaudreau of Santa Cruz and William and Lesley Brown of Mill Valley.

Dennis is a staff executive with General Motors assembly division in Detroit, Mich.

An Aug. 21 wedding planned in Tarrytown.

Rodef Sholom Is Scene Of Marriage For Couple

Nancy Jeanne Frank and Russell Jerome Scharlin were married on June 19 in an evening ceremony at Congregation Rodef Sholom in San Rafael.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Z. Frank of Greenbrae, Nancy chose her sister, Carol Frank, as her maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Helene and Mindy Tinkler of San Rafael and Katie Louie of San Francisco.

Charles Field of Rodeo was best man for the bridegroom. The ushers were Ron Tanovitz of Oakland, Mark Steinberg of Rodeo and Ted Hall of San Francisco.

A reception followed at the temple. The couple will live in Davis after their wedding trip to Carmel.

Nancy was graduated from Redwood High School and attended the University of California at Davis. She plans to enter U.C. at Berkeley in the fall.

The bride is the granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Irving Holbert of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scharlin of Rodeo are Russell's parents. He was graduated from John Swett High School and the University of California at Davis with a civil engineering degree. He is in the mastes degree program and is a research assistant at Davis. Mrs. Dennis Fischer of Rodeo is his sister.

Emergency Tub

In an emergency the kitchen sink can double as a bathtub for an infant. For sanitary reasons, the sink should be thoroughly scrubbed and then flushed with hot suds before and after baby's bath.

William Dale Holt Takes Gail Offenbach As Bride

Gail Donna Offenbach became the bride of William Dale Holt Saturday in a ceremony at Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Offenbach of Larkspur.

Attending their sister were Mrs. Linda Maraccini of Sonora and Janet Offenbach, and the bridegoom's brother, Capt. Robert Holt of Georgia, was best man.

A reception in the church hall followed the ceremony, and the couple are on a wedding trip in the Bay Area and Bodie State Historical Park.

Gail is a graduate of Redwood High School and Sonoma State College, where she received a teaching credential.

A graduate of Sierra College, the bridegroom will attend Sacramento State College. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale G. Holt of Sacramento.

The couple will live in Sacramento.

Husband-Wife Should Discuss Financial State

Life insurance is owned by approximately four-fifths of the adult population and yet very few husbands discuss life insurance proceeds with their wives, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

There are four widows for every widowers in the country, and every year many new widows find that they are completely ignorant of their husband's financial affairs.

The institute advises husbands and wives, who have delayed the discussion of what the wife should do in case of the husband's death, to bring up the subject.

Instructions to assist the wife in meeting financial problems should include a list of insurance policies and all other assets, including cash, securities and personal possessions.

DANCE

Troupe's Personnel Improves

By MARIE RAMEAU

A balmy summer evening in the woods was the setting for the Margot Jones Dance Company's concert last night, under the auspices of the Marin Shakespeare Festival. This troup joined with the Rec Russel Dance Company at Forest Meadows Theater on Dominican College campus in San Rafael, and performs there again tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

The dancers in Miss Jones's company showed much improvement since I last saw them in October at the College of Marin. Still, although the performance standards have risen, the content level of the repertoire has noticeably declined, judging from last night's program.

FREE STYLE

The companies both performed in free style, combinng elements of ballet, modern, jazz and primitive forms. But this tended to become monotonous. Excepting Miss Jones and Mr. Russel, both fine performers, the troups boast of no outstanding personalities, and the dancers are not particularly strong.

A few themes on the one-sided program were: "Sometimes I Feel Like a Motherless Child," "Girl Talk," and "Bus Stop." "Tribal Movements" to Santana's "Jingo" was the richest in movement of the entire evening's fare.

"How Free Is Free?" evolved out of a facetious sermonette delivered by Erroll Strider to his own percussion effects. Here the train of thought was soon lost in a maze of directionless pantomime by Miss Jones, Shelley Adams and Debbie Grahm. It could have posed a powerful, searching subject; unfortunately it did not.

"BUS STOP"

After an interminable intermission, Mr. Russel's group presented "Bus Stop," which again had little to nothing to do with its point of departure - a placard centered on stage bearing the words "Bus Stop."

Another offering, "Dream of Moloch," approached a more sophisticated production level. For once, the dancers were not invariably clad in leotards and footless tights. Also, the choreography was more highly developed and illuminated by a colorful light show synchronized with the music. The sum, however, was less original than it promised to be, too much like numerous scenes from Tennessee Williams plays.

Most of the music - jazz, rock, folk and soul - was prerecorded, with the remainder live by the Wood Nymph Fantasy Band. A competent group of rock and folk musicians, their featured vocalist is Harriet Carter, whose voice reminded me of Judy Collins. But their interludes were too many and too long.

KEY PROBLEMS

Obviously the most immediate problems the Jones Company must grapple with are its loosely woven themes, repetitious repertoire and lack of theatricality. Although an outdoor setting usually presents a pleasant prospect to an audience, this type of environment demands intense theatricality on the part of the performing company.

Missing this vital ingredient, the absence of such trapping as props and a "real" theater becomes all the more conspicuous and — in this instance — the dance experience. The company is filled with talent, but this needs to be challenged from within.

Bridge Suicide Barrier Backed

Construction of an eight-foot-high railing on the Golden Gate Bridge to prevent suicides was endorsed unanimously yesterday by bridge district directors.

The board authorized a $20,000 contract with Anshen and Allen, San Francisco architectural firm, for a preliminary design for the barrier. The district's consulting engineers, Ammann and Whitney of New York, were asked to propose engineering and aerodynamic tests needed for the preliminary design and cost estimates.

The architects estimated its cost at $750,000.

The proposal previously was endorsed by the committee of the whole. The barrier will have thin vertical tension rods topped with an angled rail too difficult to grasp long enough to climb over.

The existing railing is 42 inches high, and more than 400 persons have gone over it to their deaths since the span opened in 1937.

Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also:

CLOSED — Met behind closed doors for 55 minutes in an inconclusive discussion of negotiations for an option on property at the Hutchinson Quarry in Larkspur for a ferry terminal. Expenditures on the purchase would not be reimbursable from federal grants if made before the grants were approved.

FLOAT — Received a report from Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring that the ferry float at the San Francisco Ferry Building will be completed early next week, and approved $5,000 in dredging so both sides of the float can be used with Harbor Carriers. A used float bought for district use at the San Francisco terminal instead will be shifted to Sausalito, replacing one leased for $9,000 a year.

FERRY — Received an estimate from Luehring that patronage on the Sausalito ferry will total 990,000 next fiscal year, a report that the district earned $3,171 from the ferry concession in May, and extended for two years a lease with the ferry concessionaire, John Cosmos.

RESIGN — Accepted the resignation of Harlan L. Soeten of Mill Valley as chief of ferryboat operations.

PLANNING — Approved agreements with the Metropolitan Transportation Commission and the County of Marin for joint work on a $1.1 million plan for rapid transit, the district's share to total $136,334 after a two-thirds federal grant.

TOWERS — Voted to buy 12 fixtures to test lighting of the bridge towers.

RETIRE — Congratulated Maintenance Supt. R. E. Mullins of Corte Madera upon his retirement next week after 34 years with the district.

APPROACH — Agreed to appeal to the California Highway Commission to finance a $10 million widening of the San Francisco approach to the bridge entirely from state funds. The commission, to meet on July 22 in Oakland, asked the district and San Francisco to share the cost with the state, but both have balked.

SAUSALITO — Extended the lease on the North Sausalito parking lot for one year for $4,000.

AUTOMATIC — Received a report from District Engineer Robert E. Shields that automatic vehicle identification devices will be installed on 20 Greyhound buses to be leased by the district. The district is developing a system to allow vehicles to drive through toll gates without stopping, with the devices triggering a computer to bill drivers by mail.

VEHICLES — Approved hiring Paul Sill as a transit schedule analyst at $12,000 a year, Robert Warren as a project engineer at $17,500 a year, and an additional clerk-typist at $7,056 a year.

RENT — Dropped proposed cancellation of the Round House Restaurant lease because three months unpaid rent had been paid.

TRAINING — Appropriated $4,320 so engineer Shields could attend a transportation course in Pittsburgh during his vacation.

BUSES — Approved color and fabric designs by Walter Landor and Associates for the district's fleet of 132 buses. Alternating groups of cool and warm colors, in four schemes, will give the buses "a little more custom character," Landor said.

FERRIES — Asked Landor to review interior colors for the district's proposed new ferries after viewing with dismay colors offered by a subcontractor to the district's naval architect.

FAIR — Changed the second July meeting from the 30th to the 23rd in Santa Rosa so directors can attend horse races at the Sonoma County Fair.

BONDS — Announced the Bank of America will host a luncheon for district directors on July 1 in the Bohemian Club in San Francisco to mark retirement of the $35 million in bonds that financed construction of the bridge.

GRANTS — Received a report from Richard J. Smart, special counsel expediting federal grants, that federal funding of up to $6.1 million for the district's bus system was expected in early July. Federal action on the $12 million grant sought for the ferry system was expected in the first quarter of the new fiscal year, he said.

COLORS — Received report that all district vehicles will be painted white because of studies indicating fewer accidents with vehicles painted white.

BART — Postponed a tour of Bay Area Rapid Transit District facilities because the BART train broke down and because of too little time.

Open Space, Park Plan To Be Aired

The Marin County Planning and Park and Recreation commissions will meet in joint session Monday to consider the relationship of the present parks and recreation master plan to the open space master plan now being prepared by the planning department.

The two panels also will discuss Tomales Bay, federal preparation of the Point Reyes National Seashore plan, and local recreation area needs and policies.

The planning commission's regular meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in its hearing chamber in the County Administration Building at the Civic Center.

The park and recreation commission is scheduled to join the planning commission at 9:15 a.m.

Other items on the planning commission's all-day agenda will be:

WEST MARIN — Resumption of discussion on whether to scrap the existing west Marin master plan. The proposal, to be discussed at 10:45 a.m., was continued to Monday at the commission's June 14 meeting.

AGRICULTURAL ZONES — Planning Director Werner Von Gundell will report at 9 a.m. on the board of supervisors action last Tuesday rejecting the commission's split-vote recommendation that the A-2 lot size minimum be raised from 7,500 to 20,000 square feet. The supervisors favored revision to a two-acre minimum. At 11:15 a.m., current planning chief Harvey E. Bragdon will discuss proposals to provide a variety of densities and agricultural, recreational and other uses in the zone.

INDIAN VALLEY — Progress on planning Indian Valley west of Novato for large lot minimums will be reported at 11:45 a.m.

APARTMENTS — The commission will hear a request to rezone 12.6 acres southeast of North San Pedro and Granlee roads from A-2 to multiple planned residential district RMP-8, allowing eight units per acre. The applicants have applied for 84 units on the hill side site.

NURSERY SCHOOL — Harold Nichelini will seek an extension of his permit to conduct a school on Las Gallinas Avenue, Terra Linda, across from Bernard Hoffman School.

Trio Pleads To Burglary Counts

Sandra A. Moore, 18, of San Pablo, and Carolyn Jean Hankins, 23, and Sadie Evelyn Gamble, 35, both of Richmond, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to one misdemeanor and five felony counts of burglary.

A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 3.

The women were arrested June 10 in Novato after they allegedly shortchanged clerks at several businesses.

Panel On Housing Is Being Urged

The Fairfax Planning Commission has passed a resolution urging the city council to form a citizen's committee to develop a city housing plan.

Commission chairman E. Ross Parkerson said the so-called housing element to the city general plan is needed to keep the city eligible for state housing funds.

Also at its meeting Thursday night, the commission asked the city council to abate a drainage pipe at 300 Olema Road. Parkerson said the pipe is inadequate to carry the natural flow of water and has caused flooding on Olema Road.

The commission approved zoning permits for Gloria E. Knight to operate a fabric shop formerly occupied by the Marin County Library branch at 47 Broadway, and for Patrick Fitzgerald and Edwin J. Christiansen for a bike shop, 705 Center Boulevard.

The commission adjourned to a July 8 special meeting to consider final plans by Gentry Development Co. for a 68-unit apartment on 6.8 acres on Olema Road.

Columbian Sailing Ship Due Monday

The Gloria, a three-masted Columbian sailing ship, is scheduled to sail under the Golden Gate Bridge at 9 a.m. Monday.

The Gloria is on a naval cadet training cruise, according to officers of the Twelfth Naval District. The crew will hold an open house on the vessel at San Francisco's Pier 33 from 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Task Force Outlines Safety Rules For Bay

A special task force of public officials and maritime experts has made a series of recommendations aimed at preventing disasters such as the January oil spill in San Francisco Bay.

Among the recommendations are that VHF radiotelephones be installed on the bridges of all deep draft vessels and that harbor advisory radar previously established as a pilot project by the Coast Guard be further developed.

The special committee was sponsored by the Association of Bay Area Governments and the Marine Exchange of the San Francisco Bay Region, both of which have endorsed the report.

The oil spill occurred when two Standard Oil Co. tankers collided under the Golden Gate Bridge. Harbor advisory radar spotted both ships on its radar but was only in touch with one captain.

The task force, called the Regional Committee on Navigation and Environment, noted in its report that a new Marine Traffic Center on Yerba Buena Island is scheduled to go into operation about October 1971 and will have "increased capability and sophistication."

The report also recommended that participation in such harbor safety and advisory services be mandatory, not voluntary as at present.

June Shows Aerospace Jobs Down

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The number of aerospace jobs in California fell by another 3,000 last month with more reductions "anticipated," the state Department of Finance has reported.

In a review of economic development in the state issued Thursday, the department said the economy showed "signs of recovery" in April and May with a 60,000-job increase last month. An improvement in non-aerospace manufacturing was a major factor in the increase, it said.

But "further gradual reductions" in the current total of 435,00 aerospace jobs are expected by the department, especially in electrical equipment and aircraft components.

New Patrol Leader Due In August

Capt. William S. Bloomer, 45, will succeed Capt. Daniel W. Lyons as commander of the Marin-Golden Gate area of the California Highway Patrol on Aug. 2, the CHP announced.

Lyons, 50, who has commanded the area since May 1969, will take command of the CHP's South Los Angeles station. Bloomer will come to Marin from Sacramento, where he has been commander of the CHP Academy since January 1969.

Captain Bloomer, who was born and reared in San Bernardino, was a member of the San Bernardino Police Department for three and a half years before he joined the highway patrol in 1951.

As a traffic officer he was assigned to Barstow and San Bernardino, and as a sergeant he worked for a year in Vallejo before he returned to San Bernardino.

Promoted to lieutenant in 1966, he worked in the San Francisco area about a year before being transferred to Sacramento. His assignment to the academy came with his promotion to captain.

Bloomer and his wife, Helen, have two daughters, Berenice, 14, and Kristine, 13. He is a member of the Elks.

POSTCARDS GO AIR MAIL

Helium-filled balloons went up, up and away in San Rafael yesterday, carrying postcards with each child's name and address as part of Operation Blastoff at Hartzell School playground. The program, which takes a chance on the wind and air current to see how far the balloons will travel, is sponsored each year by the park and recreation department at 12 playgrounds. Last year, one balloon traveled as far as Alberta, Canada. Postcards are attached in the hope that whoever finds the balloon will mail the card back to San Rafael.

Information Round On Sewage Disposal System: Soul-Searcher

An informational meeting on a proposed $8.1 million sewage disposal system for Stinson Beach and Bolinas turned into a soul-searching session last night as many of the 100 persons who attended questioned whether the system was desirable — or necessary.

Chief objections voiced by the audience — mostly Stinson Beach residents — centered around a planned ocean outfall which would send the treated wastes into the Pacific.

And biologist Peter Warshall, of the Future Studies Center in Bolinas, seemed to express the views of many attending when he said the Stinson Beach erties are completely underwater during winter rains and said it was "pretty obvious that septic tanks and leeching

County Water District, sponsor of the meeting, had not explored less expensive — but equally effective — alternatives to the giant disposal system.

Others noted that while Bolinas is under a cease and desist order from the state because of the raw sewage it dumps into the Bolinas Lagoon, there is no such order against Stinson Beach. Why then, the residents asked, must we be assessed with a $3.4 million cost (Stinson's share of project expense) to correct a situation for which we are not responsible?

Hugh Dougherty, president of the water district, discussed even the most strenuous protests in polite fashion. He said that Stinson Beach did indeed have waste disposal problems, caused in part by small, steep lots and a high ground water level which tends to render septic tanks ineffectual.

In addition, Dougherty pointed out that many Stinson prop-

fields were not likely to work in lots under water."

Robert Tartual, who owns property in both Bolinas and Stinson, disputed Dougherty's contentions. "I have gone to the environmental health people at the county and regional levels and as far as they are concerned, Stinson Beach doesn't have a sewage problem," he said. "What this whole thing seems to be is (a proposal) to spend about $8 million to replace a septic tank that works just right." He drew loud cheers and applause from the group.

Warshall, who protested that sending wastes and chlorine into the ocean could endanger marine life in the area of the outfall, particularly on Duxbury reef, said the Future Studies Center has considered many alternate plans to the system.

"We are about two weeks away from bringing in a portable treatment unit which will take care of downtown Bolinas — a plant that meets the requirements the state has put out," Warshall said.

Another man noted there has been no contested election in the water district since it was formed in 1962 and Ronald Wagner asked if people in Stinson "really have any voice in what is happening?"

Dougherty said that while the district has already spent $125,000 for engineering costs for the joint treatment plant (which will be located in Bolinas) and the Stinson collection system, that did not mean the district was irrevocably commited to the project.

Establishment of an assessment district to finance the system will be discussed at a meeting of the county board of supervisors July 6. Dougherty and members of the Future Studies Center urged those with objections to voice them at that meeting.

Lawsuits On Phone Tax Filed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The second and third lawsuits challenging the legality of the 10 per cent telephone "war tax" have been filed in U.S. District Court.

Like the first actions filed earlier this week, these suits, signed by over 1,000 Northern California phone subscribers, charge that the federal tax is invalid because it was raised to its present rate to support an undeclared war.

So far the protestors have withheld over $2,000 in tax money and deposited it into trust funds pending the outcome of litigation, according to Alan Barnett of Mill Valley, spokesman for the Northern California War Tax Protest Committee.

Among the trustees of the deposited tax money are Roger Kent, former chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee: Carleton Goodlett, publisher of the Sun Reporter in San Francisco; Urban Whitaker, chairman of the department of international relations at San Francisco State College, and Zaide Kietley, president of the San Francisco Chapter of the National Organization for Women.

Death Row Is Next For Sandoval

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Jaime E. Sandoval, 39, was formally sentenced to San Quentin's gas chamber yesterday for the slaying of two benefactors who took him in after release from prison.

Superior Court Judge Robert J. Drewes ordered the ex-convict, a former San Rafael male nurse, transferred to state prison within 10 days. Earlier this month the jury which convicted Sandoval sentenced him to death. It was the first death penalty rendered in the city in 10 years.

The formal sentencing followed two days of arguments by defense attorneys for a new trial and reduction of the death sentence.

Sandoval was convicted of killing Edelmiro Hertas, 63, and Carmen Acenzio, 36, last year and dumping their bodies over Devil's Slide dust south of Pacifica. They had taken him into their home after he served a term for child molest.

Authorities said Sandoval shot the couple after they decided to evict him from their home.

$65 Fine For Demonstration Project Protest

Richard Jarvis Woods of San Francisco was fined $65 yesterday in Marin Municipal Court after he pleaded no contest to misdemeanor charges stemming from a 1969 demonstration against the Tamalpais Creek Flood Control Project.

He earlier had been charged with trespassing and failing to disperse.

Woods was among 36 persons whose cases have been pending the outcome of an appeal by a Kentfield woman who acted as a test case for the group. Her conviction was upheld in April.

A total of 38 persons were arrested in April 1969 when they protested paving of a 400-foot stretch of creek.

Seventeen defendants who have yet to plead are expected to enter no contest pleas and be sentenced during the next few weeks.

Hit-And-Run Information Being Sought

Witnesses to a hit-and-run accident Tuesday at 9:10 p.m. at Fifth and Lincoln avenues are requested to get in touch with the traffic division of the San Rafael Police Department.

Police are looking for the driver of a black and yellow car which struck a auto driven by Ruth Makinson, 50, of 1548 San Anselmo Avenue, San Anselmo. Police said Mrs. Makinson suffered a broken shoulder and collarbone in the accident.

Scott Nelson, police investigator, said two women with first names of Lois and Phyllis are reported to have witnessed the accident, but any other witnesses also are asked to call the traffic division.

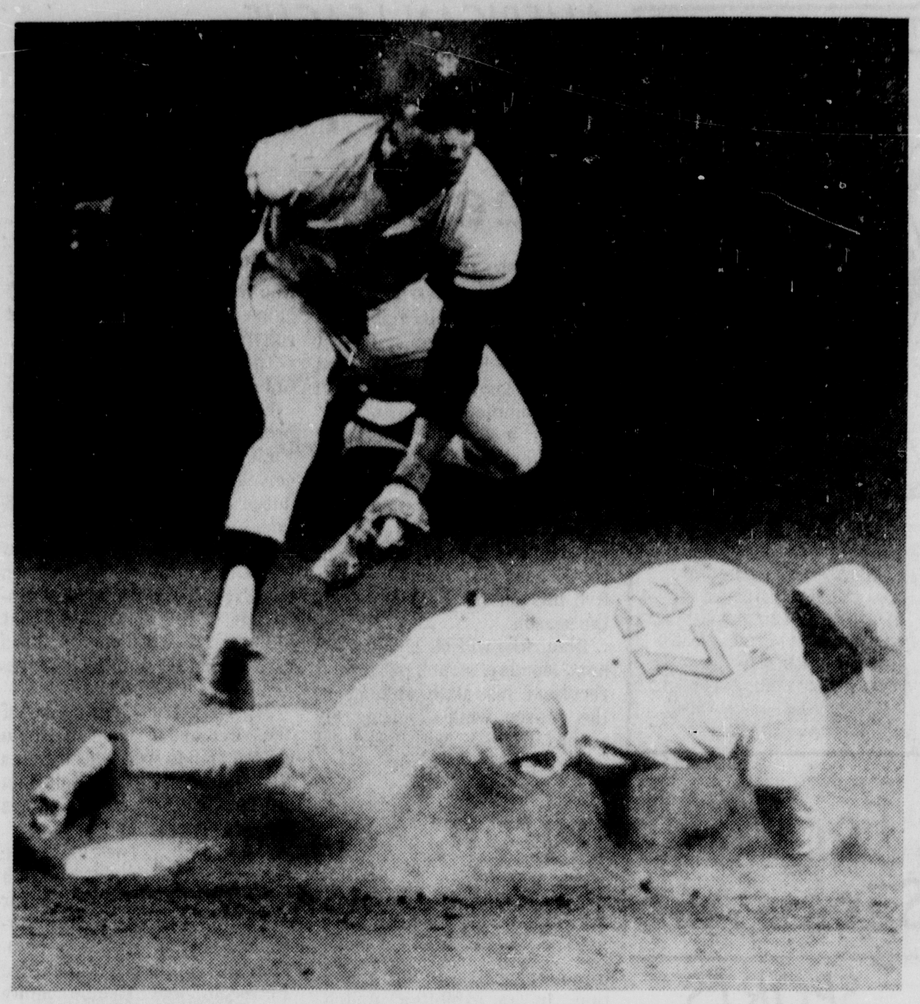
Sensational Vida Notches 16th



ESCAPE ARTIST — San Francisco Giants' second baseman Tito Fuentes leaped over Houston's Bob Watson to complete a double play last night in the fourth inning at the Astrodome. Dennis Menke hit the ground ball that resulted in the twin killing. But the Astros won, 5-4. (UPI Telephoto)

OAKLAND (UPI) —Vida Blue's amazing victory pace continues to snowball. And so does one very important statistic—innings pitched.

Blue shutout Kansas City Friday night 7-0 on five hits and extended his 1971 total of innings pitched to a phenomenal 157 1-3. With the season not even halfway completed, Blue already has hurled more innings this year than in any full season during his professional career.,

The most innings Blue had thrown previously was 152 for Burlington of the Midwest League in 1968. Yet he believes his body is sound enough to stand up to the workmanlike pace he is setting.

"As long as I keep myself in good shape, there should be no problem," Blue said. "My arm feels fine and three or four days rest should still be good enough for me."

Vida pitched his 16th victory of the season against Kansas City to move the A's 10 games ahead of the second place Royals in the American League West. A crowd of 33,888 looked on.

He struck out 12 batters to stretch his season total to 157, best in the major leagues. He also tops the majors in complete games with 16, in shutouts with six and in earned run average with a mark of 1.37.

The slim lefty, now 16-2, said he felt no added pressure by the presence of his mother, brother and four sisters sitting in the private box of A's owner Charles O. Finley. It was the first time they had ever seen Blue pitch in a professional baseball game.

"I didn't even know they were coming. They were up there until the ninth inning," Blue said. "I try not to get excited about anything. Our whole family is that way."

Finley had the entire Blue family flown to Oakland from Mansfield, La., to view the weekend series with the Royals. They were to be in the stands again today when Vida receives a 1971 baby blue Cadillac from the A's owner.

Blue, who celebrates his 22nd birthday on Monday, did not allow a Royal runner beyond second base while record his sixth victory in a row.

The A's sewed up the game early by scoring twice without a hit in the second inning and scoring two more times in the third on RBI singles by Sal Bando and Rick Monday.

Mike Epstein belted his 10th homer of the year in the fifth with the bases empty for a 5-0 lead and Bando added a two-run single for the final runs in the seventh against Kansas City starter and loser Mike Hedlung (6-4).

"Felt kind of good beating Kansas City after they knocked me out of the box last month," said Blue, who took no decision in that game on May 14. "Even though I really wanted to beat them, my most satisfying victory still is the time I beat Baltimore 1-0 (on Arpil 26)."

Blue has only three more starts before appearing in the all-star game July 13, so it is not possible for him to win 20 games prior to the mid-season break.

"If I don't win 20 until August 9th, it still doesn't matter to me," Blue said. "I'm not trying to break any records. I'm just pitching."

Jim Hunter (10-5) was to face Bruce Dal Canton (7-2) of the Royals in today's rematch.

Smith In Win Over Emerson

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Fourth-seeded Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., recovered his touch after losing the first set to defeat two-time champion Roy Emerson of Australia, 2-6, 6-1, 6-3, 9-7, today and advance to the quarterfinals of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships.

However, Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., was eliminated by underdog Onny Parun of New Zealand, 9-8, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

With the victory, Smith, third choice of the bookies to take the title, joined fellow American Tom Gorman of Seattle in the round of eight and assured the U.S. of three players among the quarterfinalists.

Emerson, the titlist here in 1964 and 1965, showed flashes of his old form in the first set, but the next two were disastrous for him. Not until the fourth set did the Australian regain his control, but by that time it was too late to halt the 6-foot-4 Smith.

Four Australians made it to the quarterfinals. First-seeded Rod Laver and second-seeded John Newcombe both made it on Thursday along with Gorman, who thwarted the hopes of another Aussie by turning back Ross Case, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4. Gorman's next opponent is Laver, who lost to the American last week in the Queen's Club tournament.

Colin Dibley of Australia beat Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico, 6-3, 8-6, 6-3 to become the other player in the quarterfinals.

In the women's singles, Nancy Gunter, Richey's sister, joined Billie Jean King as the only Americans in the quarterfinals Mrs. Gunter scored an easy 6-3, 6-2 victory over Saiga Yansone of Russia.

First seeded Margaret Court of Australia and Mrs. King, who have each won the title here three times and met each other in final matches twice, advanced to the quarterfinals on Friday along with Francoise Durr of France and Kerry Melmille of Australia.

Britain's Winnie Shaw defeated Lesleq Bowrey of Australia, 1-6, 9-7, 6-3, early on Friday to get to the quarterfinals, too.

Astrodome Jinx Spells Disaster For Giants

HOUSTON (UPI) —The San Francisco Giants, recently recovered from the "June swoon," may be confronting another perennial jinx: the Houston Astrodome.

The Giants, coming back from the doldrums earlier this month with seven straight wins, fell to the Astros 5-4 in the ninth inning Friday, and thereby losing 19 of their last 23 games played in the indoor stadium.

San Francisco appeared to have shaken its Astrodome fever, carrying a 4-3 edge into the bottom of the ninth on the hitting strength of Hal Lanier, Chris Speier, and Bobby Bonds. Lanier, hitting only .193, went three for four and scored three runs as he started all three Giant rallies. Spier and Bonds each got a pair of hits and two RBI's.

But a pair of errors by Willie Mays, subbing for the injured Willie McCovey at first base, allowed two unearned Houston runs in the seventh and eighth innings, and the Astros poured it on the ninth. Starter and loser Gaylord Perry, after being touched for an infield single by Denis Menke, fumbled Doug Rader's bunt, then hit Rader in the back near first base when he finally recovered the ball. The ball bounced into right field and the runners went to second and third.

Perry then intentionally walked John Edward, loading the bases, and then unleashed a wild pitch to Jack Haitt, allowing Menke to score the tying run, Hiatt lined a 32 pitch over the head of Bonds in center, driving in the winning run.

Tonight, Ron Bryant (6-3) will square off against Larry Dierker (6-3) trying to break the Astrodome hex.

Mays Now Leads N.L. Balloting

NEW YORK (UPI)--Willie Mays is still the greatest to baseball fans across the country.

Mays, the second leading home run hitter in baseball history who is having one of his best seasons ever at the age of 40 with the San Francisco Giants, has accumulated more votes than any other player in the National League in balloting for berths on the 1971 All-Star team.

Mays has received 540,390 votes while catcher Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds is second with 572,952, in a poll of beseball fans.

Mays is assured of a starting position in the outfield when the National League takes on the American League in Detroit's Tiger Stadium Juty 13. Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves and Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates are leading in the race for the other two outfield spots.

The Giants' Willie McCovey, who was recently put on the disabled list with a damaged knee, continues to lead Orlando Cepeda of the Braves in battle for first base, while the Chicago Cubs' Glenn Beckert is ahead in the voting for the second base position.

Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets has a slim lead over Don Kessinger of the Cubs for the shortstop berth while the St. Louis Cardinals' Joe Torre, the leading hitter in the National League, is far ahead in the race for third base.

Pitchers and reserves for the squad will be chosen by Sparky Anderson, manager of the defending National League champion Reds.

1 Stroke Lead For Mitchell

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Bobby Mitchell, looking for his first PGA tour win, led the way into today's third round of the ninth annual Cleveland Open Golf tournament at the par 71 Beechmont Country Club course after posting a 12-under-par 66-64—130 for the fist 36 holes.

His score was one shot off the low mark for 35 holes this year on the tour. It was set earlier at the Phoenix Open by Paul Harney, Gene Littler and Miller Barber at 129.

Mitchell, 28, of Janville, Va., took the lead Friday afternoon following the second round, edging Dan Sikes by one stroke. Sikes rallied on the back nine to come up with a 67, four-under-par, to hold onto second place at 131, 11-under-par.

The 1970 U.S. Open champion, Tony Jacklin, shot a sizzling eight-under-par 63 Friday, the best round of the day, to reach the half-way mark with a 132 and hold onto third place in the tourney. He birdied eight holes, five of them on the front nine.

Mitchell, who turned pro 13 years ago at the age of 15, was eyeing the $30,000 first place money.

"I haven't had a bogey since the 17th hole of the final round of the U. S. Open last week," Mitchell said. "This is one of the prettiest and well conditioned courses we've played on this year.

"I hope it continues to help my play."

Sikes, who shot an 11-under-par 67 Friday had a two-stroke lead going into the second round, but lost it when he missed six putts under eight feet and bogeyed the fourth and seventh holes.

"I had a two-stroke lead on the field, shot a 67 Friday, and lost my lead," Sikes said with amazement. "If anybody beats Mitchell we'll have to declare no contest.

"But I'll tell you that I'm very happy, especially the way I stood at the 11th tee which I bogeyed. Believe me, I would have been happy with anything under par since I hadn't done any good since the first hole Friday."

Young Bobby Cole, of Johannesburg, South Africa, Australian Bruce Crampton and Gene Littler of LaJolla, Calif., all moved into contention for the remaining 36 holes posting eight-under-par 134's for the tournament.

FINAL DAY

Huge 220 Field For AAU Track

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — They'll have to go some today in the windup of the National AAU Track and Field Championships to top Rod Milburn's world record 13-second performance in the 120 high hurdles.

There are 12 finals on today's program, starting with the 220 dash which will start in the morning with seven trial heats and windup in the afternoon with the finals.

The eventual winner will be an iron man of sorts since it will take four heats to decide the title because of a record field of 49 entries. In between the first 220 heat and the wrapup race there will be finals in the 440 hurdles, 440 dash, 880, mile, two mile walk, 3,000 meter steeplechase, six mile, pole vault, javelin, triple jump and shot put.

It will take quite a performance by the more than 500 athletes competing for those titles to beat Milburn's effort on the opening program Friday.

Milburn set his world record in a semifinal heat of the 120 and there was some speculation as to what exactly was his record-setting time.

The timing judges, using hand stopwatches, caught Milburn in 13 flat but the Bulova Phototimer, an electronic device which measures the time and flashes a picture of the finish as well, said his time was 12.94, which rounded out comes to 12.9.

The judges studied the picture but decided to stand with their 13.0 flat call.

Tom Moore, veteran starter and director of the California Relays at Modesto, said they should have given Milburn a 12.9.

"Ordinarily, the photo time is slower than the hand watches, Moore said, "which makes Milburn's performence even more incredible. Personally, I think he should have been given a 12.9"

In any event, Milburn, who completed a sweep of the year's major 120 hurdles titles when he won the final in a wind-aided 13.1, finally has collared the record he has been after for a long time.

His time clipped two tenths of a second off the existing mark shared by Willie Davenport, the 1968 Olympic Gold Medalist, Lee Calhoun, Earl McCullouch, Erv Hall, and Tom Hill of the United States and Martin Lauer of West Germany.

Milburn, a physical education major at Southern University who will start his junior year in the fall, said he wasn't aware he was on a record-setting course until they flashed the time.

"I was running only fast enough to qualify for the final," he said, "and in no way did I imagine I was doing that (setting a record), but it's a good feeling."

Delano Meriwether, a 27-year-old doctor at the Baltimore Cancer Clinic who started running only a year ago, almost matched Milburn's performance when he won the 100-yard dash in 9 seconds flat.

However, he won't get credit for a world's record because of excessive wind (6.48, well over the allowable limit of 4.473).

"Athletes have good days and bad days as well," said the modest Meriwether. "I guess this was a good one for me. I remember passing Milburn on the infield before his race and he told me he was ready."

Meriwether practices about three times a week after work at the clinic and said his trip to Eugene for the Nationals has created quite a strain on the home front,

"We are in the process of moving from Baltimore to Boston," he explained, "and my wife is having to do all the packing. You know how a wife reacts when you go galloping off across the country."

Meriwether, who will be starting a new job at the Harvard Medical Unit working on blood diseases, said he is undecided about competing next week in the U.S.-Russian meet at Berkeley, Calif.

The first and second place finishers in the Nationals win automatic berths to that meet as well as on the Pan American Games team.

"I'd like to run against the Russians if I can," Meriwether said.

Milburn, Tom Volmer, Reynaldo Brown, Arnie Robinson and Steve Prefontaine, who also won AAU titles Friday, indicated they'll compete against the Russians.

My Kind Of Players, Brannick Would Say

How Eddie Brannick woul have loved to be traveling with the 1971 Giants! "My kind of ball players," he would have said. Unquestionably he is saying that now in his Palm Beach home in Florida to which he retired this spring after 65 years active duty with the Giants.

Brannick will be 79 July 22 but his association with the ball club that won his heart as a 13-year-old office boy in 1905 hasn't ended. Brannick now is Secretary Emeritus of the Giants, a title bestowed on him by the club's board of directors upon his retirement.

"My kind of ball players," Brannick would have said over and over again. Brannick's kind of ball players always were fellows who clobbered second division teams and broke even or edged the top-rated clubs. "That's the way pennants are won," he would say. "It's a simple formula."

Even with the National League now divided into two divisions, it isn't difficult to identify the second division outfits under Brannick's formula. Certainly, the San Diego Padres would qualify. And this season the Giants have walloped the Padres 8-1 in nine games with three more about to get under way Monday.

But the Padres aren't the only club the Giants have manhandled this year. They are 8-1 against the Cubs who used to be a second division outfit when Brannick was traveling secretary of the Giants. But no longer.

Brannick would be particularly pleased with the way this 1971 team of Giants reacts to defeat. There never are any smiles-or wisecracks on the team plane or bus after losses.

"My kind of ball players," he would have said. "Mr. McGraw couldn't tolerate smiling losers—it was best not to be around him when the team lost."

How Brannick would have loved to watch Chris Speier, 20-year-old rookie shortstop of the team, making pretty double play pirouettes across the second base bag. Brannick would have kept Speier supplied with an unending stream of silk ties.

To receive a gift of one of Brannick's ties was a top accolade. He never bought a cheap one in his life. He always went first class. His favorite tie story revolved around the 1947 season.

"Early in 1947," he would reminisce, "Johnny Mize hit an inspirational homer in the Polo Grounds. It gave the whole team a lift because it was a tight ball game. I announced that every ball player who hit a homer would get the best silk tie I could find. That was the year the Giants broke the National League home run record—221—and they almost broke me."

Football On T.V. Tonight

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—A blanace between running and passing from the East will attempt to offset one of the most explosive West air shows ever assembled during the 11th annual Coaches All-America football game here tonight.

Kickoff for the game before 42,000-plus fans packed into Texas Tech's Jones Stadium will be 8:30 p.m. (EDT). It will be televised nationally (by ABC).

The weatherman has promised partly cloudy skies, temperatures near 90 and no rain at kickoff. Each team has won five games since the contest began in 1961.

The West aerials will be hurled by Stanford' Jim Plunkett, 1970 Heisman Trophy winner, and Southern Methodist's Chuck Hixson. Rounding out the starting backfield will be tailback Joe Orduna of Nebraska, fullback Bo Cornell of Washington and flanker Ernie Jennings of the Air Force.

The East, a 34-27 victor last year under Louisiana State Coach Charley McClendon, will be looking for its second straight victory. The West won the 1969 battle 14-10 in the final game played in Atlanta before the classic was moved to Lubbock.

Receivers include Bob Moore of Stanford, J. D. Hill of Arizona State and Chuck Ducus of Arkansas.

The East offense will be headed by quarterbacks Scott Hunte of Alabama, Buddy Lee of LSU and Rex Kern of Ohio State. Kern will start at strong defensive safety.

USC Is Favored In Pac-8 Football

SEATTLE (UPI) —Southern Cal will supplant Stanford as 1971 football champion of the Pacific-8 Conference, according to a poll of sports information directors in the conference.

Champ Favored In Title Bout

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI)—Disputed world junior welterweight champion Bruno Arcari enjoyed nearly a two pound weight advantage Saturday over challenger Enrique Jana of Argentina when they weighed in for the first world title fight in Sicilian history.

The Italian champion weighed 139 1-2 pounds while Jana tipped the scales at 137 3-4 pounds.

The two men meet tonight in a scheduled 15 round bout for the World Boxing Council (WBC) version of the junior welterwight crown.

NICE TRY — Donna Caponi blasted plenty of sand but no ball out of a trap near the 17th green yesterday during the second round of the U.S. Women's Open at Erie, Pa. Donna was one-over-par after 36 holes. JoAnne Carner led with a one-under 143. (UPI Telephoto)

Five Time Amateur Champ Leads U.S. Open At Midpoint

ERIE, Pa. (UPI)—JoAnne Carner carried a two-stroke lead into today's third round of the U. S. Women's Open Golf Championship with a warning she may finally be able to live up to a boast she made when she was an amateur.

"I said the top 10 amateurs could beat the pros," Mrs. Carner recalled wistfully. "Then I came on the tour and started shooting 80's."

Mrs. Carner, a five-time U. S. Women's Amateur champion, shot into the 36-hole lead Friday, adding a one-over-par 73 to her first-round 70 for a one-under-par total of 143.

Playing early, her edge held up as most of the late starters faded in a heavy wind, including defending champion Donna Caponi, who bogeyed five of the last 10 holes and is in second place with 145.

"If I don't three-putt, I should win this tournament," said Mrs. Carner, a 32-year-old strawberry blonde who travels in a silver trailer with her husband. "This is always my downfall —I start three-putting and down I go."

In Friday's round, as she did Thursday, Mrs. Carner spent most of the time in the rough, hitting just six fairways for the second straight day. But she one-putted seven times, saving herself repeatedly with excellent chipping.

Besides the lead, the performance earned JoAnne another free night from the kitchen chores.

"Don (her husband) said if I shoot 73 or better he'll cook dinner," Mrs. Carner said. "That's why I was working so hard out there. Last night, he made liver and onions —which is difficult to make. He's an excellent cook, in fact he taught me how to cook."

Going into today's third round, Lesley Holbert was all alone in third place at 146, former champions Mary Mills and Murle Lindstrom Breer were at 147, four-time winner Mickey Wright and Jane Blalock at 148, amateur Jane Bastanchury had 149 and Kathy Whitworth 150.

Mrs. Carner said the wind Friday was "unbelievable."

"The wind just kept swirling around all day," she said. "Sometimes, you didn't know how to hit a shot because you were never sure what the wind would do."

Miss Caponi, trying for a record third straight Open title, started in mid-afternoon with two straight bogeys but then birdied four of the next six holes and appeared headed for a big lead.

She ran into trouble at No. 9, driving into the rough and coming out short for a bogey, then fell apart on the back nine with successive bogeys at Nos. 13, 14 and 15 and another at 17.

On the 13th hole, Miss Caponi drove into trees; at 14, she three putted; at 15, she wasted a shot in the rough near the green and, at 17, she took two shots to get out of a sand trap.

"We are used to playing rounds of three hours and 45 minutes, but I was out there five hours today," Miss Caponi said.

"That's a long time, and I had too much time to think. We waited a lot, and waiting gives me too much time to thing . . . I changed my mind too many times about what I was about to do."

The cut for the final two rounds came at 159, leaving 45 pros among the 54 players in the running for the $5,00 first prize. Among the casualties were Judy Rankin, the No. 9 money winner on the LPGA tour, two-time junior champion Hollis Stacy, and former tennis star Althea Gibson Darben.

Sunday's final round will be nationally televised (ABC) beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Million Dollar Deal Made For Canonero II

NEW YORK (UPI)—Canonero II, winner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness, was sold to Robert J. Kleberg Jr. Friday for a sum estimated at over $1 million.

W. J. "Buddy" Hirsch, who will train the horse for Kleberg, said he believed some paper still had to be signed before the transaction becomes official, but that Kleberg told him all negotiations had been completed and agreed upon.

Kleberg, owner of the King Ranch, made the purchase from Pedro Baptista of Caracas.

Canonero II, a Kentucky-bred bay colt, returned to Kentucky from Venezuela as a rank outsider in the Derby and won going away. He also captured the Preakness in impressive fashion and went into the Belmont Stakes as an odds-on favorite to complete the Triple Crown sweep.

However, a foot infection and a skin rash prior to the race apparently troubled him and he finished fourth. He is still bothered now by an infected hock.

Hirsch said he plans to race Canonero again "if and when he is able. But I expect it will be quite a while before he gets back to the races. I don't think it will be before the Santa Anita meeting next January or February."

Pop Warner Grid Signups On Tap For Novatans

Novato and San Marin Pop Warner football teams will hold signups Monday and Tuesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. at Western Title Co., 945 Front Street, Novato.

This year there will be four teams in Novato — Novato Yellow Jackets and San Marin Colts for boys aged 10 through 12 and weight between 70 and 105 pounds; and Novato Junior Hornets and San Marin Junior Mustangs for boys 12 through 14, between 90 and 125 pounds.

Boys who will be entering the ninth grade in September are not eligible for Pop Warner football.

Signup fee is $20, and a parent must accompany each boy and provide proof of birthdate. Practice is scheduled to begin Aug. 7.

Coaches will be Bob Douglass, Junior Hornets; Tex Miller, Junior Mustangs; Al Globe, Colts, and Gene Ferrari, Yellow Jackets.

S.F. Yacht Club Okays Challenge

The San Francisco Yacht Club of Belvedere has received and accepted a conditional challenge from the St. Francis Yacht Club to race for the S.F. Perpetual Challenge Trophy, San Francisco Y.C. officials announced yesterday.

The challenge races will be on a boat-for-boat basis with 30-foot bird boats. The challenger is Falcon, owned by Jim Jessie, and the race has been scheduled for Saturday, July 10.

The San Francisco Perpetual Challenge Trophy dates back to 1895 when El Sueno of Encinal Y.C. beat Queen of the San Francisco Y.C. This year's will be the race's 64th renewal.

Stargell Cracks 27th Home Run

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

It might be a terrifying thought to National League pitchers but—what if Willie Stargell was healthy?

Stargell, batting at an incredible pace this season, ripped his 27th home run and drove in four runs Friday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates clubbed the Philadelphia Phils 14-4. Stargell, playing with a badly damaged left knee, leads the majors in homers and has driven in 76 runs in 63 games. His closest competitor in the RBI department is Atlanta's Henry Aaron, with only 56.

Jackie Hernandez and Richie Hebner each hit two homers for the Pirates but it was Stargell's bat which helped the Pirates jump off to an 11-2 lead after only three innings.

The Pirate outfielder, who's hitting at a .319 clip, had three extra base hits in the first three innings and drove in four runs in a game for the third time this week.

Stargell, who had a pair of knee operations a few years back, is hoping he can finish out the season. "The left one hurts a lot," he said. "It feels much like it did the last time I had to have surgery and I feel certain the cartilage damage will require another knee operation at the end of the season."

Elsewhere in the National League, New York swept Montreal 4-1 and 4-2, Atlanta stunned Cincinnati twice 8-6 and 10-3, Houston edged San Francisco 5-4, Chicago blasted St. Louis 12-0 and San Diego shocked Los Angeles 5-4.

Stargell's double highlighted a three-run first and Hernandez' first homer triggered a four-run second. Hernandez also homered in the four-run third to help Steve Blass coast to his ninth victory against three losses.

Jerry Grote lashed three doubles in the opening game victory and Bud Harrelson drove in three runs in the second game as New York swept the Expos. Nolan Ryan struck out 10 batters in the opener to record his seventh victory and Danny Frisella pitched 4 1-3 innings of two-hit relief in the second game to gain his fourth victory in five decisions.

Ralph Garr's eighth-inning double brought home the winning run in the opener and the Braves erupted for 10 runs in the first two innings of the second game to romp past Cincinnati.

Darrell Evans drove in three runs in the first game as the Braves sent winless Jim Merritt to his 10th loss of the season. Rookie Earl Williams had four RBIs in the second game, three on a home run.

Rookie pitcher Bill Bonham collected two hits during a 10run seventh inning and held St. Louis to four hits in five innings as the Cubs mauled the Cardinals. Chicago had 20 hits in the game and oddly, only one, Jim Hickman's double, was for extra bases.

Dave Campbell's bases loaded single in the ninth inning drove in two runs and lifted San Diego past the Dodgers. Bob Barton's single, a double by pinch-hitter Larry Stahl and an intentional walk filled the bases to set the stage for Campbell's game-winning hit.

Blue's Family Sees Him Pitch

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Vida Blue's family finally got a look at baseball's hottest commodity Friday night, and now they know first-hand what all the commotion is about.

Blue's mother, brother and four sisters were flown to Oakland from Mansfield, La., by the Athletics' owner, Charles O. Finley, Friday night and watched 21-year-old Vida blank the Kansas City Royals, 7-0, on five hits for his 16th victory of the season.

Blue, who will be 22 years old next Monday, struck out 12 and recorded his sixth shutout of the season while boosting his record to 16-2. No runner got beyond second against Blue, who turned in his 16th complete game and reduced his earned run average to 1.37.

The game marked the first time that Blue's family had ever seen him pitch in any professional game. They sat in Finley's private box and received an ovation when introduced to the crowd of 33,888 fans.

In other American League games, Baltimore beat Boston 7-3, New York whipped Washington 12-2, Milwaukee beat Minnesota 3-1, Chicago blanked California 2-0 and Detroit defeated Cleveland 6-1.

Mike Epstein's 10th homer of the year and a two-run single by Sal Bando were the big hits for Oakland, which stretched its lead in the AL West to 10 games over the Royals.

Paul Blair's two-run triple snapped a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning and paved the way for Baltimore's victory. Boog Powell and Frank Robinson homered for Baltimore while Rico Petrocelli and Reggie Smith connected for Boston. The victory was the Orioles' ninth in their last 11 games.

Felipe Alou drove in four runs with a triple and a single and Ron Blomberg, just recalled from the minors, hit a two-run homer as the Yankees tagged young Pete Broberg with his first major league loss. Ron Swoboda, acquired earlier in the day from Montreal, delivered a run-scoring single in his first game as a Yankee and Jake Gibbs chipped in with a two-run homer.

A two-run homer by Tommy Harper and a solo homer by Johnny Briggs sparked Milwaukee's victory. Harper's homer came in the eighth inning and helped Skip Lockwood to his fourth victory against six losses.

Run-scoring singles by Carlos May and Tom Egan in the first inning provided the White Sox with the necessary runs to defeat California. Tommy John allowed six hits in eight innings of work to gain credit for his fifth victory of the year.

Funeral Set For Washington; San Diego Seeks Another Team

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Tuesday for Kenny Washington, who became the first black player in the National Football League in 1946.

Washington, 52, died at UCLA Medical Center Thursday night. He was admitted to the hospital last month for a heart and respiratory condition, and polyarteritis, an inflammation of the arteries of the body.

He played with the Los Angeles Rams after an outstanding career at UCLA. He retired from pro football in 1948.

Course Toughened; Scores Rise

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —Ben Crenshaw of Texas is a believer now.

After the second round of the NCAA golf tournament at the Tucson National Golf Club, the hot-shooting longhorn freshman said there was no way to toughen up the course to stop the assault by the college shooters. But, tourney officials found ways to do it—high pin placements and lengthening the tees. The result was only one score under 70 in Friday's third round.

John Mills of Houston retained the lead for the third straight day at 65-69-71—205, a tourney record 11-under par and three strokes ahead of Crenshaw and Eddie Pearce of Wake Forest. Crenshaw had an even par 72 for the third round while Pearce came in at 70.

Mike Killian, helping Florida to the team lead, was in fourth place at 211, Lanny Watkins, Wake Forest, Tom Watson, Stanford, and Dave Glenz, Oregon, were deadlocked at 212 as the tourney entered its final day today.

New Mexico State's Bruce McKenzie had Friday's best score, a 69, but trailed the leaders at 214.

Florida, the 1968 champion and only team to break Houston's domination on the team title in seven years, had a 853 total for a one stroke advantage over the Cougars. Back at 860 was Wake Forest, the favorites. Texas was next at 868.

Wayne Ziegler Bowls Hot 704 At Greenbrae

The younger generation had it over the over 30 set this past week of league bowling in Marin County. At least at Greenbrae Lanes.

Wayne Ziegler, 18, rolled games of 232, 235, 237 for a very consistent 704 series and Dave Mendelsohn, 17, had games of 235, 216 and 247 for a 698 to highlight the scores for the past week.

Paul Panholzer edged out Milt Schwartz by a pin, 871 to 870 at Nave Lanes in Ignacio for high four-game score of the week.

The week's honor roll:

SPORTS SHORTS

Football

NEW YORK (UPI)—Free safety W.K. Hicks and lineman Roger Finnie have signed with the New York Jets for the 1971 National Football League season, it was announced Saturday by head coach and general manager Weeb Ewbank.

Hicks, entering his eighth pro season and second with the Jets, intercepted eight passes last year, the most by a Jet since 1964. Hicks was obtained from the Houston Oilers for a fifth-round college draft choice in January 1970. He ranks fifth among active American Football Conference players with 35 career interceptions.

Finnie, the regular offensive right tackle at the start of last season, suffered a dislocated ankle that forced him out of the team's last 11 games.

Baseball

NEW YORK (UPI)—Outfielder Ron Swoboda returned to New York on Friday—as a member of the Yankees.

The one-time New York Met was traded to the Yankees by Montreal in return for utility outfielder Ron Woods and a small amount of cash.

Swoboda hit .253 in 39 games for the Montreal Expos this season with no homers and six runs batted in.

Woods was assigned to Winnipeg in the International League by Montreal. He had a .250 average with the Yankees, being used mainly as pinchhitter.

Boxing

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI)—Muhammad Ali, who meets Jimmy Ellis July 26 for the heavyweight fight, said he would have to lose about ten pounds before that bout.

Ali said he weighed 217 Friday night when he went a total of seven rounds here against three opponents in an exhibition. In an exhibition match, boxers are not required to weigh in.

Ali said he would weight in at 208 or 210 when he meets Ellis in the Astrodome.

Basketball

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—San Diexgo is looking for an American Basketball Association team to replace the National Basketball Association Rockets, who have been moved to Houston, it was disclosed Friday.

Marvin Kratter, former owner of the Boston Celtics of the NBA, told a news conference that he and a group of local residents hoped to purchase an ABA club in addition to the Western Hockey League San Diego Gulls.

Youngsters Gain In State Golf

PEBBLE BEACH (UPI) — Four youngsters advanced to the semi-finals of the State Amateur Golf Tournament Friday as the older generation, including former champs Ernie Pieper and Verne Callison, lost out in double round play on the Pebble Beach Course.

Pieper, a 59-year-old two time tourney champ from San Jose who played in the 1929 Amateur, went down six and five before hot-shooting 23-year-old Doug Nelson of San Francisco, while Callison, 51, Sacramento also a two-time champ, was defeated by 18-year-old Aly Trompas of San Diego, two and one.

Other semifinalists were Sandy Galbraith, 25, San Carlos, the winner one up over Dick Runkle of Los Angeles, and Bruce Robertson, 18, of San Diego, who downed Artie McNickle three and two.

The wins set up the youngest group of semifinalists in the tourney. The best golf of the day was played by Nelson of the San Francisco Olympic Club, who was only one over par for his two matches.

The four triumphed over a field of 16 that was pared to eight for the quarter finals.

Vince's Tourney A Success

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Former Green Bay Packer Jim Taylor led the winning foursome at the first annual Vince Lombardi Memorial golf classic Friday which raised $20,000 for cancer research.

The best ball 18-hole tournament, studded with sports and entertainment celebrities, drew an estimated 4,500 spectators to the North Hills Country Club and even the weather cooperated to make the day a success.

Mrs. Marie Lombardi said her late husband, who led the Green Bay Packers through the 1960s as head coach and general manager and who died of cancer in Washington last fall, "would have loved it.' Their son, Vincent Lombardi, Jr., said the tournament benefit was "appropriate" because of his father's love of golf.

Three foursomes led by Taylor, former Packer lineman Bob Skoronski and Mayo Smith, manager of the 1968 world champion Detroit Tigers, tied for first place with scores of 15 under par.

STARR GOLFER — Green Bay Packer quarterback Bart Starr was one of many celebrities who played in the Vince Lombardi Memorial Golf Classic yesterday at Menomonee Fall, Wis. Starr broke out in a grin after sinking a chip shot to make a par four. (UPI Telephoto)

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

There's Nothing Heroic To Bidding Game On A Finesse

As an experienced player, you often bid a game that depends on a finesse. You take the finesse and hold your breath. If it succeeds, you are a hero; if it fails, your partner curls his lip. Sometimes, however, you stumble over a finesse that has nothing to do with your contract. There's nothing heroic about trying that kind of finesse, whether it wins or loses.

LEADS ACE

West opened the ace of clubs since the bidding had made it clear that neither declarer nor dummy had a club stopper (since neither had been willing to bid notrump). East signaled encouragement with the eight of clubs, and West continued with the queen of clubs, winning the second trick.

West then shifted to the eight of hearts, and it was up to South to take the rest of the tricks. South looked suspiciously at West and then at East, but neither of them turned pale. Finally, South tried a finesse with dummy's queen of hearts.

East defeated the contract with the king of hearts. The defenders were well pleased with themselves even though South later guessed the location of the queen of spades and thus held his loss to 100 points.

SHOULD REFUSE

South should refuse the heart finesse by playing dummy's ace of hearts at the third trick. The contract will stand or fall on the play of the spades, and the heart finesse is needless and pointless.

After drawing two rounds of trumps, South should cash the king of spades and then lead the jack of spades for a finesse. If this succeeds (as it does), the contract is assured regardless of which opponent has the king of hearts. If the spade finesse fails, the contract is defeated again regardless of the king of hearts. Taking the heart finesse just gives the opponent an unnecessary chance to defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♥- Q 7 6 2
♠- 8 6 5
♦- 9 4
♣- A Q 10 5.

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

The hand is not quite worth a response of two clubs followed by a later spade raise. If partner shows another sign of life, you will make sure of getting to game in spades; if he passes, you will probably not miss a game.

Dog Bites Boy, Mother Appeals

The mother of an 11-year-old boy, bitten Thursday by a dog, requests that its owners or anyone knowing the whereabouts of the dog, contact her to tell her if the dog has had its rabies shots.

Marilyn Baker of 30 Novato Street, Apt. 205 San Rafael, said that her son Danny was bitten about 1:30 p.m. yesterday while riding his bicycle on Bellam Boulevard.

The dog was described as a small German shepherd type brown and black.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 26, the 177th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Jupiter and Mercury.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Cancer.

American author Pearl Buck was born June 26, 1892.

On this day in history:

In 1900 Dr. Walter Reed led a medical team in a campaign to wipe out yellow fever in the Panama Canal Zone.

In 1917 the first troops of the American Expeditionary Force reached France in World War I.

In 1944 the third largest French port, Cherbourg was liberated from the Nazis by the Allies.

In 1948 the U.S. began the "Berlin Airlift" to by-pass a Soviet road and rail blockade of the German capital.

A thought for today: Anatole France said, "We have medicines to make women speak; we have none to make them keep silence."

Postal Service Open House Set

An open house to observe "Postal Service Day" will be held next Thursday at the Corte Madera Post Office at 7 Pixley Avenue.

Employees will answer questions about the operation of the post office to visitors between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. according to Gerald R. Knock, officer in charge.

Groups wishing to tour the post office may make arrangements with the post office, Knock said.

No More Dams On Our Scenic Rivers

The Wild and Scenic Rivers Act (SB 107), authored by Marin Sen. Peter H. Behr and Sen. Robert J. Lagomarsino of Ojai, would create a California wild and scenic rivers system.

Into the system will go the Eel, the Trinity and the Klamath Rivers in Northern California, the last of California's free-flowing rivers. They would be protected from further dam and reservoir construction.

AS THE POPULATION pressure pushes northward, accompanied by more tracts, concrete-lined ditches, and dams, the preservation of the last few natural rivers becomes of prime importance to all Northern California sportsmen and vacationers.

The Klamath, Eel and Trinity rank highest in the state in both steelhead catch and production of silver salmon.

They also provide California's major opportunities for canoeing, kayaking and rafting. The Klamath is one of the few rivers in California providing uninterrupted travel on moving water for more than two days.

ONE OF THE arguments against the wild rivers bill is that the State Department of Water Resources wants all options kept open in case water is needed for export to other parts of the state.

However, the Department of Water Resources, in its own bulletin of December, 1970, acknowledged that there is a breathing spell for any immediate water demands on the Eel, Trinity and Klamath. Water from those rivers will not be needed, possibly until the year 2020, and certainly not before the mid-1990's.

IF BY 1985, 14 years from now, the state cannot come up with a cheaper and less destructive water source and must call on the Eel, Trinity and Klamath, then it could in good conscience seek an amendment to the wild rivers act and still have enough lead time to build necessary facilities.

Another argument against the wild rivers bill was that it might block needed flood control work along the river banks.

To assuage those fears, Senator Behr announced he is willing to add an amendment to the bill, permitting any and all flood control work necessary for the protection of lives and property along those rivers, except for dams and reservoirs.

GIVEN THESE assurances — no hindrance to flood control work, and no immediate need to tap the rivers for water — we see no reason why SB 107 should not be enacted into law.

Once a river is dammed, it can never be restored to its original free-flowing status. The Klamath, Eel and Trinity deserve protection from such irreversible action.

Mill Valley Sewer Need

Of the six measures that will go before Mill Valley voters on Tuesday, Measure A, calling for sewer system improvement, is the most critical need.

Mill Valley is under the gun of the California Water Quality Control Board, which is demanding sewer improvements on threat of severe penalties.

Measure A asks the voters to authorize $450,000 in bonds for improvements to the sanitary sewer system and to the sewage treatment plant at 110 Camino Alto. An estimated 9 cents or 10 cents on the tax rate would pay for the sewer bonds over a 20 year period.

If the sewers are improved without the bond issue, the one-shot cost would be about 80 cents on the tax rate.

Next in importance is Measure D, the $300,000 bond issue for storm drain improvement. This goes hand in hand with the sewer improvement, because defective storm drainage facilities are adding to the overload on the sewer system.

Since two-thirds majority vote is needed on each measure, no one is too optimistic about approval of all six.

However, we believe that Measures A (sewer) and D (storm drain) are critical needs that should be approved, even at the expense of the other measures for a fire station, street maintenance, recreation and swimming facilities.

BOUQUETS & BRICKBATS

BOUQUETS to Judy Lee Watson of San Rafael and Denise Louise Howard of Sebastopol, who were selected to reign over the Sonoma-Marin Fair.

A BOUQUET to Sister M. Patricia, director of the Garden School at Dominican College, for pioneering in classroom integration of handicapped children with normal children. She has been selected to attend a seminar at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

BRICKBATS to pet owners who allow dogs to run at large in shopping areas and mess up the sidewalks.

A BOUQUET and best wishes to Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, appointed to head a new super department, which combines all health and medical services. We hope the new agency can cut costs by removing overlaps and duplications.

BRICKBATS to drivers who stop in the middle of the street sometimes two cars abreast, to chat with friends, and block traffic in both directions.

MAN BITES DOG

"I know there are ecologists trying to protect us, but they still make me nervous."

Gone Fishing

Raccoons, where are you? This is the cry of those Marinites whose raccoons no longer come each night after dark for food. We know at least three families in the Kentfield area that have been looking hopefully, but futilely for "their raccoons" for more than six weeks.

Have the neighbors stolen their affections by upping the ante from dog food to sardines and caviar? Has some dread malady decimated the raccoon population? Or have they, as suggested by a knowledgeable friend, gone fishing in the tidal creeks for the little fish that come upstream each spring?

We don't know. But if anyone sees ours, please tell them to come home and we will forgive their crass desertion.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Greatly Discouraged By Bennett Case

It discourages me greatly to read the reports of the Bennett trial. A man with his second arrest in less than a year for drunk driving, is seeminly avoiding justice after a jury of 12 judged him guilty in his latest arrest. Smallman said he had faith in the jury system, yet overturned their verdict - even before they had deliberated for hours without knowing of the verdict's predestined fate.

Smallman seemingly takes the testimony of Bennett's personal friends, wife, personal physician, two fired police officers, and one officer on "uncertain status" since last August, over that of three officers and one Marin General Hospital administrator, and then has the audacity to tell the jury "could well be you're right and I'm wrong." In my mind, he had better hope he's right. The dismissal of the case prevents the prosecution from using the almighty appeal, so effectively used by defendants these days to prolong justice.

I have two final statements. One: I was selected for jury duty this year, as are many others, and I hope they, as well as I, will not lose faith in the jury system because of this incident. Two: I voted for Smallman in the last election because I believed in his ideas concerning the current judicial system and his corrections for the problems we now face in our courts, but if this is an indication of what is to come, I don't want anymore of this type of change.

Why Disregard Dedicated Jurors?

Thank you for the editorial in the paper Monday, June 21, 1971. Your paper endorsed the now Hon. Judge Smallman. In my opinion his behavior in the recent case of William Bennett (State Board of Equalization), is a disgrace to the judiciary. No wonder people do not want to serve on the jury. It is an insult to their intelligence, in other words just pretending they are needed.

It seems to me the legislators would better serve their state, to enact new laws, which would improve court rules, instead of spending their time playing politics.

I wonder by what rule Mr. Smallman feels he can disregard those strong, dedicated 12 members of the jury who are summoned by the county to serve. Or give just reason why they can't serve.

Mr. Smallman came to my door asking support for Marin County Judgeship. To prove my point, I checked around to learn a little about him. I learned the Bar Association, the Independent-Journal, and some other source which didn't tell me anything about his character, didn't give me a reason to elect him for a judgeship. I did not support him. I hope those who did vote for him, will have the backbone to ask him why?

Help To Protect The Mountain Lion

What are we trying to prove?

The Russians all but wiped out the sea otter.

The Russians, Japanese, and Americans cut the whales down to a bare minimum.

Our national symbol, the American Eagle, is being shot and poisoned in Wyoming by the dozens.

The Brown Pelican is all but gone due to D.D.T.

How can we allow our own Fish and Game Department to wipe out the few remaining Mountain Lion?

Please help pass Assembly Bill 660, which will protect the Mountain Lion. Write your Assemblyman and Senator.

Thank you.

Temptation To Hide Official Errors

The recent expose of the "Pentagon Papers" on Vietnam shows clearly the different styles of Johnson and Nixon...

But beyond this, it exposes a serious flaw in our government's document classification systems. As it is, the originator determines the classification of a document. He classifies it and (maybe) declassifies it. The temptation to hide errors and embarrassing material which present no security threat to the country is obvious. It is especially obvious in this case where it covered up official lies.

This is a problem I remember discussing with a Navy commander in O.C.S. more years ago than I like to admit. Then it seemed a problem and apparently it remains so.

ART BUCHWALD

A Short Story By Agnew: My Friends In The Press

WASHINGTON — The summer is upon us, and once again it is our pleasure to list recommended books for people to take on their vacations.

NONFICTION

"My Friends in the Press," by Spiro Agnew, Southern Strategy Press — A heartwarming memoir chock-full of anecdotes concerning all the friends Mr. Agnew has made in the television and printed media since he has become Vice President of the United States. Six pages. Reading time: three minutes and 12 seconds.

"Investing in Lockheed for Fun and Profit," an amusing and valuable book on how to successfully manage a large aircraft company. It was originally printed to sell for $3.95 but because of inflation and unexpected overruns it is now priced at $199.

"ONE THOUSAND Reasons for Being in Vietnam." This three-set volume lists every reason ever given by a high government official as to why we were involved in Vietnam. It includes the pledges of four American Presidents, the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, pacification, Vietnamization, incursions and the secret Swiss Bank account numbers of all the leaders we have supported in Indochina. Printed through the courtesy of the New York Times.

"How to Take the Fun Out of Fun City," by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. In this hilarious book, Rockefeller recounts how he has played one practical joke after another on his good friend and fellow Republican, Mayor John Lindsay. Every time Lindsay thought he had something worked out for New York City, Rockefeller thought up something devilish to thwart him.

Lindsay is the perfect fall guy for Rockefeller's kind of humor and the reader is kept on the edge of his chair wondering what Rocky will do to him next.

"STATE INCOME Taxes and Why We Need Them," by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The governor of California writes with fervor on the necessity for state income taxes and why each citizen should be willing to pay them "even if it hurts." Citing case after case of people who would rather be on welfare or Medicare, Reagan makes a strong argument against loopholes in the tax laws that allow some California citizens to get off scot-free. The governor dedicates his book to his tax accountant.

"The Sensuous Telephone," by "M." The wife of a famous attorney general tells you what you can and cannot do with a telephone. She describes various ways of holding the phone, the positions used when talking on it, pre-phone-foreplay or how to work up excitement before making a call, and finally, how to fake it when you don't get a dial tone.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Nation Divided, Destroyed By Undeclared, Secret War

WASHINGTON — As a loyal member of the Nixon team, the Senate's minority leader, Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, often finds himself caught between two fires. In conference after conference at the White House he has argued that the Seante must be given some piece of the Vietnam action.

The response is invariably: If we show any signs of yielding by setting a date for withdrawal, Hanoi will get the idea we're going to surrender. Then we will have no chance of sustaining a viable South Vietnamese government and army capable of resisting a communist takeover.

SO SCOTT GOES back up to Capitol Hill to play the part of the little Dutch boy with his finger in the dike. There was no difficulty over the Hatfield-McGovern amendment. Well in advance Scott had predicted the vote would be 53 to 39. The vote on the "end-the-war amendment" to the Selective Service Act was 55 to 42.

The politics and the personalities of the two sponsors played a part. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is the only announced Democratic candidate for president. A victory over President Nixon would have added to his stature.

MARK HATFIELD of Oregon, one of two or three leading Republican doves, has been touted as a potential candidate against President Nixon in the Republican primaries next year. Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey Jr., who is preparing to go into the primaries, has several times said that Hatfield would be a more impressive challanger. Hatfield's position is that if Mr. Nixon means to run for a second term, he will stay out.

The defeat of Hatfield-McGovern and a similiar resolution in the House is far from ending the pressures on Capitol Hill to force some action on the President looking to an end of the fighting. Two of the most-respected senators, Frank Church of Idaho, a Democrat, and John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, Republican, have been redrafting a proposal to be hopefully voted on before the summer recess beginning Aug. 8.

THE AMENDMENT AS presently drafted would declare it national policy to withdraw all land, sea and air forces from Indochina. It prohibits any Department of Defense funds or any other funds, including foreign aid money, being used for the purpose of engaging the armed forces of the United States in further hostilities in North or South Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia or Thailand. Defensive air attacks would be prohibited unless American troops were, to use the phrase in the Constitution, in imminent danger. This means there could be no residual force nor any bombing out of Thailand or from aircraft carriers.

Since the repeal of the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, the President has no authority to do any of these things, the amendment asserts. It acknowledges, in effect, that only the commander-in-chief and not the Congress can set a date for a complete pull-out. "The President should set a date for withdrawal," the amendment says.

THIS IS A sweeping proposal, even though it stops short of fixing a deadline. Yet it appears likely to get a majority vote when it comes up. Sen. George Aiken, the ranking Republican on the foreign relations committee, and majority leader Mike Mansfield both favor it.

The Cooper-Church amendment a year ago was adopted by a vote of 58 to 37. This owed something to the violent reaction in the country to the Cambodian "incursion." Toward the end of the session it was approved by a Senate-House conference.

PRESUMABLY THIS time there will be no such emotional push. Nevertheless, the feeling in the Senate, and increasingly in the House, is deep seated that the Congress is a helpless bystander before the relentless sweep of events dividing and destroying the nation. It is a fusion of frustration and growing resentment over an undeclared and, in no small part, a secret war.

My Lai, the Calley trial, drug addiction, fragging, a demoralized army without a mission — the chamber of horrors seems endless. As the disclosures in the Pentagon history show once again, no one can be sure what next day's newspaper will reveal. This is what the White House seems unable to understand.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Tiny Arab States Vie For Oil-Rich Islands

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

A handful of small islands lying in the Persian Gulf may be the deciding factor as to whether the world's richest source of oil is to move safely past Dec. 31, 1971, toward a peaceful future or whether it is to sink into a morass of feudal jealousies and cold war rivalries.

Dec. 31 marks the end of British responsibility in an area where for more than a century it's guns have kept the peace among tiny sultanates, emirates and shiekdoms, overseeing trade, driving out the pirates and more lately holding at bay outside forces casting covetous eyes upon its riches.

BOTH SAUDI Arabia, bordering Bahrain, Qatar and the seven Trucial states, and Iran just across the gulf hope to take over the British role.

Theirs so far is a gentlemanly rivalry.

But around the corner to the south, where the Persian Gulf opens into the Arabian sea, communist guerrillas are battling to overthrow the Sulten of Oman and set up what they describe as a Chinese-style communal government. They are opposed by Oman's army with British air support.

Leftist forces with varying sources of outside support seek the overthrow of others among the small Arab states.

THE ISLANDS at issue are Howard, or Young Camel, at present ruled as part of Bahrain but claimed by Qatar, and three others strategically located at the mouth of the gulf.

Two known as The Tombs are claimed by the trucial state of Ras al Khaima and the third, called Abu Musa, by a second trucial state, Sharja.

Other trucial states are Abu Dhabi, Dubai, Ajman, Fujaira and Umm al Quaiwain. Together, the trucial states plus Bahrain and Qatar have population of not much more than 400,000 but their oil wealth is almost inestimable.

ANCIENT FEUDS, uncertain boundaries and still untapped oil riches lying beneath the Persian Gulf account for the intense rivalries.

Since early 1968 the trucial states, Bahrain and Qatar have sought some sort of union to replace British influence.

Saudi Arabia has pressed for a nine-member union and her influence is credited with preventing efforts to achieve it from falling apart before this.

Iran has declared she will go along with whatever the emirates themselves decide.

But about her claims to the islands which form a bottleneck at the gulf's mouth she is adamant.

SHE EVEN HAS warned Britain, her ally in CNETO, that she will fire on British aircraft making unauthorized passes over the islands.

But union among the nine remains far off and may prove impossible. Still in dispute are the site of a capital, representation in a federal assembly, budget contributions and voting procedures in the rulers' supreme council.

British troop withdrawals are continuing, now down to fewer than 4,000.

LESSONS OF MAO

Pint-Sized Rebellion Looms In The Mideast

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

BEIRUT (UPI)—In a country where a bootprint in the sand is the spoor of the enemy, a few hundred barefoot tribesmen, exslaves and illiterates are fighting to join a world they scarcely know.

A handful of Communist Chinese are instructing them in the political philosophy of Mao Tse-Tung and Karl Marx, of whom the vast majority have never heard, and reports say they are winning their war.

The rebels are Dhofaris, who inhabit a 36,000-square-mile province of the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman at the foot of the Arabian peninsula. This June 9 they celebrated the sixth anniversary of an uprising aimed at wresting Dhofar from the rule of Sultan Said Ben Qabous.

THE DHOFARIS are a backward, fighting people whose isolation has robbed them of any knowledge of the outside world. They know nothing of industriai progress. They lack the simplest consumer items such as shoes, watches or pens.

The despotic rule of Said Ben Taymour, the present sultan's father who was deposed last year, ensured that the Dhofaris —along with the other inhabitants of the Sultanate —should remain fixed in their feudal ignorance. He built no roads, schools or hospitals. He prohibited trade and travel and discouraged farming and imports of foodstuffs. He also banned Dhofaris from military service —a galling restriction on their instinctive militant spirit.

The old sultan's restrictions, many Arabists believe, were largely responsible for the success of the revolutionary movement in Dhofar.

It was inaugurated in 1965 and the first act of violence occurred in 1966 when palace guards fired at the sultan —and missed.

The abortive assassination initiated the active stage of the rebellion and tribesmen took to the hills to start harassment campaigns. It was not until September, 1968, however, that the revolution really got off the ground.

A CONFERENCE at Hamreen moved the rebels from narrow regionalism to seek independence for the entire Persian Gulf, thus ensuring wide attention and attracting outside — mainly Chinese — support.

The conference changed the movement's name from the Dhofar Liberation Front to the Popular Front for the Liberation of the Occupied Arab Gulf. It adopted Marxism as its basis ideology.

Since then the rebels have achieved important military successes and now control three-quarters of the province, which is most of the countryside, and all coastal towns except the capital, Salalah.

The rebels liberated slaves — slave dealing was a prosperous and legal trade —and took them into their ranks. Other slaves fled their masters and joined the rebels for freedom. Most were descendants of East African Negroes brought to Arabia generations ago.

British experts who officer the Sultan's army in opposition to the Dhofaris estimate the rebel strength at 800 men with a 1,000-strong People's Militia.

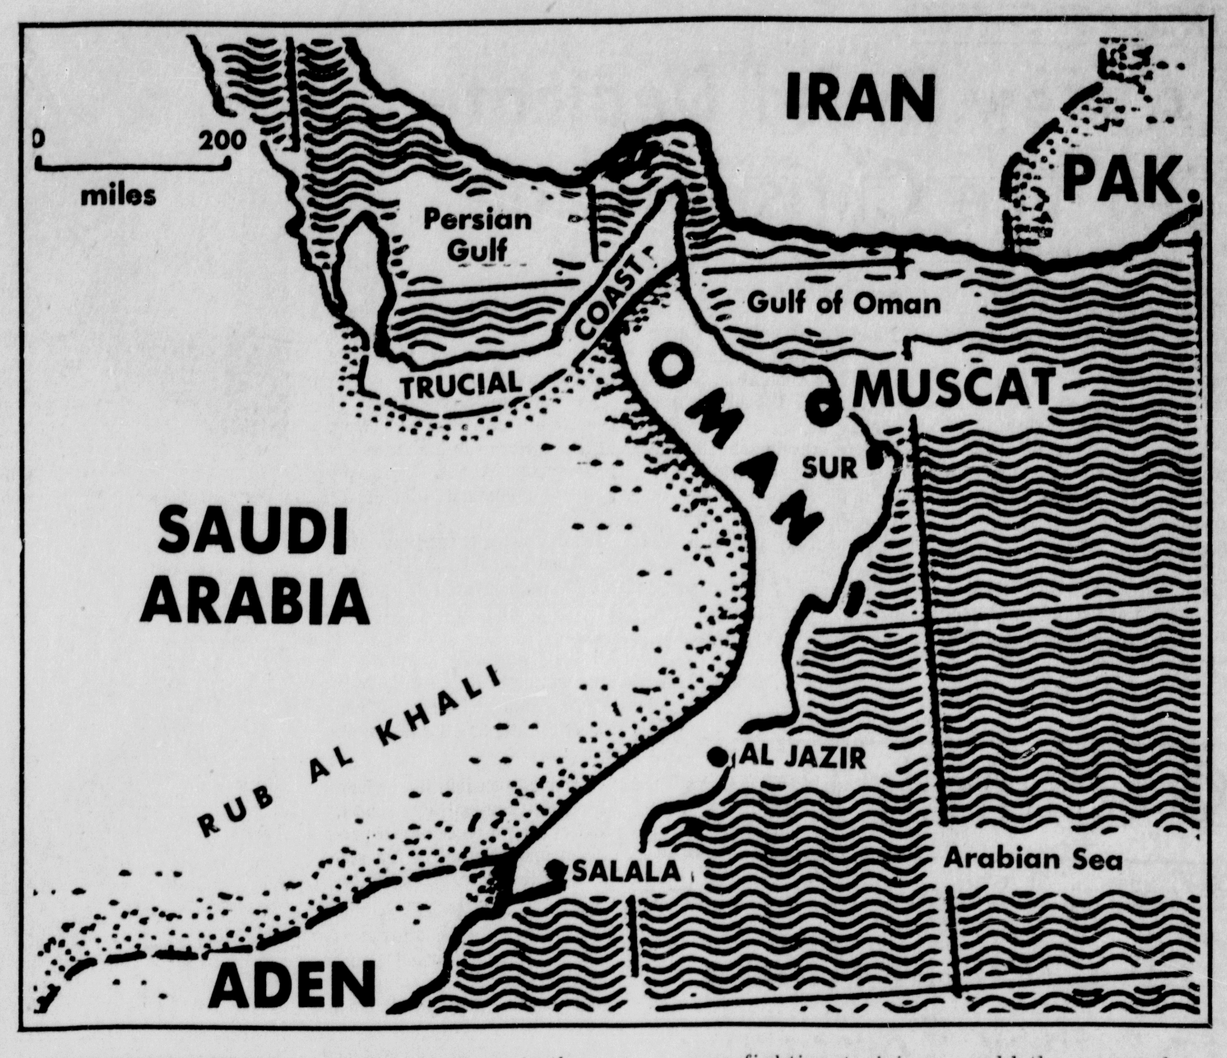
THE BRITISH say there are 10 Chinese experts with the rebels, but that their activity is political rather than military.

The 10,000-man Omani army has 40 British regular officers on loan and 200 retired British officers under contract. The commanding officer is Col. Hugh Oldman, of the British Army.

The government soldiers are mainly Pakistani and Indian

The British are realistic about the difficulties of crushing a popular uprising in a terrain ideal for guerrilla warfare, even with vastly superior men, weapons and equipment. Their hope is that the new regime will progressively drop the old restrictions, introducing education, medical facilities, work projects and opportunities which will remove many of the reasons the Dhofaris went to war.

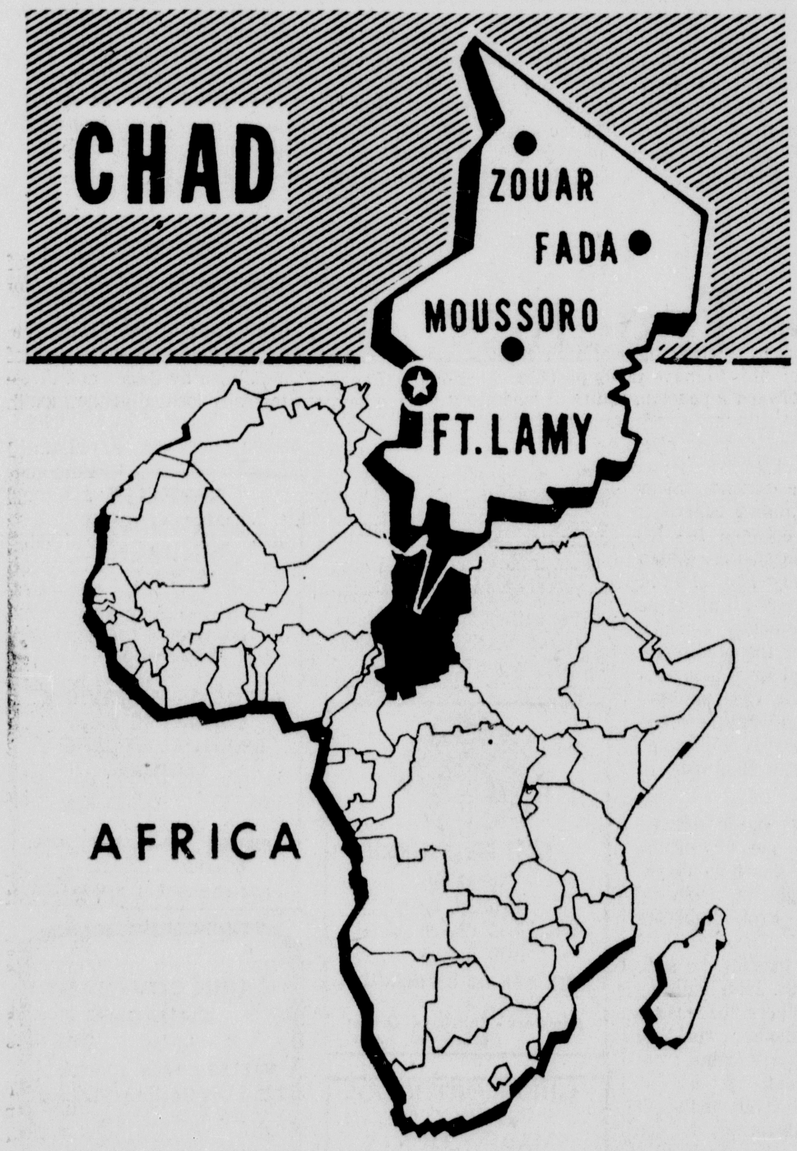
COL. OLDMAN is now recruiting Dhofaris and Omanis as soldiers and hopes that by the time the new sultan's liberalization measures take effect, the army will have contained rebel operations and stopped the flow of weapons.



UPRISING BREWING — This map spots the Sultanate of Muscat and Oman at the foot of the Arabian Peninsula where the Dhofaris — barefoot tribesmen, ex-slaves, and illiterates — are fighting to join a world they scarcely know. A handful of Communist Chinese are instructing them in the political philosophy of Mao Tse-tung and Karl Marx. (UPI Telephoto map)

Behind The News

Saturday, June 26, 1971 — Independent-Journal, 29



WOOING AMERICANS — This UPI newsmap spots Chad, in north central Africa, which is now trying to boost its economic development by opening its doors to more than $6 million of American investments, including oil.

Chad Going After The Oil Kingpins

FORT LAMY, Chad (UPI)—With its five-year rebellion apparently suppressed, Chad is trying to boost economic development by opening its doors to more than $6 million worth of American investments.

President Francois Tombalbaye said in an interview with UPI that the influx of American technicians prospecting for oil and naphtha has the full approval of Chad's former mother country, France.

"I put the question to President Georges Pompidou. He told me: accept all the investments that they offer you. I only ask you one thing, that is to conserve the French culture and keep your friendship for us." the President said.

WITH THE BLESSING of Paris Chad has recently granted to an American oil firm a permit to search for what it hopes will be important oil fields in the region of Ennedi near Chad's frontier with Libya. Government officials said they believed the American firm sought the permit only when it was certain Chad's small war against rebellious tribesmen, fought with aid of the Fremch army and Foreign Legion, had neared a halt.

The government officials said one of the world's 10 biggest oil firms in September 1969 received two oil prospecting permits, one for the region around Fort Archambault in the south and the second for Lake Chad in the center, west to Largeau in the north.

Government officials said the two permits involved a minimum investment of $5.6 million, but that sum already has been exceeded. The permits are good for five years and can be renewed.

The president said he believed foreign engineers will strike oil by the end of 1971, an event that may mark the point of departure in the economic evolution of Chad, one of Africa's richest nations in natural resources.

AMERICAN TECHNICIANS also are searching for deposits of naphtha. Some government officials are of the opinion that naphtha even more than oil will be the future wealth of Chad.

Chad is incredibly rich in natron (sodium carbonate), tungsten, tin, diamonds, uranium and copper, all until now unexploited.

Chad's hopeful economic book and the apparent end of the rebellion in the major part of the country were the two principal points forcefully driven home by President Tombalbaye during the five-day congress at Fort Archambault, capital of the southern part of the country, of the ruling Progressive Chadian Party in early April.

DAWN OF NEW ERA: CITY-COUNTY UNIONS

Such Mergers Are Called The Most Promising Federalism Advance Since Constitution Days

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Richard G. Lguar, 39, is a handsome, articulate Rhodes Scholar imbued with a desire to improve the cumbersome apparatus of local govrnment in the United States.

Four years ago, he was elected mayor of Indianapolis. Two years ago, he won approval of legislation consolidating the city of Indianapolis and surrounding Marion County under a single, unified government.

Such city-county mergers, aimed at eliminating costly overlapping, duplication and confusion of authority, are regarded by many political scientists as the most promising advance in American federalism since the constitution. But for a variety of reasons they also have encountered opposition during the past 15 years, merger proposals have been defeated in local elections about twice as often as they have been approved.

AMONG THE consolidations achieved since World War II were those of Miami, Dade County, Fla.; Nashville-Davidson County, Tenn.; Virginia Beach-Princess Anne County, Va.; South Norfolk-Norfolk County, Va.; Jacksonville-Duval County, Fla.; Indianapolis-Marion County, Carson City-Ormsby County, Nev.; Juneau-Bureau of Juneau, Alaska.

Among the communities that turned down mergers in the same time were Tampa-Hillsborough, Fla.; Chattanooga-Hamilton County, Tenn.; St. Louis-St. Louis County, Mo.; Memphis-Shelby County, Tenn.; Richmond-Henrico County, Va.; Durham City and County, N.C.; Knoxville-Knox County, Tenn.; Albuquerque-Bernalillo County, N.M.

Some mergers have been more complete than others. The so-called "metro government" of Tennessee's Nashville-Davidson County area operates the schools, the parks, and the in Marion County outside Indianapolis—Beech Grove, Lawrence and Speedway. Police and fire protection, though brought together under a new department of public safety, pretty much follow the old boundaries.

Often a large central city merges with the county, as in the case of Nashville and Davidson County, or Jacksonville with Duval County. In the case of Dade County, ,Fla., several cities joined—Miami, Miami Beach, Coral Gables, Hialeah, Homestead.

A CHIEF complaint against consolidation often is that the merger has not gone far enough. There are, as well, racial implications in some mergers. As whites have fled to the suburbs and blacks have made up a larger part of the core city, the blacks have begun to find new political power. A merger, by throwing an entire metropolitan area under one umbrella, may lessen this black power.

In Indianapolis, Negroes constituted 25 per cent of the vote before merger. After merger they make up only 15 per cent. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference unsuccessfully brought suit to block the merger on grounds it would reduce the possibility of black leadership at the mayoral level.

Former Indiana state Sen. Patrick Chavis, who opposed the merger, said it "gives control of the governmental machinery to those who are not concerned with inner city problems."

In Nashville, however, Negro voters favored consolidation. They make up 19 per cent of the population in the county and have six of the 40 council seats.

CITY-COUNTY consolidation is not a brand new idea.

New Orleans and the county of Orleans in Louisiana were consolidated in 1805. Boston and Suffolk County in Massachusetts merged in 1822. The city and county of Philadelphia coalesced in 1854, the city and county of New York in 1874, the city and county of Honolulu in 1907. These mergers all were accomplished by action of state or territorial legislatures.

Later, consolidations were attempted by voter referendum. Many were defeated —Oakland and Alameda County, Calif; St. Louis City and County, Mo.; Portland and Multnomah County, Ore.; Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, Pa., and Macon-Bobb County, Ga.

HERE IS how things are going in some of the mergers:

Miami-Dade County —Survival perhaps has been "Metro's" biggest accomplishment. It was created in 1958 to bring some order out of the chaos and confusion of 27 municipalities that make up Dade County. It has been challenged several times at the polls, and Miami Beach and Hialeah threatened to secede.

Nashville-Davidson County— Metro government was created in 1963 after having been turned down in 1958. Six existing satellite cities were permitted to stay in existence, but no new ones may be incorporated. There is a strong mayor-council form of government, and the mayor, elected for a four-year term, appoints all department heads, prepares the budget and legislative program, and has a budget item veto. There is a consolidated school system and a metropolitan court.

In almost every consolidation, even where there has been political or racial dispute, observers say there are better police, fire, health, hospital, welfare, sanitary, sewer and transportation services. "Caring for roads and streets and providing the other public services," one Baton Rouge official said, "requires the same type of skills and equipment inside and outside the central city limits."

SALT Stalemate: Nuclear Weapons

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon recently announced with considerable fanfare — including an unusual noon television appearance —that the United States and the Soviet Union had agreed to a formula that could produce a strategic arms limitation treaty.

Since his May 20 announcement, most of the public discussion has centered on the relative priority to be given offensive and defensive nuclear missiles in the next round of strategic arms limitation (SALT) talks.

There has been almost no mention of tactical atomic weapons, yet the hard fact is that one of the chief threats to the success of the talks is how to define a tactical nuclear weapon.

The United States has at least 12,000 such weapons scattered around Europe and Asia and aboard U.S. ships.

THE SOVIET Union, with no hope of using similar limited range weapons against the United States has taken the position that there is no difference between tactical and strategic nuclear weapons as long as they can reach her territory.

Americans for the most part have tended to take a rather casual view of the matter, partly because of ignorance of the fact that many strategic atomic weapons carry the equal of 1 million tons of TNT —50 times more than the A-Bombs which wiped out Hiroshima and Nagasaki in World War II.

U.S. military experts also speak disparagingly of such weapons as relatively small — which they are, compared to the 5 million ton strategic warheads packed by Minuteman missiles or B52 bombers.

Another reason for public unconcern may be the description of some "tactical nukes" as land mines and artillery shells intended only for "battlefield" use.

In contrast, one of America's most articulate writers on the subject, Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, believes tactical nuclear weapons are the most dangerous weapons ever invented. He calls them "the percussion cap for a full nuclear exchange."

LAPP, A physicist who worked on the original A-Bomb, believes it is nonsense to accept the military view that a limited war could be fought with tactical nuclear weapons without escalating to an all-out nuclear exchange between the major powers.

Many civilian experts agree. Congress never has specifically authorized deploying these weapons. Congressional committees have not even be n able to get full information on the diplomatic aspects of their presence in some countries.

A special Senate foreign relations subcommittee investigating U.S. commitments overseas last year was refused information on secret agreements involved in the deployment of the weapons in Europe.

In its report, the subcommittee deplored the fact that most Americans do not know the tactical nuclear weapons are "stationed in countries all around the world." It said the executive branch "claim that this subject is of such high classification it could not be discussed before this foreign relations subcommittee under any circumstances."

"THE SUBCOMMITTEE believes this position is obviously absurd, is used to cover up questionable policy and practice, is unconstitutional, and is against the best interests of the United States," the report said.

Chairman John O. Pastore of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee has been quoted as estimating the total U.S. stockpile of tactical nuclear weapons "in the tens of thousands."

As best as can be determined unofficially, there are at least 4,000 such weapons in Asia, mostly at U.S. bases in Okinawa, Nationalist China and the Philippines, and possibly in Thailand and Korea, or aboard U.S. ships in the Pacific.

Most of the Asian weapons are in storage rather than on actual deployment. On the other hand, more than 7,500 tactical atomic weapons are deployed in West Germany, Turkey, Greece, Italy, and Britain, most of them combat ready and ranging from about one-quarter kiloton (nearly 100 times as powerful as the conventional TNT block-busters of World War II) to almost one megaton (the equivalent of 1 million tons of TNT).

Since even the "smallest" tactical nuclear weapon can demolish a sizeable town, the principal criteria for defining a tactical or strategic atomic weapon involves how it is used.

BOTH THE United States and the Soviet Union have strategic arsenals consisting of several hundred multi-megaton land-based missiles, bombs carried by long-range strategic aircraft and missile-firing nuclear submarines.

All of these are designed to inflict intolerable levels of destruction on the enemy with the result that massive nuclear strikes are deterred —theoretically at least —by the certainty of equally massive retaliation.

The purpose of tactical weapons is more limited, so they are not even included in the strategic inventory. They are intended for "battlefield use" against combat targets instead of civilian populations.

Lapp told UPI in an interview that there are two fallacies in this definition. One is that even a small battlefield in heavily populated West Germany would involve thousands of civilians — many of them possibly the wives and children of U.S. troops stationed there.

THE OTHER, Lapp said, is the certainty of escalation.

"Say you're the good guys, and are doing well against an invading Communist force," he said. "Suddenly you are being clobbered by nuclear artillery shells fired from cannons 10 or 12 miles behind enemy lines. Naturally, you will call on your own heavy weapons to cauterize the area of enemy fire. But the enemy will naturally have to call up heavier stuff to stop your return fire and so you'll have to radio for planes to attack him deeper behind his lines and you are in a cycle with no possible ending short of a full nuclear exchange."

The Pentagon believes otherwise. Although its experts admit privately that their planning is complicated by the presence of U.S. dependents in Europe, they insist that the smaller tactical weapons could be used within defined limits.

This Week In The World

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The case of the federal government against The New York Times and Washington Post over publication of secret Pentagon documents reached the Supreme Court late this week.

The Times asked the Supreme Court, which is expected to end its current session Monday, to consider an appeals court ruling sending its case back to a district judge.

The government appealed the Post case. A Washington appeals court said the Post could publish the documents because in its opinion publication would not harm national security.

The Boston Globe, Chicago Sun-Times, Los Angeles Times and the Knight Newspaper Inc. chain joined the Times and Post in publishing stories based on the 47-volume Pentagon report. The Globe also was enjoined from publishing any more of the series until a court hearing next Tuesday.

The government has argued publication of the report could damage national security and foreign relations. The newspapers have argued that publication would not be harmful and the public has a right to know what is in the report.

THE ARCHETYPES

A New Breed Dedicated To The Christian Life

By MARY BURNS

Larry Heard and Bobby Evans are archetypes. They represent a breed of young adults who are unapologetically Christian yet very "this worldly" in their commitment to make heaven on earth a reality.

They are among 850 college students in the United States and 91 in California appointed by the Southern Baptist Convention as student summer missionaires.

California's 91 recently spent a weekend at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Strawberry, in an orientation session, prelude to 10 weeks of work with career missionaries of the 11-million-member Protestant body.

Nineteen-year-old Larry Heard is from Grambling, La. He is a student at Northwestern State University and someday hopes to teach acting. His introduction to the stage came, naturally for him, in the church.

Although he wears a fairly impressive Afro, mild-mannered Heard could hardly be called a militant. He has, however, participated in "peaceful demonstrations," on his campus for causes in which he believes.

Twenty-year-old Bobby Evan's Georgia drawl betrays his birth in the Peach State. He is a sociology major at Georgia College, Milledgeville and will enter a theological seminary next year after his graduation.

An unpredictable series of events brought the pair from their hometowns to the Strawberry seminary and San Francisco's Fillmore Community Center for the summer.

Heard applied to the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention last fall after his campus minister encouraged him.

Evans originally applied to work in Puerto Rico but the overseas assignment folded. His conclusion: "God has a hand in my being here."

Their responsibilities include teaching vacation Bible school, supervising a recreational program and relating to the students of the large, black ghetto.

The two students had not met before they came for orientation. Both admit their previous church experience has not prepared them for working as an equal with a member of another race. They apparently expect their mutual commitment to God to bridge the culture gap.

"It's sometimes hard for me to relate to black people even as much as I want to," Evans says. "That's when the Lord has to do his thing."

They were prepared, however, for the antireligious attitudes they have found in the Bay Area, even though they are from "Bible Belt" states where the Southern Baptist Convention is strongest.

"I haven't been surprised by San Francisco" Heard says. "I expected to see people who have not realized God is, and I've found this to be true."

Evans says his greatest wish is that his contemporaries may embrace Christ as he had; he knows his wish may be long in coming. But he is not by this reality.

"I know I will have problems as I seek to relate Christ today."

"People, especially now, find it hard to accept Christianity. But I see this as a challenge, and I feel that if something isn't a challenge, it's a waste of time."

Evans expressed definite ideas about why such disenchantment with religion exists.

"You have to come in contact with the Word of God." he says. "You can't force anything on people. When I do something for God it has to be motivated and led by his spirit. The confusion comes when I start doing my thing instead of his thing."

"A lot of people try to push their cultures off on people. Cultures are different but the work of God is the same for everyone, and this is what should be shared."

The young college student said he is occasionally embarrassed about his beliefs. "I sometimes find myself apologizing for myself. This is bad. Why should I apologize for what I am. People should accept me just as I must accept them."

The attitudes of these two young men reflect those of all the student summer missionaries, whose assignments reflect youth's mushrooming interest in community involvement.

The 91 California summer missionaries will work in coffeehouses, beach and resort ministries, migrant camps, ghettos, drug rehabilitation centers, government offices, national parks, clinics, — and the list goes on endlessly!

Some were appointed by their state Baptist students organizations and will receive no compensation for the summer. Others, appointed directly by the Atlanta based home mission agency will receive $300 for the 10 weeks.

Very few are preparing for church-related careers. They represent various ethnic backgrounds; many are not Baptist. They came, they say, after much prayer because they needed to be involved. Some came not knowing what their assignments would be.

Perhaps the greatest testimony to the value of the summer missions program is that they come back. Many California appointees are repeaters serving for the second or third time in a program which not only gives career missionaries a rest break but provides these students with an opportunity for self-evaluation and, as Bobby puts it "more insight into what God wants me to do witp my life."

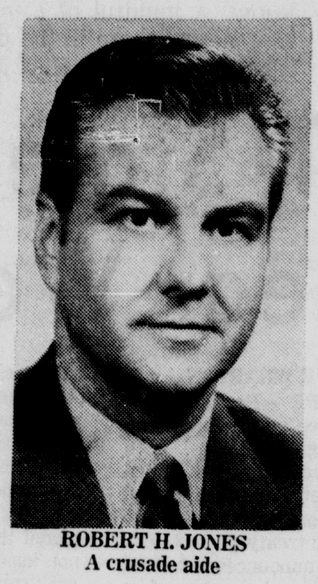
Top Graham Aide To Speak Tomorrow

Robert H. Jones, associate crusade director for next month's Northern California Billy Graham Crusade, will speak at tomorrow's 9:30 a.m. service at Marin Covenant Church, which meets at Miller Creek Junior High School in Marinwood.



ROBERT H. JONES
A crusade aide

Jones has been with the Bill Graham Association since October 1968. He has been in the Bay Area for the past couple of months teaching "Christian Life and Witness Classes," in preparation for the crusade which will be held in the Oakland Coliseum July 23-Aug. 1.

He is a member of the Milwaukie, Ore., Covenant church and is active in projects of the Evangelical Covenant Church of America.

Gary R. Copeland, pastor, is attending the Bethel Series conference in Madison, Wis.

Guest Speaker Tomorrow At Valley Baptist Church

Rev. William Hunter, recently appointed a campus minister by the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the Valley Baptist Church.

He is substituting for Rev. Warren Conrad who is away from the church this weekend.

Hunter spent several years in Madagascar in the literature ministry field. Prior to that he was in the Congo, but was forced to evacuate in 1960.

Sunday services at the church are 8:15 and 11 a.m.

Five-Day Assembly Announced

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans were announced this week for a five-day district assembly at Kezar Stadium July 14-18 by members of the Jehovah's Witnesses in Northern California and Western Nevada.

James Wadding, circuit supervisor, said Kezar Stadium will be transformed into a "giant place of worship" for the 30,000 expected to attend, including a delegation from Marin County.

The assembly will feature speakers from the group's world headquarters in Brooklyn.

It is one of 49 assemblies that are scheduled to be held this summer in the United States and Canada.

An Asian Center Wins Endorsement

TOKYO (LWF) — Continued investigation into the possible establishment of an Asian Center for Advanced Studies (ACAS) has been endorsed by the Commission on Church Cooperation of the Lutheran World Federation.

As proposed by Dr. Won Yong Ji of Geneva, Asia secretary in the LWF Church Cooperation Department, the goal of such a center would be the development of a new high level of theological and academic proficiency among Asian churchmen in an ecumenical context. He noted that such a center has been urged for several years among Asia churches.

New Liturgy Being Used At Services

A new church liturgy, created by Margaret Albanese, Bay Area poet on the "Canticle of Praise" is being used at both the 8 and 10 a.m. services at the Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon.

A special event at the church tomorrow will be a 7:30 p.m. concert of renaissance, baroque and contemporary music by the Christiansen Quartet, directed by Leo Christiansen, who is music director of St. Stephan's Episcopal Church in Tiburon.

Single Service Is Initiated By Church

The United Methodist Church of Novato has initiated a single Sunday service for the summer.

The single service is held at 9 a.m. with special activities for children from nursery through the sixth grade.

'Tent Kamp' Underway In Fairfax

"The Lord's Joyful", teen folk singing group from Christ Lutheran, Long Beach, is a part of a weekend Tent Kamp program at Christ the Victor Lutheran Church in Fairfax.

Two-hundred Lutheran teenagers from 24 Bay Area congretions are camping out on the church grounds.

One feature event of Tent Kamp today was a folk festival, featuring Jim Valley, formerly "Harpo" of Paul Revere and the Raiders.

Tent Kamp speakers include Ken Berven, evangelism staff member of the American Lutheran Church; Rev. Lud Siqueland, regional youth director of the American Lutheran Church, and Rev. Erling Wold, pastor of St. Olaf Lutheran Church, Garden Grove.

The public is invited to the closing worship service in the outdoor chapel at 9 a.m. tomorrow, featuring Jim Valley and a sermon by Wold.

Ecumenical Vacation Church School Set

An ecumenical vacation church school will be held Aug. 9 through Aug. 19 at the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael.

Participating churches will be the host church, First Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church and St. Raphael's Catholic Church.

EARLY-DAY CHRISTIANITY

Scholars Piecing Story Together

By MICHAEL DENNIGAN

PARIS (UPI)—Scholars from three continents are piecing together parts of a flimsy jigsaw puzzle that may help to shed new light on the early struggling years of Christianity — and the heresies that plagued it.

One view is that when the jigsaw of papyrus paper is finally put together, the documents will take over where the Dead Sea scrolls left off in the history of Mediterranean religions.

There is nothing new about the discovery of the papyrus fragments. They form part of a 13-book library that was discovered in 1945, buried in jars in a Roman cemetery at Nag Hammadi on the Nile between Cairo and Luxor.

They were quickly identified as Gnostic writings—a religious movement that existed side by side with early Christianity and was closely related to it.

But only in recent years have scholars been able to get down to work on restoring the documents. Many full pages, written in two dialects of the Coptic language (ancient Egyptian), survive but much more is in fragments, either torn by careless dealers or eaten by worms.

That is what the scholars are fitting together, and translating. The project director, Prof. James M. Robinson, of the Institute for Antiquity and Christianity of Claremont Graduate School in California, said the first volumes of a facsimile edition should come off the presses next year.

"One of the values of this for historians and the like is not that we get very much more in the way of tidbits on the history of Jesus, but we do catch sight of opinions of new testament writers, and those real movements that (Saint) Paul attacked in his letters because they were infiltrators...that led (Christians) in ways he had not intended," Prof. Robinson said in an interview.

Prof. Robinson is among those who believe that Gnosticism was more of a religion in its own right than a heresy from the Christian church. The "Nag Hammadi library" are writings of "non-Christian Gnosticism," in his view.

"For the first time we are getting documentation on areas of non-Christian Gnosticism," he said. "This is the first hunk of non-Christian Gnostic literature of an early period."

He dated the earliest stories of the Nag Hammadi collection at anywhere between 100 BC and 100 AD. He said St. Paul's writings already had allowed scholars to guess at what the Gnostic movements —which spread all over the Mediterranean world and were a serious rival to early Christianity— were up to "and what the scholars have deduced is now beefed up" by the Nag Hammadi library.

"The running battle carried on by Paul in the 50's of the First Century shown in Corinthians is brought into focus by this library," Prof. Robinson said.

As for the Gnostics, he says the Gospel of St. John is different from the others "because it came from another world of thought, because it came from a gnostic element."

"The library really makes it possible for historians to see the give and take of early Christian thinking," he said. "We've never had that possibility before."

The international project is being backed by Egypt, which retains custody of the library in Cairo's Coptic Museum.

Grants totalling $150,000 from the U.S. National Endowment of Humanities and the collaboration of UNESCO have also enabled the work to continue.

Pioneer Day

The plaza in Sonoma will be the setting July 24 for the third annual Pioneer Day, sponsored by the Sonoma Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, which includes Southern Sonoma. Kickoff event will be a parade at 11 a.m.

'There Is Too Much Violence All Around Us,' Says Sid Stinson

By WAT TAKESHITA

Marin County Undersheriff Sidney Stinson is a career law officer who doesn't look like one.

He's got a contagious smile and easygoing manner that belie years of tough training and police experience that rank him among the best qualified of Marin's finest.

He looks more like a business man than the dedicated lawman who held the state pistol championship for two years in a row, in 1960 and 1961. He was a member of the county's crack pistol team that captured the state championship three consecutive years.

IN HIS 20 years of service under three different sheriffs, Stinson has been in some tight situations, at both ends of the gun barrel. But the dangerous and often thankless work, that leaves some professional crime fighters ruthless and embittered, has failed to mark Stinson. Despite the tensions of the times and the added burden of Civic Center security, Undersheriff Stinson still retains that infectious grin and the unassuming manner of a man who is not overwhelmed by the responsibility placed upon him.

There's nothing stiff or formal about him when he approaches a suspect, talks to his men or describes to friends how that big fish got away.

When he describes an investigation or submits his activity report, the description is natural and spontaneous.

INSTEAD OF saying, "We approached the suspect, attempted an arrest, met with resistance, and used minimum force necessary to subdue subject and apprehend same," Stinson would probably tell you:

"Yeah, the guy put up a good fight, but we nabbed him without any trouble."

In actions and words, the warmth of the man shows through. His eyes are sharp, but even they seem to have a twinkle.

BORN IN ARIZONA on June 4, 1929, he ran away from home at age 14, lied about his age and joined the Merchant Marine. By the time it was discovered he was two years under the minimum age, Stinson had won a free trip to India, Australia and South America.

They dumped him off unceremoniously in Savannah, Ga., with just enough train fare to get him back to Marin where his mother lived.

His father, a commercial fisherman, operated salmon boats out of Ketchikan, Alaska. Stinson alternated between Marin and Alaska, attending Tamalpais High School and schools in Alaska and College of Marin. He spent summers at sea, working on his father's salmon boats.

IN 1950, HE applied for a job as a Marin County deputy sheriff and began his law enforcement career under Sheriff Walter Sellmer in April of 1951.

He rose to sergeant under the late Sheriff David Menary and then made lieutenant, captain and undersheriff under the present sheriff, Louis P. Mountanos. During the 20 years, he has handled every job in the sheriff's office except juvenile work.

Stinson was a director in the Marin Mental Health Association and initiated a program of training officers in handling mental cases about nine years ago.

THE TWINKLING EYES and warm smile of Marin County Undersheriff Sidney Stinson, facing camera contradict the public's stereotype concept of the veteran career law officer. Stinson, seen here in conversation with one of the department's deputies, Douglas Ohlson, has seen 20 years of service under three different sheriffs, and has gained a reputation as a police officer and administrator with compassionate and progressive ideas.

IT HAD BEEN one of his biggest concerns that so many agencies such as the mental health offices were open only from 8 to 5, whereas police were in contact with people who needed such professional services round the clock and on weekends.

Marin's Mental Health Center at Marin General Hospital is now open 24 hours a day. "It's a big improvement," said Stinson.

The propsed Suicide Prevention Center and the Big Brothers organization have his strong backing. "I think they're tremendous. These are the kinds of things people should be involved in, and they should be available round the clock."

THE UNDERSHERIFF has known his share of narrow escapes but he refuses to go into the specifics. "There's too much violence all around us, and our aim should be to avoid it if at all possible," he observed.

Stinson was away on vacation at the time of the Aug. 7 shootout at the Marin Hall of Justice. However, he was one of the officers who escorted Angela Davis from New York to Marin.

One change he would like to see is a centralized police force

"What Risk Is There In Cleaning My Print Dress?"

Your drycleaner accepted your dress for cleaning - but at your risk. The reason for this is that the design printed on your dress is of pulverized metal. This has been mixed with a lacquer binder and then applied to the fabric. The most common metallic prints are gold, silver or copper. The risk is that when wet with drycleaning solvent the lacquer binder may soften and release the pulverized metal which will then rub off in the mechanical action of cleaning.

You can test this yourself by snipping a small piece from an unexposed seam. Apply a drop of an evaporating paint remover or amyl acetate and rub the metal print design between your fingers. You will see quickly why your drycleaner will accept your dress only at your risk.

for the entire county. "It's costly, having 12 agencies duplicating one another. It's got to change some day, maybe after my time. I believe centralization can be much more effective and less expensive."

AS UNDERSHERIFF, he helps Sheriff Mountanos supervise the department's 168 employees. He also helped organize the drug abuse bureau and the Civic Center security system.

Undersheriff Stinson lives in Novato with his wife Jorene and two daughters, Judy and Leanna. The eldest daughter, Mrs. Robert Conklin, lives in Petaluma.

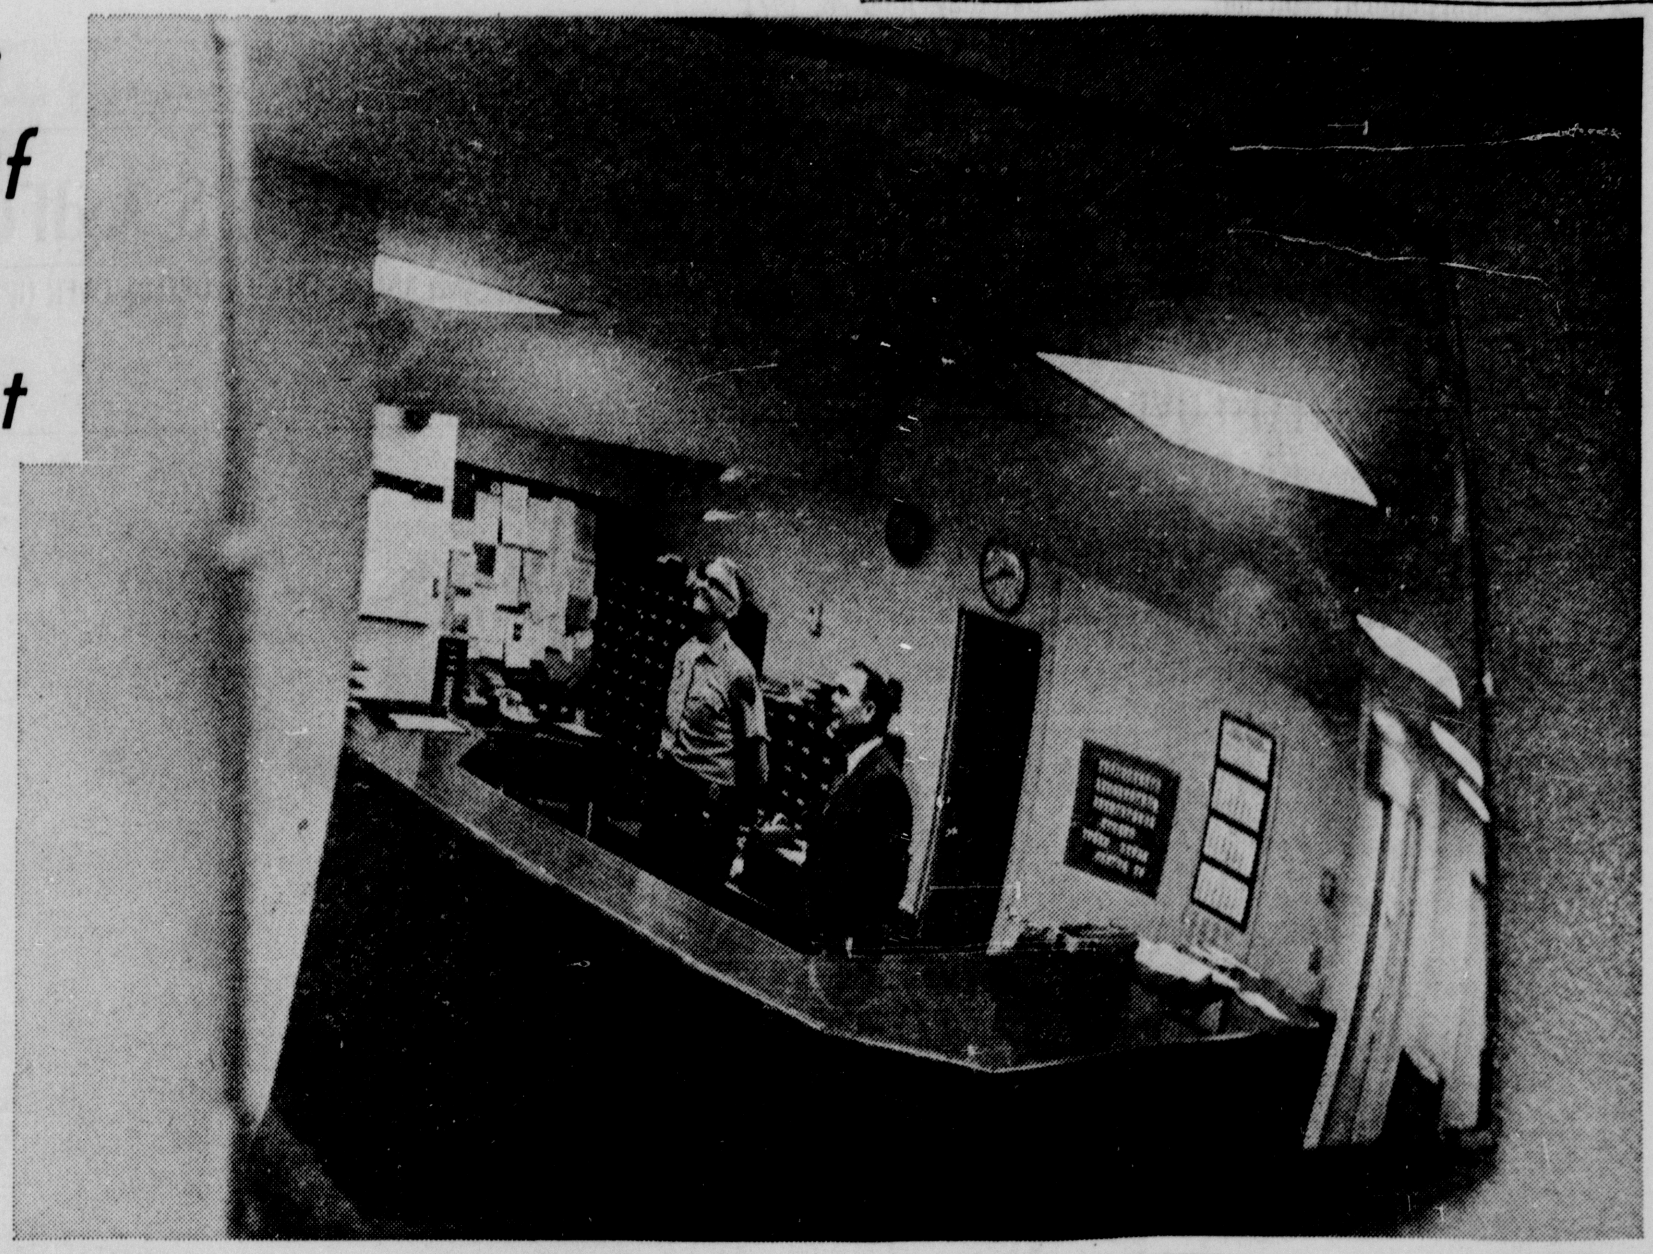
His brother Bart is an inspector with the San Rafael Police Department, and another brother, James, is semi-retired, living in Hawaii. His sister, Georgia Pearson, lives in Dallas, Tex.

Stinson's chief hobby is fishing for trout in the High Sierra, a sport which his family enjoys with him.

IN MANY OF his public appearances, Stinson stresses the need for uniform application of the law to both the big and the small.

Some of his acquaintances suspect that he is more softhearted than he pretends to be when it comes to dealing with minor crimes, especially those committed by juveniles or first offenders. Stinson denies that, insisting: "No, you can't discriminate in enforcing laws. You've got to enforce them uniformly."

But those who know him as a fishing companion, a family friend, or a defender of peace and order cite him as one career lawman who has been able to wear the uniform and the badge with distinction for two decades without losing the warmth and compassion of a human being sensitive to the feelings and needs of his fellow man.



AT THE booking desk of the Marin County sheriff's department in the new Hall of Justice at the Marin Civic Center, Undersheriff Sid Stinson, right, joins Lt. N.D. Snyder in watching the overhead television monitors that enable them to keep a check upon the jail cell area. Stinson is the No. 2 man in a department with a total personnel of 168.

Fight Fans Will Be Treated to Forty Rounds of Milling at Coliseum Between Lightweights and Bantams

SID HESTER, the matchmaker of the Mission Athletic club, will dish up the regular monthly boxing exhibition this evening at the Coliseum, and in order to attract the fight fans to his show has arranged as classy a card of fighters at popular prices as could be desired by the most exacting fan.

There will be but two fights, but the two carded are of the sort liked by the sportsmen of the city. Each event is scheduled to go twenty rounds, unless a knockout intervenes, and the possibility of seeing forty rounds of milling is enough to attract all of the fight-hungry populace.

NO PRELIMINARIES.

There will be no preliminaries which is a good thing, as the two fights carded are liable to go the limit, and forty rounds of milling is enough for any man to sit and watch.

Hyland and Frayne should furnish a good scrap and naturally the keeper of the lightweight section in the lightweight affairs in this city, the 2 known locally as being practically the producers of the record drag of this city. Both men have recently returned from the east, where they made good and a little more than local interest attaches to the affair as the Coliseum this evening.

The fight between Monte Attell and Percy Cove from all reports, should be a slam-bang affair, and the fight fans are not sure of this as they are running an unknown quantity and make his first bow before the local fight followers.

Above, the pre-fight ballyhoo for one of his 1909 boxing cards at the Mission Athletic Club in San Francisco — only two bouts, but each scheduled for 20 rounds, and featuring four of the area's most popular pugilists. When Boxing Was In Its Heyday Era

A Scrapbook Brings Back Memories Of Time Of Jeffries And Johnson

By DON KEOWN

Few of the residents of San Anselmo's Butterfield Road in the 1940s and '502 were aware that one of their neighbors, Sid Hester, had lived a colorful career in the sports world early in the century.

Even some of his close acquaintances knew Hester only as a 35-year-man with the City and County of San Francisco who rose to deputy director in its public works department prior to his retirement in the early 1950s.

But one friend who was aware of Hester's earlier background as a nationally and internationally known boxing promoter and matchmakes is V.R. Foutz of Larkspur.

HE HAD KNOWN Hester even before the latter moved to Marin County in 1941.

"I met him at the home of my father-in-law, Carl Stern, in Larkspur," Foutz recalls. "Carl was an avid sports fan. And I can remember the two men talking boxing by the hours."

Later when the Hesters moved to San Anselmo, the Foutzes were their frequent guests for social occasions.

Those evenings or afternoons found Sid Hester often reminiscing about his days as a boxing promoter and a prominent figure on the sports pages of the nation's newspapers.

"AND EVEN though I was not personally a really rabid boxing fan, I found his stories fascinating," says Foutz. "He was a wonderful conversationalist."

Thus when Hester's daughter, Helen Hester, employed at San Quentin Prison as secretary to Warden Louis S. Nelson, loaned Foutz an old scrapbook in which her father had compiled some of the newspaper clippings and other mementoes of his boxing days, it was an opportunity for the Larkspur man to relive some of the pleasures of an old friendship.

Some of the photographs are faded beyond recognition. And some of the clippings are torn beyond repair.

BUT THERE IS ample material to testify to the prestige that was Hester's in an era when boxing was enjoying one of its heydays.

Most of the contents deal with the year 1909 when Hester was matchmaker and manager for the old Mission Athletic Club in San Francisco.

There are newspaper clippings, fight card programs, tickets, snapshots, telegrams, letters, personal notes.

Much of the material deals with Hester's efforts to land for the Mission Athletic Club the two great matches of the time — Jack Johnson vs. Jim Jeffries, and Stanley Ketchel v. Sam Langford.

FOR THESE fights, Hester was vying with the biggest promoters of the time.

Newspaper headlines told of Hester's offer of $75,000 for a Jeffries-Johnson bout.

One story quoted Jeffries: "The Mission Athletic Club is one of the most substantial in the country and anything they say they will do is all right."

The old ex-champion considering a comeback against the formidable Johnson was also quoted as being confident that he could defeat the great black heavyweight. "It's the wind that counts, boys," Jeffries told reporters.

The bout between the two champions, Hester stipulated, "could be anywhere from 20 to 100 rounds, as the principals may decide."

ANOTHER newspaper termed Hester's offer of $10,000 to Ketchel to fight Langford, "win, lose or draw," a "bombshell" in the boxing world.

But the scrapbook is filled with the names of other boxers familiar to all fans of ring history and with whom Hester dealt freely and without the intense competition he encountered in his bidding for the Jeffries-Johnson and Ketchel-Langford matches.

Some of those names are those of Abe Attell, Patsy Kline, Otto Fritch, Packy McFarland, Fighting Dick Hyland, Monte Attell, Johnny Murphy, Young Corbett, Johnny Frayne, Frankie Neill, Freddie Welsh, Kyle Whitney, Ad Wolgast, Battling Nelson and Phil McGovern.

HESTER'S daughter, Helen, says that her father's years in boxing were behind him and he had settled down to the life of a public official in San Francisco by the time she arrived on the scene, "so I really know very little about that side of his life."

She remembers that her father and his friends used to talk about boxing, "but being a girl, I wasn't particularly interested and very little of it registered with me."

But she does recall being hor-

ENJOYING A PERUSAL of the scrapbook kept by matchmaker Sid Hester of his days as a fight promoter is V. R. Foutz of Larkspur. The book with its yellowed clippings and other mementoes brought back memories to Foutz of the many times he used to listen while his friend Hester told stories of the great boxers he had known and matched. The picture is of Freddie Welsh. Hester, a Marin resident since 1941, died in 1958.

A TICKET TO one of the great fights in Pacific Coast sports history, Battling Nelson vs. Ad Wolgast, fought in Richmond on Feb. 22, 1910, for the lightweight championship of the world, is among the mementoes in the Sid Hester scrapbook. Note the bout was scheduled for 45 rounds, and took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

rified by some of the stories of the old-time fights in which men battled and bloodied each other for hours "to a finish."

And she remembers, too, that her father had a special admiration for the controversial Jack Johnson both as a fighter and as a man.

FOUTZ AGREES that Sid Hester was a Jack Johnson admirer.

Battling Nelson, he adds, was another pugilist for whom Hester had great respect.

Talking in the 1940s and 1950s, like many another old-timer Sid Hester used to bemoan the decline in the quality of the sport and its athletes.

"He used to say that the fighters with whom he dealt could have licked the best of the current crop with one hand tied behind their back," Foutz says. "He felt it was a matter of training.

"HE THOUGHT that the newer fighters just didn't take the sport to heart and just didn't train sufficiently to be really good at it."

Still, says Foutz, Hester remained in close touch with boxing. He continued to attend matches in San Francisco. And younger promoters consulted him frequently for advice, and Hester always responded gener-

A SAN FRANCISCO sporting publication, The Referee, featured a picture of the Mission Athletic Club manager and matchmaker, Sid Hester, on the cover of its August, 1909, issue. Hester was one of the most popular and most colorful sports personalities in San Francisco in the early 1900s and reaped the benefits in the form of invaluable publicity for his promotions from friendly sports-writers and editors.

Memories In A Scrapbook

ously, sharing his years of experience.

Foutz remembers Sid Hester as a rather tall and slender man, always trim and in shape.

"HE WAS," Foutz says, "what I would call a positive person — quite impressive. Until his health declined, he was very active. And he was quite talkative, and one of his favorite subjects, of course, was boxing."

It was plain, says Foutz, that Hester had enjoyed his career in boxing, and that he took pride in it.

He remembers Hester as being interested in all sports generally, with a special fondness for baseball as well as boxing.

Helen Hester says her father retired from his San Francisco job in the early 1950s, and in the closing years of his life moved from San Anselmo to Corte Madera. He died in 1958. Her mother is still living.

DESPITE HER personal aversion to boxing, she treasures the scrapbook for its record of the fine repute in which her father was held by a sport that has not always been marked by such good feelings.

"The clever little matchmaker at the Mission Club" is the way the boxing writers referred to Sid Hester. And always as a man who could be trusted to keep his word, and to do his best on behalf of fighters and fans.

Foutz, now retired after service in the collections department of Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s San Francisco business office, says this same integrity marked Sid Hester throughout his life. And thus made their friendship a relationship to be especially cherished and remembered. The yellowed pages of a torn old scrapbook have now brought a new freshness to those memories.

A PHOTOGRAPH preserved in the scrapbook of Sid Hester shows Hester, at center, with two other boxing personalities of the time, M. Cooney, on the left, and Heine Rafael on the right. A notation on the back of the picture says that it was taken on Aug. 17, 1909, at Joe Willett's training camp. Hester, at the time, was the matchmaker for the Mission Athletic Club in San Francisco, one of the country's busiest promoters of fight cards.

ON SATURDAY and Sunday, July 3 and 4, the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross becomes a little bit of Paris transported to Marin as its supporting organizations join to stage a "Weekend in Paris" festival complete to a Left Bank of the Seine with sidewalk artists in costume from the Marin Society of Artists. Above, Paul Romer has Phyllis Thelen as a can-can girl as his model. At left, Blanche Ayers works on a poster publicizing the festival. And below, Romer and Mrs. Madison Devlin, right, president of the society, enjoying sidewalk cafe refreshments served by Phyllis Lynch.

Dixie Devlin And Her Year Of Dedication

She Is Devoting All Her Energy To Artists' Society

DIXIE DEVLIN, left, president of the Marin Society of Artists, has gone all-out in organizing her group's participation in next week's "Weekend in Paris" festival at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, complete to a costume of her own recalling the era of Henri de Toulouse-Lautric. The sidewalk artisan in a different kind of Gallic costume is weaver Zamma Zethraus.

"This," says Mrs. Madison Devlin of Strawberry Point, "is my year of dedication."

She is referring to her 12-months tenure as president of the Marin Society of Artists that runs into October.

Previously, she says, she had to reject suggestions that she accept that office because she found herself traveling out of the county so frequently with her husband, a professional photographer.

"Still," she says, "I felt an obligation to the society. I think every Marin artist and artisan — in fact every Marin resident — is indebted to the society for what it has done through the years in promoting the arts and elevating culture generally in our county."

SO WHEN Madison Devlin agreed to forego traveling for a year, his wife accepted the presidency and plunged herself wholeheartedly into its activities.

In her efforts on behalf of the society, Mrs. Devlin adds, she has had the enthusiastic cooperation of her husband, also a member. "We work very closely together on everything, and he has made a tremendous contribution."

The team of Devlin and Devlin has undertaken a number of special projects on behalf of the Marin Society of Artists, and one of the major ones will be coming up next weekend in the society's participation in the "Weekend in Paris" festival at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

"IT IS ALMOST impossible to over-state the importance the Marin Art and Garden Center has held for Marin artists and art-lovers," says Mrs. Devlin, who is known socially as Dixie Devlin but who signs her canvases as Leola Devlin.

"The very availability of the grounds with its art gallery and its annual art and garden fair has played a major part in making Marin the center of art and craft activity that it is."

And with the official Marin County fair leaving the Ross grounds this year for a new site at the Civic Center at Santa Venetia, Dixie Devlin sees 1971 as critical for those who hope the art and garden center will continue to flourish as Marin's uniquely beautiful cultural mecca.

THAT IS WHY, Mrs. Devlin points out, the success of the "Weekend in Paris" festivities next Saturday and Sunday is so essential to the art and garden center's future.

And that is why she is serving, along with Mrs. Tom Ayers of San Rafael, as one of the society's co-chairmen for its art in action activities.

The festival has been organized by 14 member and sponsoring groups at the center to help fill both the financial and cultural void left by the fair's departure.

AND NO GROUP has thrown itself into the preparations for what promises to be a most colorful event and for what could well become yet another Marin tradition than has Mrs. Devlin's Marin Society of Artists.

More than 50 of the society's 600 members, properly costumed, will be performing art-in-action demonstrations in Left Bank settings during the two days.

"What would Paris be without its street artists?" asks Mrs. Devlin.

In addition, the Frances Young Gallery will be transformed temporarily into a miniature Louvre for a special show.

AND THE SOCIETY is sponsoring the appearances of puppeteer Bob Hartman who was a big success with children in his special performances earlier this year at the Young Gallery in conjunction with the Marin artists' annual rental show.

During the two days the 10-acre center will also be the scene of music, dancing, films, fashion parades, a flea market, floral displays and sidewalk cafes featuring such appropriate delicacies as crepes and croissants plus wines.

This rallying behind the art and garden center may have added importance in view of efforts to obtain support for Bay Area cultural groups from President Richard M. Nixon's full-funding of the cultural arts program.

"TO QUALIFY," says Mrs. Devlin, "we must all present ourselves to the House Appropriations Committee in a most favorable light and prove the worth of our programs. A successful Weekend in Paris fete would speak well for community interest in and support of the art and garden center."

Next weekend's programs represent but one of the highspots in Mrs. Devlin's 12 months of dedicated effort on behalf of the art society.

A new room was finished on the art and garden center grounds for the society's potters.

And Madison Devlin, besides helping to run the printing press in the issuance of the society's bulletin, found time to do the extensive photography required for a special 10-foot display screen that combined his pictures of fine handcrafted jewelry with actual jewelry created by members of the society. Shown at the Young Gallery, the screen caused a sensation.

SUCH PROJECTS, Mrs. Devlin hopes and believes, have provided the society's craft members with a needed boost in their morale and brought them back into the organization's mainstream.

For Mrs. Devlin feels that her greatest single accomplishment as president of the Marin Society of Artists has been the re-establishment of unity in an organization that was beginning to feel some of the strains and stresses of divergent views and interests.

She rejects the old "chestnut" that artists are temperamental, and thus difficult to work with.

"BUT THEY DO have a higher degree of sensitivity than the layman," she adds. "And you should keep that in mind when working with them."

The society dates back to 1927 when it was founded in an old garage on San Rafael's Fourth Street as the Marin Art Association. It was faltering when in 1935 its name was changed to Marin Art Association. And suddenly it seemed to acquire a new momentum.

Other milestones have included the society's participation in 1944 in the first Ross festival that was the forerunner of what became the traditional Marin Art and Garden Fair, and the construction the following year of the Frances Young Gallery on the Marin Art and Garden Center grounds that is still, today, the focus for society shows and activities.

THE SOCIETY operates under a limited membership policy.

"Away back in 1927 the original standards were set as high as possible because it was felt that the best interests of Marin would be served by a society that stressed quality as well as quantity in its art and artists."

To qualify, members must have passed a juried show. Or they can join as associate members and pass the juried show hurdle while in that status.

The membership rolls are reviewed annually, and to continue on the roster the artists must have contributed a specified number of their hours to the society — working at one of its shows or staffing the gallery, doing bookkeeping, hanging paintings, contributing food for receptions, etc.

PARTICIPATION has always been a keynote of Marin Society of Marin membership and is reflected in these photographs taken in 1945, showing members pouring and laying the concrete slab for what became their Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center.

THE ANNUAL dues are $15.

The society's links with the Marin Art and Garden Center are old and close. And at present its support is especially important, Mrs. Devlin belives.

"This is the time for artists to rally around," she says. "The whole future of the center may be at stake."

The Devlins have been Marin residents for 10 years and now make their home on Strawberry Point. "We are nature buffs and love it there," she says. They also own an historic 111-year-old house at Nevada City.

BERKELEY-BORN Mrs. Devlin is a graduate of the University of California and holds a general secondary teaching credential as well as a Master's Degree in Fine Arts. She has studied privately with Millard Sheets, George Post and Richard Yips, and has done an apprenticeship in mural paintings with Maynard Dixon and Ray Boynton.

She has had 15 one-man shows including exhibits at the California Palace of the Legion of Honor, the Santa Barbara Museum of Art and Mexico's Gallery of Fine Arts, plus participation in numerous group shows.

She has taught for the University of California extension division, San Francisco City College and College of Marin.

WITH THE Marin Society of Artists, Mrs. Devlin has held a number of earlier offices — "everything from kitchen duty to chairman of the artists advisory council, recording secretary and vice president."

She says that despite the intensity of her efforts on behalf of the Marin Society of Artists during her term as president, her own painting has not really suffered.

"Once can always find time for doing the things one really wants to do," she explains. "And I have been well repaid for what little time I have lost from my own work."

TO ALL HER endeavors, her friends say, Dixie Devlin brings great energy and exuberance — the qualities that are necessary for such tasks as seeing to it that the 100-pound sacks of clay needed by the potters are delivered and distributed in time for next weekend's art-in-action programs.

For two and a half decades, the Marin Society of Artists was a part of the art and garden fair that fitted so perfectly into the wooded surroundings at Ross.

Now, Dixie Devlin and her membership believes, they are helping to start another tradition that could very well have an even longer run.

"OR PERHAPS," the society president says, "it would be more correct to say that we are resuming an old and interrupted tradition. For it seems to me that next Saturday and Sunday's Weekend in Paris celebration is really closer in spirit to the old festivals of the 1940s than were the more recent art and garden fairs."

And after her tenure as Marin Society of Artists president ends in October, what does Dixie Devlin plan?

"Madison is feeling the travel bug again," she answers. "So I suppose we will be hitting the road once more."

With cameras and film, brushes and paints in town.

And the warm glow that will come from knowing that her term as president of the Marin society was a job well done.

THESE ARTISTS were not in costume, but wearing the fashionable dress of the time when this photograph was taken in 1948. Mrs. Donald Works was the president of the Marin Society of Artists and as such accepted the keys to the completed Frances Young Gallery. With her is shown Mrs. Dickens Cotton.

TASKS THAT MEMBERS of the Marin Society of Artists can perform to meet the organization's service requirements range from the preparation of food for receptions to the staffing of its Frances Young Gallery at the Marin Art and Garden Center. Here, Robert Pinne helped meet his quota by hanging paintings for the 1964 fall rental show.

You Can Park Your Children In Norway

AMERICAN CHILDREN can join in the healthy, open-air fun of Norway's famous camps while their parents are touring Scandinavia and other European points. The scene here is Tomm Murstad's yachting camp on Oslo Fjord. Still other camps are located high in the mountain ranges.

Norway has become such a favorite vacation land for Americans with children, that a popular saying now goes like this:

"Take your children with you and park them in Norway, whilst you do the rest of Scandinavia in peace!"

Healthy open-air life is the hallmark of children's camps in Norway. They are located on the fjords and in the mountain ranges.

MOST OF THE children in these camps are healthy Norwegian kids, and your kids will enjoy meeting them.

Teen-agers will love Norway. There is so much to see; so many things to do. And it costs less than anywhere else in Europe.

There is a new trend in Norway of great interest to parents and teachers. The idea is to transfer an entire school class — with pupils and teachers — to a special camp school, situated in the mountain ranges of Norway, where tuition is combined with field studies of fauna, flora and geology, etc.

MANY OF THESE school camps also accept individual children and teen-agers.

Norway also offers a great choice of educational vacations, such as salmon and trout fishing courses, horse riding and pony trekking vacations, work camps, youth hostel tours, yachting holidays, conducted walking tours and university courses.

Perfect Place To Relax — A Finnish Holiday Village

Too many Americans on a two or three-week vacation abroad feel they must cover as much territory as possible to make their trip worthwhile.

Such whirlwind travel is exhausting. Confusing, too. For, events and places must kaleidoscope in the mind, when going by at such a fast pace.

IF YOU ARE determined to "country-hop" this summer and are counting on getting to Scandinavia, be sure to at least drop in on the often overlooked fourth sister country, just a boundary line away. After tearing around Europe, Finland will loom as an oasis.

A stopover there will provide a delightful wind-up for your vacation. Instead of dragging home weary, you'll get your second wind in this friendly country.

Throughout Finland, there are at least 90 holiday villages where you can plunk down for a day or two, or a week or more, to revive. In any one of them, you can rent a cottage, ranging from a rustic cabin to a luxury villa, all near or on the water. Most of them have been built within the last five years. All are inexpensive.

Example: a two bedroom cottage, including living room and kitchen, is only $4 a day per person or $25 a week, with full board.

YOU CAN BE alone or socialize with the Finns, who are a warm people and who speak English. They also respect your privacy.

There are usually from 10 to 20 bungalows in a village, tucked among giant pine and birch trees, profuse in this country of 60,000 lakes and 30,000 forrested islands.

You won't have to go too far from Helsinki to find a haven.

Cottages are completely furnished in a simple Finnish style, and you can either whip up your own meals or select a village in which a fully licensed restaurant does the cooking. The main thing is you can relax.

To help put you in top shape, you'll have the luxury of your own sauna. Most cottages include one. A few of these traditional Finnish baths and you'll feel rejuvenated.

If this produces too much energy you can work if off by sailing, fishing for perch and pike, playing tennis, hiking and dancing. And you'll sleep like a baby.

MAYBE A cottage doesn't appeal to you. Then how about an unforgettable stay in a farmhouse?

You can do it for about $7 a day, with meals.

The houses are spotless, the meals home cooked and good, the company delightful. Some of the farmhouses are gems, holding treasures in antiques.

Wherever you choose to relax, you'll become intoxicated with the fresh air in Finland. No pollution there. During the summer, the lake breezes waft only the scent of lilacs and lilies of the valley.

After those few days of taking it easy in the country, you'll be fit and ready to head for home. Before you take off, though, you should try Helsinki's excellent restaurants and hotels, and get in at least one shopping tour.

TO SAVE TIME and running around, go to Design Center, where many of the Finnish products are assembled. They're priced and the retail sources listed, so you can go directly to the shop carrying the merchandise you want.

There is an endless variety of items. Among the best buys are furs, (especially mink), jewelry, boots, crystal, linen and umbrellas. The Finish rya rugs are handsome for floor or wall coverings.

For more information on holiday villages and farmhouses, contact Finnish National Tourist Office, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10017.

Humor In A Prisoner-Of-War Camp?

THE ADVENTURES OF PRIVATE FAUST by Hans Hellmut Kirst; Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is sort of a subdued "Hogan's Heroes" from the talented German author of the Gunner Asch tetralogy and "Night of the Generals," substituting subtler wit for the outrageous slapstick of the farcical television series.

Still, Kirst does not succeed completely in overcoming this reader's reservations toward humor in conjunction with the grim subject of prisoner-of-war encampments.

And a funny Nazi, be he a guard or prisoner, remains a contradiction of adjective and noun.

Kirst skirts this with at least some success by making his key German figure an anti-Nazi.

The scene is a British-run POW camp in the North African desert. The commander, a fastidious homosexual, has introduced progressive and permissive regulations and practices, complete to a bagpipe band of Germans under a Scottish sergeant, to soccer games pitting Germans against English, and to painfully correct if informal relations between the interned and the interners.

It is a relatively pleasant place to spend a war for both sides. And Colonel Nelson, the commandant, is as jealous of threats to the tranquility of his model camp as might be the principal of any modern school functioning under progressive educational dogma.

There is one fly in the ointment. The anti-Nazi prisoner Faust is determined to escape and return to Germany to have his vengeance upon the betrayer of his parents. His threat to the camp's serenity is resented even more by the German prisoners, anxious not to lose their privileges, than by the British. Indeed, at least two of the "captors" find themselves able to make special use of Faust's talents, the bandmaster Jock McKellar to whom Faust is indispensable as his pipe-major, and a wheeler-dealer, black marketing sergeant named Sharpe.

Kirst does not let his story deteriorate into farce, but keeps his humor dry and understated. And the translation from the German by J. Maxwell Brownjohn has given us a text with a decidedly British sound and flavor.

The novel of Private Faust's struggle with two establishments — one German, one British and both all too human — makes amusing reading. And for those of us who are troubled in these times by the idea that there can be anything funny about men caught up in war and entrapped behind barbed wire fence, there is the consolation that Kirst not only gives us humor, but also a considerable measure of insight that can be applied toward understanding the human character.

A NOT-SO-HAPPY LION created from clay slabs and strips by Robert Fournier is one of the finished pieces pictured in that master English ceramist's book, "Ceramic Creations" (Sterling, $6.95). It is a guide for studio potters, touching on the fundamentals, but focussing more especially upon some on the finer points that can lift pottery from the humdrum to the truly artistic. Thus it is mainly a book for the potter who already has some knowledge of the craft, and who wishes to broaden his creative horizons. The photographs, generous in number and quite helpful, are the work of J.M. Anderson. And it is the publisher's claim that the book fills a void, offering expert instruction and inspiration at a higher level than other existing manuals.

Soul Defined: 'Graceful Survival Under Pressure'

THE JESUS BAG by Dr. William H. Grier and Dr. Price M. Cobbs; McGraw-Hill, 179 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

Christianity has shaped the lives of the overwhelming majority of American Blacks. The concept of a God demanding an earthly existence of humility and misery for the reward of a pleasurable after-life, which Whites originated and have profited greatly from, has evolved a unique Black proclivity for enduring intense psychosocial strain.

In this heretofore quiescent Black power lies the key to America's future.

The nation faces doom, contend these black psychiatrists, assistant professors of psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. Although at the summit of civilized sophistication, this country suffers from many of the distressed conditions that precipitated Rome's fall, among them unsuccessful leadership, widening economic class disparities and a continuing war.

From the Black phenomenon of "soul" — "graceful survival under pressure" — this country can derive its most crucial lesson. Sorely needed is a widespread development of inner strength and authentic egalitarian reforms.

That the patience of some Blacks wore out, as evidenced by the riots of the 1960s, is understandable. But the eruptions were tremendously deep learning experiences for all "Negroes". The eruptions revealed that America is sick.

Greatly enriching a theme first touched in "Black Rage" of three years ago, this work, then, is powerful diagnosis and prescription. And well-ordered and documented. Included are numerous enlightening case studies and a large bibliography supporting the authors' claim that Blacks have a marked tendency toward affliction with high blood pressure.

Important among the survival methods described is the secular ritual known as "the dozens." Well known by young "Negro" males, it can be a highly emotional experience. (This writer can well attest). In the game, an instigator will boast of prodigious sexual feats performed with the mother of another. If the insulted young man "plays the dozens" (those who don't are usually not subjected) he learns to repress any hurt feelings that may arise and effect a confident, even smiling, facade.

It is through this "drama," explain the authors, that Black males first acquire the ability to withstand taunts which become a way of life.

Particular exposure is made of "white experts" who attain such dubious standing by virtue of only token interaction with the group and research of the Black experience. But into this group, this writer feels, can be included most of the future readers of the book.

Medicine As Practiced Behind Bamboo Curtain

THE CHINESE ART OF HEALING by Stephan Palos; Herder and Herder, 235 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

In this book Stephen Palos, Hungarian-born Buddhist monk now living in a Tibetan exile monastery in Switzerland, has written what Dr. William Gutman describes in the foreword as "one of the first comprehensive books on Chinese medicine, written by someone thoroughly familiar with the subject, to be published in English."

Its appearance is timely, Dr. Gutman adds, because it comes when European doctors are restoring more and more to the use of Chinese techniques, particularly acupuncture, and because it offers possible alternatives to modern drugs that are beginning to show harmful side effects.

Palos begins his book with a history of Chinese healing, explains its theories including the little understood (in the West) yin and yang principle, discusses diagnostic methods, and then finally goes into the various techniques for treatment beginning (and for some readers, no doubt, ending right there) with the use of acupuncture needles.

Described too are moxibustion, respiratory therapy, massage, therapeutic exercises, sun therapy, hydrotherapy, medicaments including herbs and animal materials, etc.

Newer western-influenced research and developments are also discussed.

"The traditional Chinese art of healing, far from being a mere accumulation of random experiences, as it has hitherto been taken to be, is on the contrary a unique system in its own right," Palos claims, and adds that it will continue to play an important public health role in the East.

Palos' book is a serious, nonsensationalized treatment of his subject, suggesting mainly that in a time when so much that has originated in the Orient is being prized and adopted in the West, we would be unwise to fail at least to consider medical practices that have stood the test of many centuries and seemingly have served a great people well. At the same time, Palos admits, competent experts are correct in their contention that claims and data from this area where information is now so scarce and difficlut to confirm must be treated with "critical reserve."

Vulgarity And Voyeurism In Morally Lax Hollywood

TWICE UPON A TIME by Carolyn Jones; Trident, 288 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The moral laxity of Hollywood provides actress Carolyn Jones with her theme for this first novel.

She is writing about an entertainment world she knows, but one hopes — and suspects — that Miss Jones has exaggerated the looseness of its morals. If not, then ancient Sodom and Gomorrah were havens of puritanism in comparison to Hollywood and Broadway today.

Her central figure is Susan Maxwell, movie star and nymphomaniac. Her marriage ended because her film-producer husband could not satisfy her physical desires, Susan sets out to find herself a man who can. Ultimately she succeeds, after numerous sexual adventures.

There are indications that Carolyn Jones, a gifted actress, may have a somewhat lesser talent for writing. But her material for "Twice Upon a Time" is so coarse and gamey that any such ability passes unnoticed. A few readers may be enthralled by an opportunity to peek behind the scenes into Hollywood's bedrooms. But most will be repelled by such voyeurism and vulgarity.

Joe McCarthy — His Career, And His Legacy

THE NIGHTMARE DECADE by Fred J. Cook; Random House, 626 pages, $10.

By DON KEOWN

Was Joseph R. McCarthy a fanatic — a rightwing zealot so blindly obsessed by anti-communist convictions that he lost all sense of balance and perspective?

Or was he, instead, a coldly calculating cynic, an opportunist without principles or ideals, who rode his red-baiting nag roughshod over innocent victims simply because it gave him gratification for his overwhelming ego?

Fred J. Cook, award-winning former New York World-Telegram star reporter, tells us it was the latter in his stunningly detailed and incisive biography, "The Nightmare Decade: The Life and Times of Senator Joe McCarthy."

"Josephy McCarthy pulled together more successfully than any other politician in our history all the elements of an incipient American fascism," Cook writes. "Fortunately for America, he did not have any ideological program to offer . . . He, for the most part, was in the game for the kicks — the thrill of seeing his name in the boldest, blackest headlines."

In the process of feeding that ego McCarthy arose to such prominence that whole government departments trembled and cowered before him. But the absence of any really substantial stake also made him reckless, so that his ruthless, self-centered tactics ultimately alienated many of his supporters, especially when they were turned upon fellow conservatives or upon national heroes of the stature of George C. Marshall.

But McCarthy's "wild man" political conduct is well remembered. What is not so generally recalled and what we are reminded of by Fred Cook is that McCarthy's behavior in the political arena was totally in keeping with his ethics elsewhere.

We are reminded of the phony war hero image McCarthy worked so hard to cultivate. Our attention is directed to the low level financial shenanigans in which he often was involved. We are caused to remember that long before he became the nation's most rabid anti-communist, McCarthy had established another less glamorous reputation as a past master at selling out to the special interests, and at collecting his dues for so doing.

And thus is destroyed one myth nourished in some quarters in recent years — that before McCarthy became obsessed with the red-baiting fever, he was a liberal-minded agrarian who served Wisconsin and the country well.

The facts, as Fred Cook demonstrates, are that while still a country judge Joseph McCarthy had already displayed a contempt for the laws of the land and for the rules of fair play.

And finally we are reminded, too, of how the Wisconsin bully boy caved in at the Army-McCarthy hearings when confronted with a Joseph Welch who saw the senator for what he was and asked: "Have you no sense of decency, sir? At long last, have you left no sense of decency?"

It was a question McCarthy did not dare to answer. A short time later he stood condemned by his timid colleagues in the Senate, and he plummeted from power, dying an early death to which both alcohol and disappointment no doubt contributed.

But after a masterful job of telling the story of the fear-fraught, hate-ridden McCarthy years, Cook goes on to make it plain that the evils of McCarthyism did not die with their originator.

"The damage that Joe McCarthy did is incalculable," writes Cook. "There are no scales on which to weigh his impact on the soul of the nation, but it is safe to say he left America less free than he found it. He made dissent suspect. He made rational debate of major political issues impossible. He imposed a straitjacket on foreign policy."

Cook maintains that McCarthyism has survived through ultra-right movements and figures down to George Wallace and Spiro Agnew today.

He weakens his argument a bit by failing to maintain his differentiation between those championing causes or ideologies no matter how wrongfully conceived, and those out for naked personal glorification and aggrandization.

Still, Cook, one of the best investigative reporters around, makes the point that Joseph McCarthy did leave the America he professed to love so devoutly a bitter legacy of suspicion and division.

And in his rather merciless exposure of a man who was himself without mercy, Cook makes it plain that McCarthy not only outranks Huey Long in his fullest hysteria as the most dangerous demagogue to make use of the halls and prestige of the Congress in this century, but that he also rates with Theodore Bilbo and Pat McCarran as its vilest, meanest products.

Those who will cling to the old McCarthy myth of the white knight on charger doing battle with assorted red dragons will be infuriated by Cook's book. For the sake of their blood pressure, they might do well to substitute a re-reading of "McCarthy and His Enemies" by William F. Buckley Jr. and L. Brent Bozell. That apology for the witch-hunters still reads well, until a Cook insists upon focussing our attention upon the real record of ruined lives and rampant hysteria.

A WIRE SERVICE photograph taken in 1954 at the height of the Army-McCarthy hearings in Washington caught Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in conference with Roy Cohn, his chief henchman. The hearings marked the start of McCarthy's decline in political influence, a slide from power that was completed a short time later when he was formally condemned by his colleagues in the U.S. Senate. McCarthy's physical death followed in 1957.

IT SEEMS like only the other day that we were putting our 1970 income tax forms in the mail, but apparently it is not too early to start thinking about the 1971 returns.

Anyway, Cornerstone Libraries (Simon & Schuster) has published as a $1.25 paperback J. K. Lasser's "How to Avoid Having Your 1971 Tax Return Questioned."

The idea, of course, is to avoid errors and other invitations for an audit. But the book from the Lasser organization, specialists in tax publications, goes on to offer advice on how to present and possibly win your case in the event of a disagreement with Internal Revenue.

It is, of course, principally a book for those who file a more complicated — and thus more subject to argument — return.

Of more general interest is the advice that every American has now been "computerized" as far as income tax liability is concerned. "Therefore there is more likelihood than ever before that you will come up for a tax examination. You must be more complete and accurate (than ever before) with the information you file to avoid inspection and sessions with the revenue agent."

Now, how is that for spoiling your vacation?

"WINDOWS of Thought" (Simon and Schuster, $2.50) by Stillman J. Elwell, is a particularly pleasant little book of verse, at its best somewhat reminiful of Robert Frost in one of his more rural moods. There a Will Rogers quality of the homespun philosopher in Elwell, too — "Not from boyhood in a moment,/Does a man emerge full-grown./ But through years of patient study/ Are the ways of wisdom shown." Corny? Perhaps. But truths are often corny. And that perhaps is the reason why in this sophisticated age we embrace so much that is phony and spurn so much that is true. There is nothing phony about Stillman Elwell, former-poet. And a lot that is true in his verse.

"ANIMALS, Birds and Fishes on Coins" (Sterling, $3.50) by Gunther Schon, is part of the publisher's Topical Coin Library series that suggests a different approach to the collecting of coins, based upon the subjects on their faces rather than their place or date of issue. The book contains some 250 photographs of coins of many national origins, but all bearing the likenesses of members of the animal kingdom. All are coins now readily available, and their current market value, generally modest, is listed.

FOR AUTOMOBILE buffs, Ballantine has added to its softcover "Illustrated History of the Car" series, "Alfa Romeo" by Peter Hull, the British vintage and classic car expert.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE EMBASSY MADONNA by Lydia Kirk; Doubleday, 161 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The Little Old Lady sleuth as a detective story heroine in the pattern of Miss Marple or Miss Seaton is firmly entrenched in mystery fiction. Lydia Kirk, widow of a U.S. admiral and diplomat, has concocted Mademoiselle Jacquin as her entry in this field.

In "The Embassy Madonna," the Mademoiselle, employed in the U.S. Embassy in Brussels, senses some shenanigans in respect to a Belgian art masterpiece returned from America where it had suddenly surfaced under mysterious circumstances.

Mademoiselle's curiosity prompts her to investigate — and to place herself in danger.

Mrs. Kirk plots well, uses the Belgian background nicely and takes advantage of her personal knowledge of the diplomatic world. However, Mademoiselle Jacquin is not the charmer that Miss Marple is. And Mrs. Kirk is troubled by a stiff, rather stilted writing style that is especially troublesome in her dialogue. Still, it's quite acceptable.

TIME-LIFE BOOKS has spanned three more decades in its "This Fabulous Century" series with books covering the 1920s, the '30s and the '40s. "This Fabulous Century Volume III — 1920-1930" covers the era of aerial stunting including tennis on the wings of planes flying at 70 miles per hour in photo at left, and of Clara Bow, bathtub gin, the automobile, Knute Rockne, Babe Ruth, Al capone, Jimmy Walker, Jack Dempsey, Bruce Barton, marathon dancers, Charles Lindbergh, the Charlston, runaway prosperity and finally the Black Friday crash. Volume IV, 1930-40, tells of lean years, including children such as the farm girl pictured at center who toiled long hours, and FDR, "Pretty Boy" Floyd, Orson Welles, Fred Allen, W. C. Fields, J. Edgar Hoover, Shirley Temple, John L. Lewis, Huey Long, Buck Rogers, marathon dancers, big bands and the 1939 World's Fair. Volume V, 1940-50, documents and pictorializes G. I. Joe including the happy Yank kissing U.S. soil upon his return from Europe in the photo at right, and Generals Eisenhower and Marshall, Harry Truman, Jackie Robinson, Sugar Ray Robinson, Robert Taft, Joe DiMaggio, Frank Sinatra, Roy Rogers, Ava Gardner, Wee Bonnie Baker, war bonds, the New Look and imprisoned Nisei. The books sell for $9.95 each and, richly illustrated, are guaranteed to bring back floods of memories for those who lived the years.

Some New Books For The Juniors

Doubleday and Co. has continued its "Art for Children" series with three new books dealing with European masters and their works by the artist, critic and dealer Ernest Raboff.

The new additions, each priced at $3.95, are "Leonardo da Vinci," "Raphael" and "Michelangelo."

The format is the same as that used in earlier books in the series — a brief biography of the artist, the reproduction of some 15 of his works in color plus other smaller drawings in black and white, and Raboff's interesting and perceptive discussions of the paintings shown.

Thus of Da Vinci's "The Lady with the Ermine":

"The eyes of the pet and the eyes of the lady are equally alive and seem to be interested in watching the artist at work. Leonardo knew that eyes could be telescopes and microscopes when one learns to use them."

The texts are presented in a hand lettering that uses color for emphasis, and we suspect it is an effective technique with artistically-inclined youngsters.

The series becomes more impressive as it grows. Obviously Doubleday came up with the right author for the task in mind when it selected the literate but unpretentious Raboff.

OTHER NEW books for juniors:

Islands have always signified adventure and mystery to boys and men, and thus played a colorful part in literature. "A Book of Islands" (Doubleday, $5.95) is an anthology collected and edited by John S. Bowman of works with island settings. The range is from the Arabian Tale of Sinbad's first adventure to a chapter from William Golding's "Pincher Martin." In between are to be found Homer, Swift, Defoe, Verne, Stevenson, Conan Doyle, Wells, Kipling, De Maupassant, Dumas, Maugham, Richard Harding Davis, Richard Connell and a number of others. It is a big book offering both variety and quality. And Bowman's central theme of the romance of islands holds up well.

Catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati's Reds is the current glamor boy of big league baseball. Robert B. Jackson, who specializes in sports biographies and automotive books for boys, has turned out "Johnny Bench" (Walck, $4.25) for the young star's yet younger fans. It is a routine sports success story, apparently hurriedly produced and illustrated with news photos. Johnny Bench admirers, 10 and 11, however, will no doubt be generally pleased if not entirely satisfied.

"Do You Want To Be My Friend?" (Crowell, $4.50), Eric Carle's 1971 Book World Children's Spring Festival honor book, is a carefully designed tale planned to lead the preschool child into the wonderful world of reading. Text is minimum. At the outset, Little Mouse asks: "Do You Want to Be My Friend?" The pages that follow are without words, but show in a natural flow of beautifully designed artwork Little Mouse's search for that friend. The storyteller or the child can supply his own narration. And finally there comes an answer, "Yes." German-born Carle has created an extraordinary book of rare merit and thought, one that has to be seen to be appreciated, as it most certainly will be by the 4 and 5-year-old set.

Adrien Soutenburg, the very prolific and versatile Marin writer, combines two currently keen interests — science fiction and conservation — in her newest book, "Out There" (Viking, $4.95). The time is the future. Technology and its pollution have caused havoc. Virtually all wild animal and plant life has been killed. But somewhere high in the mountains there must still be surviving wild creatures. Led by the redoubtable Aunt Zeb, a strangely-assorted Nature Squad sets out through the dead landscape to rediscover life. And to acquire some new insights about this strange future world. Miss Stoutenburg says she wrote this book out of her concern for threatened wildlife and landscape, and it constitutes a powerful and unusual appeal for action now if we are to prevent the kind of sterile future she pictures so imaginatively.

THE TITLE CHARACTER in artist-author Jessica Ross' "Fanona the Beautiful" is a small girl whose much-admired long blonde hair has made her conceited. In a story told largely through pictures, Fanona comes to realize that beauty is something more than golden tresses. An excellent moral for 4 to 8-year-olds. But one catch: Long blonde hair or no long blonde hair, are children really going to believe that "the neighbors thought Fanona (above) was a beautiful little girl?" Holt, Rinehart and Winston is the publisher of the $3.50 book.

AN ISLAND'S CUISINE REFLECTS ITS HERITAGE

THE MARTHA'S VINEYARD COOK BOOK by Louise Tate King and Jean Stewart Wexler; Harper & Row, 305 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Somehow the very name Martha's Vineyard seems to promise good eating, but "The Martha's Vineyard Cook Book" surpasses expectations.

Louise Tate King of Blueberry Hill Farm and Edgartown restaurant fame and Jean Stewart Wexler, summertime islander, gift shop proprietor and gardener, have put together a mouth-watering collection of recipes peculiar to Martha's Vineyard.

The dishes reflect the heritage the island shares with the New England mainland. But it also reflects the special history, geography, botany and culture of the Vineyard.

Thus extensive use is made of fish and shellfish, of wild game, of cranberries and blueberries, of such island-grown delicacies as the Jerusalem artichoke, rose hips, quince and beach plums. Most of the concoctions have an English derivation — Blackberry Fool, Beefsteak and Kidney Pie, English Lemon Cake. But the island has Portuguese roots, too — Sweet Bread, Lima Beans and Linguica, Massa Sovada, etc. And an Indian heritage that is not neglected.

There are dishes that originated with the resourceful year-round islanders, and dishes brought there by the more cosmopolitan summer residents. There are dishes that were created to feed the sailing masters and their crews while at sea, and sweets concocted to sell to the tourists. There are chowders and puddings and herb sandwiches and teas and vegetable casseroles and stuffings and breads and jellies and soups and stews and pancakes and cakes and conserves and relishes and baked beans and any number of chicken and clam preparations.

Mrs. King and Mrs. Wexler have given their book a special charm by providing a running commentary on island history and lore, on the origins of their recipes and on the sources of the bounty for their larder. Grambs Miller, artist and island resident (appropriately, on Chowder Kettle Lane in Menemsha) has added some appealing drawings.

All in all, "The Martha's Vineyard Cook Book" is a rare delight — an attractive book that is a treat to read, and no doubt an equal treat from which to eat.

Be Thorough In Watering Of Dichondra

You can sprinkle a dichondra lawn too often and still not give it enough water.

Sounds contradictory, but it's true! There are many, many householders who get real pleasure from hand-sprinkling their dichondra lawns. And, this is a relaxing pastime. But, alas, it's not doing much good — and can do considerable harm.

UNLESS HE'S watering just a small spot, the average person simply does not have the time nor the patience to hand-water long enough to give most dichondra lawns the amount of water they need.

A dichondra lawn should receive a half to a full inch of water with each irrigation. This means turning on the sprinklers and leaving them on for good, long soakings.

On some soils or on sloping lawns this might require turning the sprinklers on and off several times to let enough water soak in and to prevent runoff or puddling.

WHAT HARM can hand-sprinkling do? Since it usually only dampens the soil surface, this encourages shallow rooting — and weak plants.

Frequent hand-sprinkling also keeps the soil surface and dichondra leaves moist for longer periods of time, a condition disease organisms thrive on. Then, too, when the soil is kept damp, weed seeds lying at or near the top of the soil get the moisture they need to sprout and for the tiny sprouts to survive.

In comparison, watering less often, but giving thorough soakings, encourages deep rooting and lets the leaves and the soil surface dry out thoroughly between irrigations. This discourages diseases and prevents most weed sprouts from surviving.

So, reserve hand-watering to small areas and let your sprinklers do the heavy work of watering. Your dichondra lawn will thank you.

In fact, thorough watering is a good policy for almost all lawn and garden plantings.

It's Planting Time For The Begonias

Like any other bulb flower, the tuberous begonia can be planted in its bulb or tuber form.

But this, of course, is not the time for that.

It is the time, however, for planting tuberous begonias in the seedling form in which they are offered in all nurseries.

And far more begonias are started in Marin gardens as seedlings than as bulbs.

IN EITHER form, there isn't a better choice for the shade garden. And very near the coast in Marin they can even take a fair amount of sunshine.

What makes the tuberous begonia such a standout is its spectacular bloom that comes in a rainbow of brilliant colors and in an eye-pleasing array of flower forms.

Many gardeners like to use their tuberous begonias as the focal point in a landscape setting, in the foreground before a backdrop of shurbs, or as a carpet under trees.

THEY GO WELL, too, in clay pots — the six and seven inch size pots are ideal — so that they can be moved about to provide color splashes where they are most needed. These can even be brought indoors for short periods of time to enliven a dreary room.

In planting tuberous begonia seedlings in the earth, start with a rich, porous and well-drained soil. Your nurseryman can recommend a planter mix formula and can outline the simple planting procedures for you.

In selecting your planting site, a general rule is that the exposures best suited to camellias, fuchsias and azaleas are also best suited to begonias.

THE COLOR kadeidoscope includes orange, apricot, red, salmon, pink, yellow and variegations. The forms range from rose-like blooms to camellia-flowering types. And some of those blooms will measure five inches or more across.

This becomes all the more impressive when one remembers that begonia blooms can be cut for indoor bouquets and decor.

Indoors or outdoors, these are the kind of blooms that cause observers to "oh" and "ah," and speeds them to the nearest nursery to acquire their own members of this spectacular perennial family.

THE ROSE-LIKE BLOOM is one of the favorite flower forms among the tuberous begonias, but there are others equally beautiful.

The Taller Plants Require Support

Home gardeners should remember that tall-growing and weak-stemmed annual plants should be given support when they have reached about a third of their total growth.

So says James Underwood Crockett, horticulturist, among other hints aimed at assuring a healthy, bountiful and beautiful display of flowers for the home and property. They are in his book, "Annuals," first volume in a new Time-Life Encyclopedia of Gardening.

A twiggy brush, four to six inches shorter than the plant, and pushed into the ground beside it, makes an ideal support for the fragile-stemmed. Bamboo and reed stakes, or narrow redwood or cedar slats, should be used to stake the taller plants.

Annuals tend to grow with a minimum of care, Crockett advises. But from time to time they should be weeded and watered. They will flourish best if they are watered in the early morning, perhaps a couple of times a week, rather than lightly each day.

By periodically cutting off new flowers, the gardener can expect a greater production of blooms.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- With California's long dry, warm summer well under way, a regular watering schedule that stresses deep soaking is essential to the welfare of lawns gardens. Moisture-loving plants such as the camellia need more frequent waterings.
- Mulches can cut down on your watering chores, and also increase the effectiveness of your irrigations.
- Planning an outdoor party? Keep in mind how blooming pots of geraniums, zinnias, pelargoniums, marguerites or marigolds can add a colorful decorative touch to the festivities.
- Dahlias should be kept moist, but not wet. Feed them every two or three weeks.
- If you haven't already done so, thin out excess fruit on peach and other fruit trees. You'll get a better quality and size in your crop.
- Choose summer-flowering shrubs in bloom. Nurseries are now showing hibiscus, roses, lantanas, oleanders, abelias, hydrangeas and fuchsias.
- Dwarf citrus continue to be a popular choice as a container plant for the patio.

A KOOKY USE OF THE CUKE

THERE IS SOMETHING expecially satisfying about achieving an attractive landscape effect with an unusual planting. Here the tropical effect around this doorway has been created by cucumber plants. Along with lush foliage, the vines produced pretty yellow flowers — and finally edible vegetables. There is, of course, one drawback. The cucumber is an annual. Thus if you want the same effect again the next year, you will have to plant again.

Painting Tips From An Expert

Pacific Gas and Electric Research Has Produced These Pointers

HARRY ALDERSON, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. research engineer, studies the effects of the elements on painted materials at the company's Muir Beach test station along Highway 1 to determine the best paints and surface materials for the utility's facilities.

Paint-up time close at hand?

If so, here are some basic pointers that guide the professionals, according to Harry Alderson, an engineer in Pacific Gas and Electric Co.'s department of engineering research, which has conducted tests and research on paints and other coverings for more than 40 years:

1. DON'T STINT ON PAINT QUALITY. If you place a cash value on time devoted to a typical paint job, it's quickly apparent that the paint and brushes are the smallest cost component. PG&E figures that for each dollar spent on paint another $5 goes into the labor to prepare the surface and apply the covering. So a high quality, long-lived paint actually results in savings.

2. PREPARE THE SURFACE PROPERLY. A thorough cleaning and brushing pays by extending the life of paint. Patching of cracks and holes is a "must." If outdoor surfaces require new nails, the galvanized type is recommended. These can be set with a punch, then puttied for best appearance. Indoors, a caulking compound around windows will prevent water seepage, which can spoil the best of paint jobs.

3. USE A PRIMER. When the old paint is in sad shape or you are beginning with an unpainted surface, put on a good primer coat. Apply it so that it works into the surface. Alderson says two finish coats on top of the primer should produce a handsome covering with a life of at least five to eight years.

"IDEALLY, AFTER that time, all you will need is a single finish coat to make the surface look like new again," says Alderson, who has spent much of his 19 years with PG&E making sure the company receives full value for paints it purchases. He also supervises research to determine the best paints and coverings to protect PG&E buildings, equipment, and materials under the many types of atmospheric conditions in its service area.

The PG&E department of engineering research, located in Emeryville since 1926, handles more than 200 separate research projects in such fields as aquatic environment, corrosion control, extra high voltage transmission, radiation measurement and materials testing.

A staff of 75 men and women includes specialists from the fields of biology, oceanography, geology, physics, chemistry and metallurgy in addition to the major engineering disciplines.

ON THE BASIS of Alderson's studies, the department offers these additional painting tips:

1. Plan to paint during a dry, moderately warm (60 to 70 degrees) day.

2. Follow the paint manufacturer's instructions to the letter.

3. Latex paint, besides being easy to apply, has the ability to "breathe." That is, it lets moisture vapor through when temperature changes cause condensation. Conventional oil-base paints tend to blister when this happens, but they have other advantages such as establishing a good bond on surfaces like stucco.

4. An easy to clean nylon brush works best with latex. With oil-base paints, the professionals use bristle brushes, but nylon produces satisfactory results for most do-it-yourselfers.

5. Remember that most dark paints fade faster than light shades, says Alderson. Yellows and reds tend to fade more than, say, light blue and medium to light green.

One Basement — Three Rooms

Do you need a party room, a guest room, and a cozy den for reading or working at home? But you can't afford three new rooms?

You can have all three, and more, without putting up walls, if you have a basement. The secret is compartmentizing that open area, using built-ins at the right spots.

BUILT-INS along the walls leave the party room in the middle. In one corner, near plumbing, can be placed a food service counter, with sink and cabinets, and a range and refrigerator if desired.

Enclose this area with walls the depth of the appliances and folding louvered doors.

In an adjacent compartment, install book shelves, music center and television along the walls, and enclose this also with louvered doors for privacy.

Next to this "den" place closets so they set off the guest room, containing a sofa that converts to a bed. The closets also are handy for the family's off-season clothing.

OTHER PARTITIONS can space-off sewing and laundry equipment behind attractive doors.

The beauty of it all is that most of the work can be handled by the weekend handyman, a section at a time.

Western woods, louvered doors, and other supplies are offered by lumber dealers and it is not a project beyond the abilities of a home handyman.

PLYWOOD PROJECT

THIS SIMPLE and clean-lined storage unit to accommodate garden tools and play equipment was devised by the American Plywood Association of 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401, which offers the pattern for 25 cents. Ask for Form 65-180. Built of plywood, it stands seven feet seven and a half inches high, has three double door entries and can be colorfully painted or naturally stained. Its installation permits you to give the garage back to the family car.

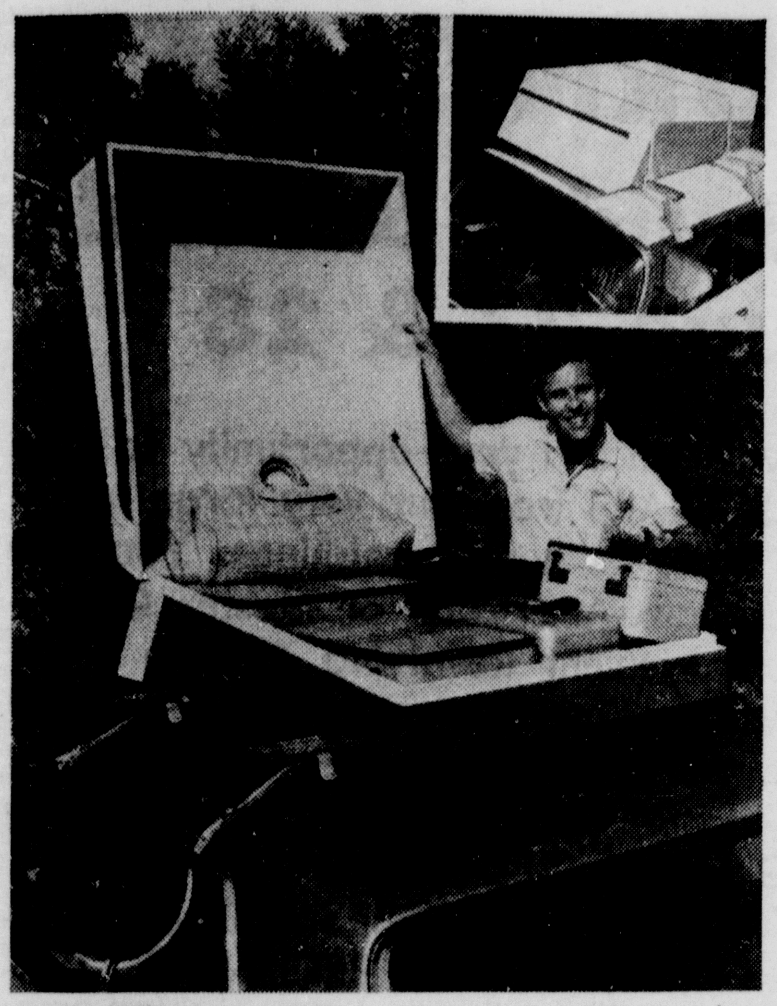
Solving A Problem Of Luggage Space



YOU CAN USE that space atop your car for carrying luggage during your summer vacation trip, and still not run the risk of a sudden rainstorm dampening your possessions. Actor John Ericson demonstrates a compartment that can be built with the help of a Steve Ellingson pattern, which holds a generous amount of luggage, and which closes into a water-tight, dust-proof container while you travel.

Luggage is often a problem when you decide to make your summer vacation a motoring one.

The trunk compartment in the rear of the automobile overflows. Suitcases and hand luggage kept inside the car crowd and cramp the occupants.

A rack on top of the automobile seems a logical solution. But it, too, can present problems. A sudden rain can soak suitcases and even the contents. Dust and other d e b r i s also make themselves felt.

EVEN A CANVAS covering is not a total solution. For it often works loose and flaps wildly in the wind.

Then perhaps the ideal solution is a luggage compartment built from wood that locks securely and protects your belongings.

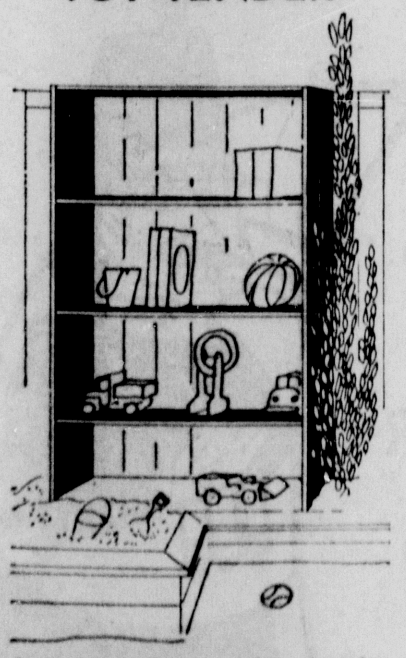
To build your own, send $1 (plus another 25 cnets if you want air mail service) to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for Car Luggage Compartment Pattern No. 228.

The finished compartment can be locked as added protection against thieves. And it can be painted the same color as your car for appearance's sake.

IT BOASTS A hinged top that makes packing and unpacking easy.

The handyman needs only to trace the full-size pattern onto wood, saw it out and then assemble the pieces. The size can be varied to meet your specific needs.

TOY TENDER



SHELVES OF one-by-10-inch western fir or pine boards provide a simple but handy means of storage for the children's toys that otherwise would clutter up the backyard sandbox and destroy much of its usefulness. The box-like closet can be left unfinished or stained to match the play spot.

TV Discovers Raggedy Ann

Lester Osterman Productions Inc. has obtained an option to purchase television rights to the classic Raggedy Ann stories of Johnny Greulle from publisher Bobbs-Merill Co. Inc.

Osterman and daughter Patricia Gray, who did "The Littlest Angel" special seen annually at Christmas-Time, plan a musical show with Raggedy Ann as the heroine, and with music and lyrics by Joe Repose of "Sesame Street" fame.

The Mission's Muscle Man

By VERNON SCOTT

Peter Lupus, the muscle man of "Mission: Impossible," will be back next season after threatening to leave the series unless his role as Willie Armitage was expanded.

The producers have given Willie more to say and do, no little thanks to mountains of fan mail.

When Lupus began his role five years ago he weighed 238 pounds. Now he is a svelte 216, a result of rigid dieting. He consumes 150 capsules of vitamins, minerals and protein supplements a day.

Lupus' chest measures 49 inches; his waist is 32.

HE MAINTAINS these dimensions by breakfasting on a high protein energy drink with raw egg. Lunch is chopped liver and cottage cheese. Dinner is a small steak and salad.

Even so, Lupus must have all his clothes tailored. He hasn't been able to buy suits, trousers or jackets off the rack since he was 16.

The actor and his wife, Sharon, have been married nine years. Their 13-month-old son, Peter III, is already assuming the proportions of his father.

THE LITTLE Tyke is 33 inches tall and weighs 32 pounds. It is necessary to buy his clothes in the toddler department for 3 and 4-year-olds.

Home for the Lupus family is a Spanish modern which sits atop a hill overlooking the San Fernando valley. There are weights in the patio for quick workouts. But Lupus usually visits a nearby gym three days a week to keep his muscles in tone.

On weekends the family packs off for the beach or Palm Springs to sop up the sun and do some swimming.

LUPUS REPORTS to Paramount studio at 6 or 7 a.m. daily and works until 7 p.m. After dinner he attends acting classes two nights a week to break the big ox image he won as a former Mr. Indianapolis, Mr. Indiana and Mr. Hercules.

As is the case with many large men, Lupus is soft-spoken and self-effacing.

He and Sharon entertain now and then at small dinner parties. When they go out for dinner he prefers Japanese food because it is high in protein and low in calories.

EARLIER THIS year Lupus toured Japan, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands entertaining wounded servicemen.

"I was really surprised when I got home," he said. "Little Peter had grown so fast I hardly recognized the little guy. The doctor says he's going to be as big as I am."

Unlike many show business personalities, Lupus has a fixation about answering fan mail. On his days off from the show and during the hiatus he spends hours writing to fans of the show.

BEFORE GOING to bed every night he steps on the scales to weigh himself. If he's gained a pound or two he cuts back on his diet.

"It's one thing to be heavy and photograph 10 pounds more than you really are," he explained. "But when you have a huge chest and a small waist like I have, you photograph 20 pounds heavier.

"I'm trying to get away from that. So I've cut down my workouts. It's paid off. My neck size used to be 18 3/4 inches; now it's only 17 1/2.

New Releases On The London Label That Popularize The Classics

By JOHN SUNIER

A number of recent releases on the London label are of considerable interest to the record buyer.

The first three with which we'll deal are in the new area of popularizing the classics with people who normally could care less about the classics.

Several Bay Area people have been involved in the production of "The Music of Erik Satie: The Velvet Gentleman" Deram-London DES 18036. While recorded in England with the Camarata Contemporary Chamber Group, the strange album art was done by former San Francisco record promotion man Jon Sagen and the very Satie-ish liner note innovation was created by local harpsichordist Margaret Fabrizio and avant-garde composer Robert Moran.

The Satie music includes of course both the Three "Gymnopedies" and three "Gnossienne" as well as many of his other most inimitable little hors d'oeuvres. The performances are excellent and recording equally fine. The few tracks featuring the Moog synthesizer add a contemporary mood and convince the listener that Satie and Moog would have gotten along famously.

The music is somewhat arranged by Camerata, a versatile conductor-arranger in the Kostelanetz-Carmen Dragon bag, but the arrangements do not change Satie's intent appreciably, like with adding drums and bass or anything that violent. This is a thoroughly superior album of widest appeal.

DRUMS AND bass are just what pianist Jacques Loussier has been adding to the keyboard music of J.S. Bach now for some years, in the highly-regarded series of "Play Bach" albums on London. Now he plays Bach's complete "Brandenburg Concerto No. 5" with his trio and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra on a new London "Phase 4" recording, including the Baroque master's "Air on the G String" and "Prelude No. 2 in C Minor" as well.

The Fifth is the most ambitious of the six Brandenburgs, known for the first real solo use of the keyboard in an instrumental concerto. Loussier substitutes his piano, bass and drums for the harpsichord part of the original and the rest of the orchestra follows Bach's original score note for note.

The effect is very pleasing and should bring Bach's boisterous, swinging music in these concerti to many new ears.

GUSTAV HOLST'S suite, "The Planets" has been a hackneyed favorite of neophyte concert music listeners for some time. It also turns up with painful frequency as background music to silent films, documentaries etc. Those who are sick of these programmatic portraits of the various heavenly bodies will be almost as pleased with Bernard Herrmann's new London recording (Phase 4 SPC 21049) as those who, God forbid, havenever heard of it.

He plays these impressionistically post-Romantic pieces to the hilt and London's engineers have outdone all competition in capturing the sound. The large amount of "ambient information" captured by the multi-mike method of London's "Phase 4" system is especially thrilling when heard on a pseudo-quadrasonic speaker set-up. One is surrounded by rich orchestral sound.

The album's art presentation is obviously inspired by the popularity of the "2001" soundtrack album.

THE FIRST stereodiscing of music from Edouard Lalo's "Namouna" ballet of 1882 is found on London CS 6536, with L'Orchestre de la Suiss Romande conducted by Ernest Anermet.) The busy plot is not very important: it concerns a slave girl and pirates on Corfu. The music is colorful, rich and very French-19-th-century.

Lalo's "Norwegian Rhapsody" fills out the LP. It boasts melodies that seem exceedingly familiar even upon hearing the selection for the first time. Actually, the music sounds less Norwegian than Spanish, a la flamenco.

A SIMPLY brilliant concerto for soprano vocalise and orchestra is one of two major works of Reinhold Gliere on London OS 26110, featuring Joan Sutherland, with The London Symphony Orchestra conducted by Richard Bonynge. This is the first modern stereo version of the "Concerto for Soprano and Orchestra" as well as the fine "Concerto for Harp and Orchestra" the latter with soloist Ossian Ellis.

Gliere pleased both Czars and commissars during his 75-year composing life. While he is an arch-conservative, his melodies are truly beautiful and finely-wrought.

Three little encores fill out this Sutherland-family effort, one of which is the matchless Stravinsky "Pastorale."

THE ONLY recording of Borodin's "Quintet in C Minor" is given a loving performance by members of the Vienna Octet on London CS 6636, along with Mendelssohn's "Sextet in D Major, Op. 110." The Mendelssohn work is a gilt-edged delight of great lightness and elan. Superb sound throughout; one of the distinguished chamber music recordings of the year.

One of the major works of Beethoven's early period was the ballet "The Creatures of Prometheus." Zubin Mehta and The Israel Philharmonic Orchestra essay a new version of excerpts from this ballet score on London CS 6660. Beethoven was in love and happy during this period — unusual for the brooding master — and his music is full of lightness and verve, with inventive melodies andgrace. Harps figure predominantly in the orchestrations.

This new release expands our view of a composer we usually don't think of as a ballet composer.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The husband-wife singing team of Sonny and Cher will star in a summer comedy-variety series on CBS beginning Aug. 1 at 8:30 Sundays.

Comedienne Pat Carroll gets a regular role on "The Bobby Sherman Show," a half-hour series starring the singer that ABC will put in the 8-8:30 p..m slot Saturdays beginning Sept. 18.

James Stewart does "Harvey" again, this time as a Hallmark Hall of Fame special on NBC early in 1972. Stewart played the Elwood P. Dowd role as a replacement for Frank Fay during the original Broadway run of Mary Chase's lovable play in the 1940's. He starred in the 1950 film version, which has had numerous video outings in recent years. He was on the Broadway revival with Helen Hayes in 1970.

Are you set for Christmas? ABC announces a repeat of a Yuletide standard, "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town" for Dec. 3, and a December airing for an animated version of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

NBC's forthcoming "Nichols" series, starring James Garner, has added as cast regulars Margot Kidder and Stuart Margolin. Miss Kidder is the provocative Canadian actress who gained so much attention in the "Quackser Fortune Has a Cousin in the Bronx" movie a year ago. Vargolin has been a guest star on numerous television shows.

HITCH HIKE

I saw
The morning sun
Awake,
I walked away
With the dew,
I stood on a corner,
Thumb out,
Mind waiting
To be told which way to go.

SAN RAFAEL.

PATH TO MICKEYS BEACH

Here sage twined wind the sun and sea all blend and bend dry teazles stark against the sky. I cry back to the gulls in loneliness descending.
